The Military and the Moral Initiative

By HENRY M. WRISTON, Gamma Zeta (Wesleyan), '11

Former Supervisor of Scholarship

Address at the National Interfraternity Conference Dinner
New York City, November 29, 1940

IT is a pleasure to come again to the Interfraternity Conference. On the occasion of my appearance here some years ago I urged that fraternities should not be satisfied with a defensive attitude, but should seize the initiative in order to be the masters of their fate.

Tonight my theme is the same. For I am to recognize on your behalf two men who have always taken the aggressive line in fraternity life—and have rendered service thereby. In conferring these medals I do not choose merely to make laudatory remarks about the recipients. Instead I must urge that the example they have set in the fraternity world needs the emulation of us all in the present world crisis.

My thesis this evening is that a positive idea can never be beaten by a negative one, even if the positive idea is weak and the negative one is potentially stronger. The world is now suffering because the democracies yielded the initiative to the dictatorships. They took defensive positions and, operating under a philosophy symbolized in the military sphere by Liddell Hart, applied the doctrine of limited liability not only to military operations but also to political strategy.

The false sense of security which persisted while the military initiative was abandoned and the Allies rested behind the Maginot line has now been shown to have been folly. However, the military mistake was preceded by an identical, but even more serious, error in moral and political strategy. It consisted in a like abandonment of initiative to the totalitarians. It is now being followed in Europe and in America by an error of similar character and dimensions in still another field—the abandonment of the peace strategy to the totalitarians.

The Versailles Treaty was not a good treaty; but it was probably as good a treaty as is likely to be made at the close of a long, bitter, and exhausting war by statesmen whose first preoccupation is certain to be continuance in office. Though it was not a good treaty, it was nonetheless a better treaty than it is now given credit for having been.

Through the years the treaty became progressively less viable. Its evolution in action was degenerative, partly because of the negative philosophy and action of the United States. The failure of the United States to participate in the tri-partite treaty of guarantee destroyed one of the presuppositions of the Versailles Treaty. The failure of the United States to participate in the reparations commission (though it had twice later to intervene “unofficially” with the Dawes Commission and the Young Commission) impaired its value as an instrument of flexible peace. The failure of the United States to participate in the World Court deprived the treaty of a third of its potentialities for peaceful change. The failure of the United States, which had launched the League of Nations, to take a positive attitude toward it contributed to its ineffectiveness as an agency for peaceful political re-orientation.

Instead of developing into an instrument of positive action, which it might have done, by this negative policy the treaty became a kind of Maginot line, strongly defended toward the front but open to a flanking movement which made its defenses useless. The way for a German flanking movement was prepared by many in Britain and many more in America whose destructive criticisms of the treaty were not balanced by positive alternative proposals. The criticisms by which the moral position of the treaty was destroyed were the same in the three countries—but with this difference: the Germans had a positive substitute for the treaty, whereas the United States and Britain paved the way for that substitute by participating in the moral abandonment of what already existed without offering any substitute of their own. We participated, that is to say, only in the work of destruction. The unworthy positive idea of the totalitarians—reform of the treaty by force—prevailed over a negative attitude. The available positive ideal of a flexible peace, inherent in the treaty as drafted, was lost because of failure to retain the political and moral initiative.

When the moral position of the treaty had been destroyed, the Maginot line of peace was turned and mobile forces of political intelligence were not available for effective resistance to the German program. Once the moral initiative with regard to the structure of peace was conceded, the overthrow of peace was only a matter of time.

In the same way the moral initiative has been abandoned to the totalitarians in discussions of democracy. The "failure" of democracy, at least its failures, have been scarcely less the theme of public figures in France, Britain, and America than in the totalitarian countries. We have had over ten years of emphasis upon the pathology of democracy with some evidence of consequent hypochondria. The "failure" of democracy to provide security, the "failure" of democracy to solve the unemployment problem, the "failure" of democracy to redistribute wealth, "failure" in a hundred other ways has been exploited by Americans and British as much as by Germans. One recent British author, much admired in America, in writing on the strategy of peace makes the flat statement, "the character of our political institutions contradicts the possibilities of our economic achievement." That statement is characteristic of the defeatist point of view, which goes a long way toward admitting the strictures of the totalitarians. The criticisms of the last decade have been so completely negative that when the physical assault upon democracy was made, whole areas of the ideal were already in process of abandonment to the aggressors; they had already been conceded, and needlessly conceded.

The critics of democracy have proceeded on the fallacious assumption that specific failures were due to inherent weaknesses of the democratic process, rather than ineffective instrumentalities and leadership. They have measured the achievements of democracy against Utopian perfection instead of by standards applicable to a real world. Instead of taking the initiative and driving home the weaknesses of totalitarianism and exploiting the positive aspects of democracy, the "defenders" of democracy have admitted its weaknesses and confined themselves to defensive gestures against the totalitarians. Statesmanship, which had become defensive about democracy, attempted to intrench it behind the moral equivalent of the Maginot line, then watched helplessly while that line was outflanked.

In the same manner the initiative has been conceded to the totalitarians in discussions about capitalism. Capitalism has not been discussed from a positive point of view during the last decade by statesmen anywhere in the world. It has not been aggressive in its assaults upon the theory of exchange control, upon the theory of barter, upon the theory of state socialism. The initiative has been left to Russia, to Italy, and to Germany, and their assaults upon the pluto-democracies, their sneers at alleged outworn aspects of capitalism have been merely the echoes of negative domestic criticisms in the nations where capitalism has thus far survived. Even there its ultimate modification out of all recognition is really conceded, not only without a struggle, but virtually without effective argument.

Characteristic of this defeatist point of view is the British writer previously quoted. He speaks of "the central contradiction within itself between capitalism and democracy." "Their relationship is satisfactory in periods of economic expansion; it becomes difficult in periods of economic contraction." That is typical of the luminous and arrogant simplicity with which the alleged breakdown of democracy and capitalism is described. It says in elaborate words that trouble is trouble—and unpleasant. However, one can read his whole argument through without encountering any hint that Russian communism has been anything other than a glad, sweet economic song—except as its capitalist neighbors have abused it!

His is the kind of mind which shuts itself resolutely to any manifestation of privilege except that of wealth. The whole Hitlerian arraignment of pluto-democracy is tacitly accepted. Denouncing, as do most of us, the special privileges that have often come with money, he closes his eyes to the special privileges that come with political power in a communist bureaucracy. Denouncing, as all of us would, the economic authority of any little group of capitalists over the welfare of masses of men, he resolutely closes his eyes to the power of life and death over the masses exercised by the dictator head of the totalitarian communist state. He blandly insists that democracy, to be effective in the current crisis, must "take large steps toward the transformation of the capitalist basis of its economic foundation to a socialist basis." This widely acclaimed book describing where we are to go from here toward peace surrenders one whole area to the totalitarians without firing an intellectual shot.

Despite the suave phrases of such apologists, socialist or communist totalitarianism makes democracy impossible. Bureaucracy never submits even to phantom elections; bureaucracy never takes on the mortal release of death which even the dictator can never escape. Bureaucracy, which is the essential instrument of totalitarianism in its socialist, communist, or any other form, is the least responsive of all forces to the popular will.

The same author, who is characteristic of many more, closes his eyes resolutely to the development of dictatorship in Russia and has relatively mild words of condemnation for the manner in which Stalin has played the game of power politics. He assumes a fundamental difference in orientation between dictatorship in Moscow and dictatorship in Berlin and Rome. He assigns to the dictatorships of Hitler and Mussolini the characteristics of an outlaw, but to the dictatorship of Stalin the implementation of the dynamic of the masses. As he describes, step by step, the terror and tyranny by which the Nazi and Fascist masters made their will dominant over their states, he is blind to the precise parallelism that marked the rise of tyranny in Russia.

Let us repudiate the defeatists. Compared with totalitarianism democracy has no need to be defensive. The inherent weaknesses of the totalitarian state are decisive. I shall mention only four, with but a word on each.

1. The totalitarian program means the impoverishment of physical life. There are no vitamins in guns, and when guns are put before butter long enough, such a policy must exact its inevitable physical toll. But propaganda screams the word "equality." And the pretense is made that if the sacrifice be common, then there is no sacrifice at all.

2. Totalitarianism means economic impoverishment. You cannot turn your main productive forces into destructive channels over a long period of years, you cannot put your energies into fashioning things which produce no dividends in goods, you cannot spend upon a scale which taxation can never meet without economic impoverishment. But again the emphasis in propaganda is upon "equality." And by a strong assault upon alleged plutocracy, it again makes the false pretense that common sacrifice means no sacrifice at all.

3. Totalitarianism means intellectual impoverishment. Bureaucratic control is necessarily hostile to intellectual freedom. There is no mind that betrays less evidence of imagination, there is no mind less inventive and in the long run less sympathetic than the official mind. When the mind of science and the mind of literature and the mind of art are harnessed in team with the official mind, they inevitably lose that freedom, that sweep, that reach which have brought science its untold number of triumphs, which have brought richness and beauty and meaning and power to letters and the arts.

4. Totalitarianism means spiritual impoverishment. For if the state is made your god, the result is no better than if you fashioned an idol of gold or of clay. Even if power were not its inevitable objective, it would substitute the baser life for the fuller and richer life. If control over others is substituted for mastery of yourself, there is a loss for which nothing can compensate.

But, having crushed minorities, having purged dissidents, the totalitarian state turns to the world and insists it has achieved "unity." By inhibiting creative power outside official channels, by controlling every aspect of life, and by substituting a false enthusiasm for the state in place of reverence for God, it tries to make it appear that the minds and hearts of men are one.

If you are so inert in your defensive position that you do not seize the initiative and tear those pretenses away and show all the forms of physical, economic, political, intellectual, and spiritual poverty which lie behind them, then your superior democratic ideal will never conquer the inferior totalitarian ideal which flaunts its bold claims.

The soundness of the military aphorism that the best defense is a strong offense is now obvious. It should have been clear from the beginning—at least after the German annexation of Austria had turned the Czech fortress line—that a defensive military position is untenable. If the immovable body does not crumble before the irresistible force, the force flows around it and achieves the same result.

It should be equally clear by now that a negative attitude cannot resist a positive idea, and that when the moral initiative, the intellectual initiative, and the physical initiative are surrendered, and trust is reposed in defensive positions, those positions will be lost, one after another, either from the front or, more likely, from the flank and the rear.

That is why it is so serious a matter that so far we have abandoned the initiative regarding the shape of the coming peace. There is current in the democratic world no theory of the peace, no aggressive principles which the peace is designed to implement, no clear picture of the kind of world in which we are ready to participate, no definition of the responsibilities we are ready to assume, no intimation of the structure of our own hopes. American pessimists have been as quick as the Germans to open the pathway through the flanking forest of the Ardennes by saying that free exchange is a thing of the past; by asserting that the gold standard, or anything like it, is a thing of the past; by asserting that free enterprise in the international sphere is a thing of the past; by admitting that small nations probably cannot maintain themselves; by anticipating in the future some hegemony within spheres of influence, such as is involved in the conception of hemispheric defense and hemispheric economy, or a partition of the world between the democracies and the totalitarians. All these concessions mean that even if the totalitarians lose the war, they are likely to win the peace. Aid to Britain is no substitute for clear thinking.

The hope of peace is an old hope. If you return to our greatest piece of literature, the Bible, you will find that peace as an ideal appears again and again, always with yearning and sometimes with magnificent faith. And the periods when the world has moved toward peace have been those when hope was reinforced by faith. Today even hope is dimmed and faith is all but absent. That is why the totalitarian faith in conquest is for the moment triumphant. That is why they can define their "new order" while we flounder without a program. It is our absence of faith in any contrary process which gives them the victory. If we are ever to have peace, therefore, more fundamental than guns, more fundamental than butter, is the re-awakening of faith in the validity of our ideals, a resurgence of faith in the democratic process, a readiness to see those ideals and that process operate upon an international scale.

It is one of the ironies of life that you cannot have peace unless you are ready to run the risk of war. That is because peace is not an end in itself. It is a means to an end; it is the opportunity to fulfill some mission, to realize some great dream, to organize life in accordance with some dominating principle. That means taking a positive line, not merely making a defensive stand; that means taking the risks that go with a positive line and not seeking the security thought to lie in a defensive position.

If you take risks, among those must assuredly be the risk of war. But if you make your will firm to realize your principle, if you mobilize your power to achieve your dream, you will be so strong that men will hesitate to issue the final challenge that involves war. And if they be so mad, you may live in confidence that the power you have generated, the force you represent, the ideas and the ideals which move you are stronger than those of the challenger. Recent years have shown again that it is the weak foreign policy of appeasement that brings war, whereas the strong foreign policy of fulfillment may avoid it. Consequently, peace is seen at last to rest upon strength, and courage, and faith; upon clarity of mind and firmness of will; but never upon doubt or defeat, hesitation or fumbling, the defensive spirit.

The central task for Americans is an objective definition of our interests and our responsibilities, of a shape of things to come which would enlist our energies and our resources. Then if war comes we would not fight to "defend" something, but to achieve something. Or it might transpire that by influence and strength, but without war, we could achieve that positive goal, imposing it upon an exhausted world by moral and economic and intellectual force.

Statesmanship consists in dealing with events at hand with the means available in order to achieve long matured, positive goals. That is the best description I can give of these two men who are to receive the National Interfraternity Conference Award tonight, Albert Sprague Bard and Alvan Emile Duerr—men active in the Conference from its early days, never timid and compromising, but at once patient and aggressive in seeking to achieve its high ideals.

Delts Registered at the National Interfraternity Conference

GRADUATES

The official delegates for Delta Tau Delta were A. Bruce Bielaski, Gamma Eta (George Washington), '04, and Norman MacLeod, Gamma Sigma (Pittsburgh), '17, past Presidents of the Fraternity. Other graduate members registered were: Alvan E. Duerr, Chi (Kenyon), '93, Sigma (Williams), '93, past President of the Fraternity, and past chairman of the National Interfraternity Conference; David K. Reeder, Omega (Pennsylvania), '12, Secretary of the Conference for 1940, and Vice-Chairman of the Conference for 1941; Hugh Shields, Beta Alpha (Indiana), '26, the Fraternity's comptroller and Central Office manager; Kenneth C. Penfold, Beta Kappa (Colorado), '37, field secretary; and Harry G. Green, Gamma Mu (Washington), '31, Editor of THE RAINBOW.

UNDERGRADUATES

The official registration records reported six members of Delta Tau Delta attending, representing undergraduate interfraternity councils on their respective campuses. The undergraduates were: Dale R. Kauffman and John Sheldon, Gamma Upsilon, at Miami University; Frank Schmitz, Nu, at Lafayette; Kent Magruder, Gamma Pi, at Iowa State College; and C. E. Koerble and Robert McIntosh, Delta Nu, at Lawrence College.

Each member fraternity of the Conference was allowed a representation of sixty members at the banquet. Commander Irving B. McDaniel, President of the Southern Division, and G. Herbert McCracken, President of the Eastern Division, were the present Arch Chapter members attending. The New York Alumni Chapter was well represented to complete the total.

ELECTION is over and bitterness has abounded in the land. Hot words were passed, wild statements made. By not one jot or tittle can the returns be changed; but something can be changed. And that is the enmities that have flourished during the campaign. These can be changed, forgotten, rubbed from the slate and we can get on with the new task that lies on our desk—the matter of rushing our national defense.

I tell you it is hard to do! This matter of forgiving and forgetting and going on with new tasks. But now and then it happens; now and then there is a person who can fix his eyes on an objective and forget the past. A person so big, so filled with understanding for the frailties of mankind, that he will try to bridge a chasm that only a few have the courage to cross. But what a fine thing it is when one person does make that attempt!

Let me tell you of a man who set out upon that bridge. He was Lloyd George, once Prime Minister of England, the man of iron will. He had trouble with Lord Rothschild, who was as powerful in the financial world as Lloyd George was in the political. It started over the budget but grew personal and bitter. The two hated the sight of each other. When they met in the cloakroom they glared. One day Lloyd George got up in Parliament and attacked Lord Rothschild. But Lord Rothschild did not sit and take it. Far from it. He got to his feet and fought hot words with hotter.

Then came the World War.

Lloyd George became Chancellor of the Exchequer. The Allies were fighting for their lives and must have money. And more money. There was one man in England who knew more about money than any other man, and he was Lord Rothschild. Lloyd George set out upon the bridge. He said, "Send for Lord Rothschild. Tell him I want to see him." Then he thought a moment. "No. I will go to see him. I will do even better. Ask him if he will let me come to see him."

Lord Rothschild hesitated. Was this some political expedient? Then he went part way out on the bridge himself. "Tell him he may come."

When the two faced each other, Lloyd George stepped forward and held out his hand.

"We've had some unpleasantness in our time, but now we're faced by a bigger issue than ourselves. Let's forget the past. Will you?"

"Yes. I've forgotten it already. What can I do?"

Lloyd George explained and Lord Rothschild undertook the work. And now comes the surprising part—the part that makes one have faith in the abiding qualities of humankind: As the two worked side by side, they began to respect each other. This respect grew. It warmed into friendship. They became not only friends, but staunch friends.

And that makes me think of a tall farm boy in Ashland County, Ohio, who studied by coal-oil lamps and got learning into his head. He went away to Ohio State University at Columbus and got a diploma. He was imbued with an immense desire for learning, for he wanted to be an inventor. But his money was gone, so he went back to the country and got a job teaching a school. The farmers shook their heads; they said he was ruined for "honest" work.

At about this time there came to town a very strange exhibit. Some professor had a contraption which he claimed could look right through a board. It was so strange, so against common sense, that no one believed in it except the young schoolteacher. He was so excited about it that he asked the farmers to haul the school children to town so they could see the X-ray machine with their own eyes. No farmer was such a fool as that. So the young schoolteacher walked his pupils ten miles to see the contraption. When he got back, tongues buzzed. The most scandalized was a local preacher, who went to the school officials and said the young man ought to be fired for showing their children the work of the Devil. The situation got so hot that it led to the teacher's giving up his job and getting another as telephone lineman.

Later the ex-teacher got to follow out his dream: inventing. Did right well for himself, too. The electric cash register, the self-starter that is on your car, ethyl gasoline. In fact, he has 150 patents.

But to go back to the preacher who said that young Charles F. Kettering was the Devil's hired man: One day, after the bitterness had worn its edge a little, someone asked Kettering if he didn't hate the preacher who had caused him so much trouble. "It's all over now and nothing can be changed, so why should I hate him?" said Kettering. "He was acting for the best,

America's Switzerland Welcomes You

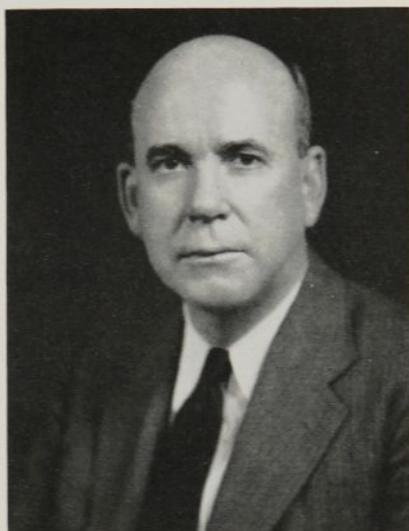

Plan Your Trip to the Karnea—August 21, 22, 23, 1941

By ANTHONY F. McCUE, Gamma Delta (West Virginia), '06

Chairman of the Karnea Executive Committee

WEST VIRGINIA, the state where the Fifty-Sixth Karnea will be held August 21, 22 and 23, is one of the truly attractive vacation spots in America. The diversified beauty and variety of its rugged scenery is such that the state is often spoken of as "The Switzerland of America." It is almost unthinkable that, by reason of its irregular shape, it extends fifty miles north of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and ninety miles south of Richmond, Virginia; east to within fifty miles of Washington, D. C., and approximately to the longitude of Rochester, New York, and on the west almost to the longitude of Columbus, Ohio. But this is not all. A good system of state roads, patrolled by as gentlemanly and as hospitable a group of state policemen as ever threw a leg over a motorcycle or sat under the wheel of an automobile, lead the traveler from an altitude above sea level at Harpers Ferry of 247 feet, to that of 4,860 feet at Spruce Knob, in Pendleton County, not far from White Sulphur Springs. Under such conditions, of course, you would expect to find, and you will find, a delightful climate, with a mean temperature of 55.7 degrees Fahrenheit.

Wherever the visitor goes an unending panorama of hills and valleys spreads out before him. In traveling over the state the visitor passes through miles and miles of blue grass, in which roam herds of the finest cattle, horses and sheep to be found anywhere in the country. He will see five million apple trees in the fruit section of the state. The Golden Delicious and the Grimes Golden apples were discovered in West Virginia. A monument marks the spot where each original tree was found. Notwithstanding all this, more than half of her fifteen million acres are still in forest and she offers the highest average altitude east of the Rockies. She is within five hundred miles of two-thirds of the population of the United States.

Editor's Note: Anthony F. McCue, Chairman of the Karnea Executive Committee, has a long record of service to Delta Tau Delta. This service has been recognized through his citation to the Distinguished Service Chapter. "Mac," as he is affectionately known by his host of friends, is one of those Good Delts whose inconspicuous and quiet labors have not become generally recognized, at least not throughout the entire Delta Tau Delta world. In West Virginia "Mac" is considered the real Delt leader when it comes to doing things. His chapter, Gamma Delta, at West Virginia, and all of its alumni have come to appreciate the value of his leadership. The Delts who attend the White Sulphur Springs Karnea will enjoy the hospitality of West Virginia Delta Tau Delta, which is under "Mac's" direction.

To a Delt, Bethany College is the shrine most alluring in West Virginia. It is the oldest school of college rank in the state. Located near U. S. Route 40 in Brooke County, it was established by Alexander Campbell, who was the founder of the Christian Church. While the eight immortals who founded Delta Tau Delta there have long ago been initiated into the Chapter Eternal, the bell in the old tower still calls the boys and girls to class as it called them more than eighty years ago. A Memorial Plaque of bronze was presented to Bethany College by the Arch Chapter, May 12, 1934, in commemoration of the founding of Delta Tau Delta at that institution. The ceremony was a high light in the Diamond Jubilee celebration.

As you enter the state, whether by train or auto, from the west, one of the first views presented is that of historic Blennerhasset Island in the Ohio River, below the city of Parkersburg.

The story of that island has given many heartaches to all who have read it. Herman Blennerhasset and his beautiful young Irish wife, settled there in 1797 and built a mansion which today would cost a quarter of a million dollars. You know the story of the visit by Aaron Burr, the scheme to found a new nation in the southwest, of the arrest of the Blennerhassets and of Burr and the trial of Burr for treason in Richmond, at which trial Chief Justice John Marshall presided. In the meantime the mansion was burned, the Blennerhassets were scattered and ruined, socially and financially, and died in poverty.

At Harpers Ferry, John Brown's raid, the first violence leading to the Civil War, occurred October 16, 1859. Space will not permit much to be said about this historic event or this historic spot. Colonel Robert E. Lee, with a small detachment of federal troops soon arrived from Washington to protect government property. First Lieutenant J. E. B. Stuart, another famous Civil War cavalry officer, accompanied him. The insurrection was quelled and John Brown was the second person tried for treason in the United States. He was convicted and executed.

The placid and peaceful Potomac still flows to the sea, past quiet old Harpers Ferry. John Brown's body lies "a-mouldering in the grave" and Colonel Robert E. Lee and Lieutenant Stuart have joined the immortals.

The Mound Builders inhabited West Virginia in large numbers and left many mounds, but little information from which those who followed them could learn much of their civilization. In what is now the city of Moundsville, West Virginia, but a few hundred feet from the Ohio River, stands the largest prehistoric mound in America. It is 900 feet in circumference at the base and is 70 feet high. At the time of its discovery in 1772 it was covered by huge oak trees. Similar mounds are found in the British Isles, China and Egypt, and they, as those found in West Virginia, were used as burial places. The Mound Builder played his part in the pageant of history incognito, and disappeared from the stage as mysteriously as he came upon it.

White Sulphur Springs, where the Karnea is to be held, and of which West Virginia is very proud, is only a few hours by train or auto from the very cradle of American history in Old Virginia.

Over the mountains past old Sweet Springs, by way of Salem to Roanoke, is a trip never to be forgotten. Three smaller mountain ranges, all parallel, may be seen from the summit of the larger; or a trip over U. S. Route 60 by auto, or by train, requires an hour or two to reach historic Washington and Lee University at Lexington,

Virginia, whose every brick and tree could speak of Washington, Lee, John Marshall, John Minor, the Tuckers, and a host of other immortals. This is the home of Phi Chapter. In the chapel on the campus rests the recumbent statue of General Lee, in white marble, which is one of the most impressive statues in America. Nearby on the campus of Virginia Military Institute stands, in bronze, Stonewall Jackson, the General of whom Lee spoke as his "right arm."

Just across the country a little way, is Charlottesville, the home of the University of Virginia and of Beta Iota Chapter. Across the valley on top of a hill stands Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson. As one stands on the lawn at Monticello he can clearly see the grounds and buildings of the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. Looking in the opposite direction, Ashlawn, the home of James Monroe, is in plain view. From here, by beautiful roads, over battlefields which were soaked in blood during the Civil War, and which are marked by statues and markers, one is only two or three hours from Richmond, "The Heart of the South."

There are so many places of interest to visit in Richmond. A few of them are the White House of the Confederacy and its museum, the home of Chief Justice John Marshall, the statues of Washington and his associates on the Capitol Square—a group the equal of which no other state has ever produced at one time; the site where old Libby Prison stood, and just around the corner is the Edgar Allen Poe shrine in the old stone house, the oldest in Richmond, built about 1685. Last, but not least, is Old St. John's Church, at Broad and 25th Street. In this church Patrick Henry made his famous "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death" speech.

Fifty miles south of Richmond are Jamestown, Yorktown and historic Williamsburg. These three famous and hallowed places are all within a radius of ten miles. Here you are at the spot where the first English settlement was made in America in 1607; where the surrender of Cornwallis ended the Revolutionary War in 1781; the site of the capital of the Colony of Virginia, occupied by the English Governors, and by Patrick Henry and Thomas Jefferson, the first two Governors of the Commonwealth; and The College of William and Mary, the second oldest in the United States. The Government has built boulevards connecting Jamestown and Yorktown, which pass through Williamsburg, and there are many interesting monuments and markers at both places. At Williamsburg, Colonial Williamsburg, Inc., a corporation to which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., subscribed ten million dollars at one time, has reproduced old Williamsburg, just as it was during the days of its prominence in the eighteenth century. It is not a museum, but families live in many of the old homes along its one main street. Of course, the Capitol, the Governor's Palace and the Raleigh Tavern are not occupied. Architecture and gardens were reproduced; fixtures, furniture, curtains and carpets were gathered from all sections and countries of the world and reassembled here to make Williamsburg just as it was "in the period when the great figures of the time called the town their Capital." Words cannot describe reproduced Williamsburg. It has to be seen to be appreciated. It is worth a long journey to spend a day here.

Within a radius of one hundred fifty miles of Richmond there are many historic and interesting spots, but space permits the mention of only a few. Of course, everyone knows Washington, D. C., is the most beautiful city in the world. Weeks are not sufficient time in which to see all of its beauty spots. South only a few miles is Mt. Vernon, the beautifully preserved home and last resting place of Washington; then historic Fredericksburg, only a few miles away. In this old city stands the Masonic Lodge where Washington was made a Master Mason in 1752. His mother's home where she spent her last years, with many of the fixtures and much of the furniture she left in it, is there. It was here he bade her a last goodbye as he journeyed north by stagecoach to be inaugurated the first President of the United States. The old stone auction block from which slaves were auctioned stands upon a prominent street corner.

The Skyline Drive on the backbone of the Blue Ridge for one hundred twenty-five miles, built and maintained by the government in a national park, from Front Royal south past Staunton, is a most delightful trip.

No Delt ever had a greater opportunity to combine a trip to a Karnea with a vacation for himself with his family, or with friends.

If you travel by auto, White Sulphur Springs is located on U. S. Route 60 and is of easy access. Of it we will have much to tell you later. If you travel by train, even though you come a long way, the friendly Chesapeake & Ohio Rail-

Lamar Trotti—Motion Picture Writer

By W. M. CREAKBAUM, Gamma Upsilon (Miami), '20

AS RECENTLY as a decade ago newsreel and news syndicate photographers stationed in Southern California had many a good laugh on their "head office" bosses, due to the latters' utter lack of knowledge of geographical distances in the West. For instance, one photographer was ordered by New York headquarters to cover the first half of a big football game in Los Angeles and then dash over to Berkeley between halves to "shoot" the last two stanzas of an equally important gridiron tussle there—a mere distance of 350 miles by airplane, and there was no airline then. Still another received hurried instructions from his Chicago office to run down to Mexico City on an assignment and came near being fired for insubordination when he wired back that Chicago was actually nearer by many miles to the Capital City below the Rio Grande, than was Los Angeles.

All of which is not an effort to make any odious comparisons between those head office chaps and Editor Harry Green of THE RAINBOW, but when he asked us to hop out to Twentieth Century-Fox studios and interview Lamar Trotti, Beta Delta (Georgia), '21, who holds forth there as a writer, we realized that he knew our office was less than a half hour's jaunt from the studio. But what he evidently didn't realize was that the gates thereof are harder to crash than a Tibetan lamasery and that the labyrinthian maze of highways and byways therein are equally as mystifying. Many humorous stories have come out of Hollywood about writers who have disappeared into studios, never to be heard of again, and most of them are not very far from the truth.

So we made a short cut by mail and wangled out of Brother Trotti the story of his interesting and meteoric career. For many of the details he modestly referred us to a tear sheet from the Sunday "Magazine and Feature" Section of the Atlanta Constitution of October 6, last. He is a cousin of the vice-president and business manager of that splendid paper, but that was not a contributing factor to his rise to prominence in the field of journalism, for his very first newspaper job was as a cub reporter on the rival Atlanta Georgian. Nor do we share the belief of the writer of that article—Mr. John E. Drewry—that much of Brother Trotti's success is attributable to the fact that he was the first graduate of University of Georgia's Henry W. Grady School of Journalism of which Mr. Drewry is Dean. A newspaperman is born, not made, although training in such an excellent school of journalism does help develop latent talents along that line. Brother Trotti knew from his earliest youth that he was headed for a journalistic career, and to prove it he worked for a while after leaving college as a cub reporter without pay.

He was graduated from the University of Georgia with the first bachelor of arts in journalism degree ever granted by the nation's oldest chartered state university, after having served the campus newspaper, The Red and Black, in various capacities including that of editor-in-chief. He was also associate editor of the old Georgia Cracker, a literary and humorous magazine, and was a member of the Demosthenian Literary Society.

From that payless cub position on the Georgian he rose to be city editor, being probably the youngest ever to hold such a position in the entire Hearst organization. His success there led him to New York and ultimately to a spot with the Will Hays organization, the Motion Picture Producers' and Distributors' Association. While there he married Louise Hall, Wellesley graduate and they now have two sons, aged eight and four, and a daughter who attained the ripe old age of ten months three days after Christmas. An usher at their wedding was Ralph Wray, whom many Delts will remember as the Fraternity's first travelling secretary.

Brother Trotti's duties in New York soon led him to California where, in November, 1922, he joined the staff of Fox Films, now Twentieth Century-Fox Corporation. In the past seven years he has written, either by himself or in collaboration, some thirty-five motion pictures. Among the better known ones are Alexander's Ragtime Band, In Old Chicago, Kentucky, Drums Along the Mohawk, Brigham Young, Young Mr. Lincoln, Alexander Graham Bell and Paul Muni's latest picture, not yet released—Hudson's Bay. He also wrote three of Will Rogers' pictures, including Judge Priest and Steamboat 'Round the Bend, which was the last in which that great American humorist appeared. He has just finished a story called Belle Starr and is currently writing one about the draft, to be called Rise and Shine.

Young Mr. Lincoln was one of five nominated for an Academy Award last year—a fact that gives Brother Trotti no end of pride since he is a southerner with a de-

Mother Lewis

By E. N. ZEIGLER, Beta Theta (Sewanee), '41

THURSDAY afternoon, January 9, Mrs. John S. Lewis, fraternity mother of Beta Theta, died in Nashville, Tennessee. Though she had been in ill health for several years, her death came as a shock to the chapter as well as to her innumerable friends in Sewanee. "Mother Lewis" had the affection of every student who met her, and this regard for her became part of the personality of Sewanee itself. She represented a manifestation of the charm and love necessary to gracious living. More than this, she was a mother to a fraternity—a group of boys away from home—and she filled that place for every Delt.

After the death of her husband in 1931, "Mother Lewis" came to Sewanee to live with her son, Señor Lewis, professor of Spanish at the University of the South. As Señor is an alumnus of Beta Theta and had long been the chapter adviser, his mother naturally felt that here was an opportunity to create for each Delt the atmosphere of his own home. Nor were her regular callers only Delts. Their friends came and the group, held together by her personal charm and keen wit, grew larger.

The group of admirers and regular visitors grew steadily, and with its growth came the institution of the delightful custom of having the Delts and friends from other fraternities for after-dinner coffee each day. Her home became a haven, for there they went immediately after dinner for a moment of relaxation before afternoon classes.

Smiling, laughing, and taking a lively interest in the conversation, she was the center of the gathering. All envied the place of honor beside her. Everyone wished to delight her: she was our mother. If someone took too many cookies she feigned an admonishing glance, always followed by a forgiving wink. Conversation never lagged, for if she was not laughing at our witticisms she was delighting everyone with a joke of her own. At telling jokes she was a past master.

As more came, those who had had their coffee retired to the living room. Here there were newspapers, magazines, comfortable chairs, a sense of security—such a relief from the noise of the dormitory. If the weather was good there was a sunny porch to sit upon, and often if we had no classes and could stay late "Mother Lewis" would join us. When there were dances how much pride everyone took in bringing their dates to call. She received them so graciously; and she made them feel as much at home as we ourselves.

The University of the South will feel the loss of "Mother Lewis" keenly, yet it will ever be proud that among its traditions is the memory of a truly gracious lady. Beta Theta and Delta Tau Delta will feel her loss even more keenly. She was representative of our highest ideals, and as chapter mother she strengthened these ideals in us.

I, Too, Married Adventure

Preview of an Antarctic Expedition

By JANE RICHARDS WADE, Delta Gamma

Wife of F. Alton Wade, Chi (Kenyon), '25

MY HUSBAND is an explorer. Although a university professor when in the States, he claims that is only a sideline. He was a member of Admiral Richard E. Byrd's Second Antarctic Expedition, is now in the Antarctic on the Third Expedition, and I'm sure he will be on the Fourth if there is ever a Fourth.

Expeditions can be fun even for the wives of the expeditioners! Saying goodbye to one's husband for a year and a half may sound very difficult, but the novelty and excitement that precede the actual departure seem to soften the blow. The aftermath is horrible, but I shall not go into that!

I first met Admiral Byrd in November of 1938 in Cincinnati. My husband and I went to Cincinnati, Ohio, to spend the day with him. They talked "Third Expedition" for eight hours while I meekly sat in the corner listening to my husband's plans to leave me for eighteen months. But the Admiral's vibrant personality, charm, and superb salesmanship finally convinced me that I would be committing a terrible crime if I endeavored to keep him home.

June, 1939, saw us take leave of Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, where Alton, my husband, was then teaching. We went to Washington, D. C., where formal plans for the expedition were to be made. The U. S. Government had, in the meantime, decided to sponsor the expedition, putting Admiral Byrd in charge. Alton was chosen to be Senior Scientist; that is, to be in charge of the entire scientific program and to select the scientists to accompany the expedition. We spent three weeks in Washington, freezing to death one minute in the over air-conditioned Department of the Interior Building (where I was playing secretary to my husband) and the next minute roasting in Washington's 98 degree temperature.

From Washington we drove to Chicago via Troy and Rochester, New York, stopping at the latter two towns on expedition business—something to do with scientific instruments. We were ordered to Chicago to be there during the construction of the now famous Snow Cruiser, as Alton was to be in charge of it in the Antarctic. The cruiser was designed by Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, Research Director of Armour Institute of Technology in Chicago, and member of the Second Byrd Antarctic Expedition.

Thousands of Delts will recall the two-way conversation by radio between Alton Wade and Colonel Frederick Palmer, National Librarian of Delta Tau Delta, January 30, 1935. The broadcast extended greetings from all of Delta Tau Delta to Wade who was then on the Second Antarctic Expedition.

The cruiser was being privately financed and loaned to the Government for the duration of the expedition. Alton was given an office at the Armour Research Institute, and I acted as private secretary to Alton and Dr. Poulter.

The cruiser was designed to be a mobile base. A short description of it would run something like this: 55 feet long, 12 feet 19 inches wide, 19 feet high, and painted a bright orange-red so that it can be seen at great distances on the wastes of the Antarctic. The cruiser is powered by two 150 h.p. Diesel motors which are connected to electric motors in each of the four wheels. Pneumatic rubber tires, 10 feet in diameter, which look like overgrown automobile tires, are used. Each wheel is a separate unit in itself and can be turned, raised, or lowered, independent of any of the other three.

The interior of the cruiser is very well planned. From back to front, there is first a spare tire compartment, storage room, living quarters, kitchen, engine room, machine shop, and cab. The cruiser is driven from the cab, and to an outsider it appears to be driven much like any ordinary automobile. The difference lies in the number of gears, four to be exact, and the instruments for operating the wheels individually.

The living quarters contain two double decked bunks with air-foam mattresses, a table and four chairs, and even a full length mirror so that the crew can see that they are dressed attractively for the eyes of the penguins. And to top it off, the floor is carpeted to the walls, beneath which is a thick insulation pad. The kitchen might be called a bride's dream. There is a modern white sink with even an attachment for rinsing dishes easily, two electric stoves, bright shiny aluminum pans of all types, and silverware service for eight. The floor is covered with inlaid linoleum.

The engine room and machine shop are still mysteries to me. Not being mechanically minded, all that I was told concerning it went in one ear and out the other. And that's the snow cruiser—a complete, modern, method of exploring.

The cruiser was constructed in the yards of the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing Company in Chicago—not within the factory, as it would have been necessary to take out a few walls to get it out when finished.

During the construction period, Alton spent half his time studying the mechanics of the cruiser and the other half working on the scientific program. The cruiser was completed by the tenth of October, and a private preview was held behind the walls of the Pullman Company for friends of the persons directly connected with the cruiser. Rain came down in torrents that evening, but the preview was still a success. On October 12, the cruiser was given a trial run down the Outer Drive in Chicago. People jammed the designated route, leaving barely enough room through which the cruiser could pass, and giving the Chicago police moments of terror. And I a moment of terror, too, when standing on top of the cruiser it came to an underpass on the Outer Drive which was too low for the height of the cruiser. As we rolled under the bridge, I dropped flat on top of the cruiser. A loud smash followed—the bridge had ripped off a three-foot spotlight and had taken off a bit of the top of the cab.

On October 13, we left Chicago for Boston. The cruiser's route had been mapped by the U. S. Bureau of Roads. State Police blocked off the route ten miles at a time—a very necessary procedure, as the cruiser took up the greater part of an ordinary two-lane highway. Mrs. Poulter and I accompanied the cruiser as culinary aids. On the cruiser, were the four men of the crew who were to operate it in the Antarctic: radio operator, mechanic, airplane pilot, and scientist. Two newspaper photographers, and a Diesel Motor man also came along. We stopped at the Indiana sand dunes for a trial test on rises. Because of the crowds of people milling about the dunes, the crew was unable to put the cruiser through its antics. The dunes were chosen as a testing place as the sand there closely resembles the consistency of the Antarctic snow.

The road to Boston was full of mishaps. The cruiser being constructed for Antarctic use only (where space is as abundant as air) did not fit well on the U. S. highways. Bridges were the greatest menace. I remember distinctly one bridge in Indiana that was just a hair's width too narrow. So off must come the hubcaps on all four wheels, giving two extra inches—just enough to let us through. Lost time—two hours. Coming through Van Wert, Ohio, we (I felt as if I were part of the crew) sideswiped a truck. No damage to the truck, but the jar loosened a few connections. More time lost. Torrents of rain and too many onlookers impeded our progress all the way through Indiana and into Ohio. In the meantime, Alton had been notified that he was due in Boston to check his scientific equipment. So we planned to leave the cruiser in Akron and go on to Boston by train—a much quicker mode of traveling, I assure you. But that is where we made a big mistake. We should have left sooner. For outside Delphos, Ohio, the cruiser plunged into a small creek. And who was driving at the time? Why, Alton, of course. However, the blame rests on the white line that supposedly follows the exact center of the highway. This one wandered a bit to the left (about two feet). Alton was using it as a guide and consequently the left side of the cruiser crashed into the left concrete wall of a small bridge over which we were passing. The jolt broke the steering and brake connections, allowing the cruiser to go where it pleased. It chose the adjoining brook. Not a pleasant spot, but at least soft. That cost us five days, one wheel motor, State Highway Department fees, and damages to one cornfield brought on by the thousands who came stomping in from all sides to see the cruiser. Through all this, Mrs. Poulter and I were kept busy feeding the men, and attempting (in vain, mostly) to keep the living quarters of the cruiser in some semblance of cleanliness. It was rainy and cold, and we had to drive ten miles into Delphos for food and to our hotel each night. We were dressed in slacks and old parkas from the Second Expedition, which are not at all becoming to the female form.

I was thoroughly tired of being taken for a hitchhiker! I was becoming anxious to get on to Boston where I had hopes of looking civilized again. So I heaved a sigh of relief when Alton told me that we were leaving for Boston as soon as the cruiser was back on the road.

Boston. Just the name made me all excited. Knowing it only through my grammar school history books, I was all agog to see the city in person. My error! I saw the U. S. Army Base and our apartment!

The North Star, the ship going to the West Base, was docked at the Army Base Pier. The Bear, the East Base ship, was docked at the Navy Yard. All scientific equipment was stowed on the North Star; so it was to the Army Base that we hurried every morning—and far too early in my estimation. Of the 30-odd expeditioners sailing aboard the Star, only four of their wives were present during the weeks of loading ship. We were soon put to work sorting clothes, packing food, and running odd errands. In the midst of the loading excitement, the sled dogs arrived from New Hampshire—one hundred and seventy-odd yapping, vicious, huskies. More than half of them were chained to the dock, alongside the Star, while the other half were taken to the Bear. One of the happiest moments was when our dog, Navy, veteran lead dog of the Second Expedition, who had been at the kennels in New Hampshire all summer, recognized me. He always showed such a marked preference for Alton that I expected him to turn up his nose at me. But no, I guess he felt he should show some respect for the lady who used to bring him such extra nice bones.

A bit about the North Star. It is an oil-burning, wooden ship. Being a Coast Guard Boat, it belongs to the Division of Territories and Island Possessions, Department of the Interior, and makes two trips every summer between Seattle, Washington, and Point Barrow, Alaska. As for size, I have no figures on hand, but let it suffice to say that quality and not quantity is needed in an Antarctic ship.

After filling both holds with stores, the decks were lined with oil barrels which were covered with heavy planks. On this second flooring, the snow cruiser and an airplane were placed on the forward deck, and another plane and the 70 dogs (and 15 puppies) on the after deck—the planes being loaded later in Philadelphia.

Finally, the loading came to an end, the date was set, the crowds cheered, the bands played, the Mayor said farewell, but the boat didn't sail. They had to wait for some missing pontoons which had been forgotten in the rush to get away. However, the next morning did see the North Star leave the Army base for the Navy Yards in Philadelphia where it was to pick up crated airplanes. Alton sailed with the ship. I wanted to go as far as Philadelphia, but "no women allowed" was a rule of the ship. So I took the train to Philadelphia.

I can't remember much about Philadelphia. Maybe it's because one always likes to forget sad moments. I arrived on a Friday, November 17, and the Star was to sail the twenty-first. Sunday, I started shedding tears and the town fathers, fearing for the safety of their city, thought it best that I should leave as soon as possible. So on Monday night, I was whisked away by the family, who gave me just enough time for a long look at my husband and the ship which I trust will bring him safely back to me.

He has been gone more than a year now. Time has gone quickly, for I have managed to keep busy. Then, too, we have always been able to talk to each other by short wave radio. I know that he is well and happy and that May, 1941, will see him home again.

as he saw it. I'm going to forget it." And he did.

Yes, it's hard to forgive. But now and then it is accomplished. On the first Armistice night in Paris, Sculptor George Grey Barnard got an idea for a monumental work—The Arch of Hope. He worked eighteen years; he borrowed money to be able to keep on working; he mortgaged his home, worked feverishly . . . for he was growing old.

One morning he was awakened by the ringing of his doorbell. A police car was outside. "Come with us," said the police, and when he arrived at the old abandoned carbarn that was his workshop, the heroic figures he had spent his waning years to create were broken. Vandals had smashed them with sledges; and, not content with that, they had climbed up and smeared them with tar. The beautiful white! He stood and looked at them silently. "I can repair them in two years," he said.

Later the vandals were found. Wild neighborhood boys. Barnard was told he should prosecute them, but he said, "It is all over. The damage is done. I should get nothing by punishing them. Let them go. I forgive them. I must get to work on my Arch."

How hard it is to hold out our hand to someone who has done us an injustice! What a fine thing it is, if we can do it! If we will only make the first move, show just a little giving in, how far it will take us! Can't we do it?—for there is something before us now that is more important than the choosing of the candidates. And that is getting this country ready to defend itself from peoples across the sea. Think of that and forget the bitterness of the election. Think of our country and its needs and forget the small wrongs that have been done to us.

Your country needs you; the past doesn't.

Fifty-Fourth Eastern Division Conference a Success

By JAMES ALLISON GORDON Beta Lambda (Lehigh), '42

THE Hotel Claridge, in Atlantic City, New Jersey, was the scene of the Fifty-Fourth Eastern Division Conference, December 6 and 7. After the call to order by President G. Herbert McCracken, a tribute was paid to Brother George W. Brewster, Beta Chi (Brown), '12, who passed away February 4, 1940. At the time of his death Brother Brewster was President of the Division. The remainder of the morning session was taken up with the reading of the President's report by G. Herbert McCracken.

The afternoon session started with a discussion on rushing, led by A. J. Murphy, Jr., Tau (Penn State), '38, former field secretary.

Four delegates were called on to give five-minute talks on their chapter's pledge training programs.

The final topic for Friday was a discussion on alumni relations, ably led by David K. Reeder, Omega (Pennsylvania), '12. Brother Reeder's plan was based on contact, cordiality, and correspondence.

Friday evening the delegates, alumni, officers, and wives gathered at Hackney's famous seafood restaurant for an informal feasting on lobster and other delicacies of the sea. The well-fed mob rounded out the evening by attending an ice hockey game in Convention Hall.

Saturday morning's session was opened with a discussion led by Kenneth C. Penfold, Beta Kappa (Colorado), '38, field secretary. The subject was organization.

Chapter finances were discussed by Frank M. Cornell, Omega (Pennsylvania), '28, past President of the Eastern Division. In the open discussion Paul G. Hoffman said, "Once the question of debt enters, then brotherly love decreases."

C. T. Boyd, Gamma Omega (North Carolina), '21, Vice-President of Delta Tau Delta, opened the afternoon session with a discussion on scholarship. He suggested that the first thing to do to help your scholarship is to get your eye on the ball and keep it there. Adding also, "When a man goes to college he pays his tuition for facilities and not for education. You can't buy education but procure it by using the facilities offered you." Paul G. Hoffman and Alvan E. Duerr, Chi (Kenyon), '93, Sigma (Williams), '93, past President of Delta Tau Delta, commented on the merits of scholarship and its bearing on the future of the individual.

The final session was brought to a close with the reading of the various committee reports and the unanimous election of G. Herbert McCracken as President of the Eastern Division.

During the entire Conference the discussions were open to the floor and the delegates were given opportunities to present questions, problems, plans, and opinions on the phases of the discussions that concerned their chapters.

The Conference banquet was held in the main dining room of the Hotel Claridge. Dave Reeder presided as toastmaster. The principal speakers were Alvan E. Duerr, Paul G. Hoffman, and A. Bruce Bielaski, Gamma Eta (George Washington), '04, past President of Delta Tau Delta.

cided Confederate background. It was his own story, conceived and written in its entirety by himself.

In school he took a very active interest in the Fraternity and in his senior year was president of his chapter. He attended the Karnea in Boston and is still haunted by recollections of being lost in the wilds of Bolyston Street, but his success in finding his way back to the Copley Plaza—half-starved and fearing that he would be forced to subsist on New England boiled dinners which are his pet aversion—no doubt enabled him in later years to brave the intricacies of studio streets without trepidation. Despite the fact that he has not kept in touch with the Fraternity as it exists in California, he reads THE RAINBOW avidly and frequently hears from members of his own chapter.

He likes to play tennis and still looks upon New York as the closest thing to heaven on this earth. However, he has built a home in the exclusive Holmby Hills section of Los Angeles and has a farm in Georgia to which he hopes to retire some day. But we Californians have heard that story before from transplanted easterners and southerners, particularly those who work in Hollywood and its movie studios. And now, out of fairness to Brother Trotti and to the industry of which all Southern Californians are proud, we voice an urgent appeal to all readers to refrain from sending him unpublished manuscripts. He has no connection whatsoever with the story department of the studio and therefore can be of no assistance to any ambitious young man who dreams of emulating his rise to fame as a movie writer.

MR. MEEK MARCHES ON. By Homer Croy, Gamma Kappa (Missouri), '07. Pp. 307. New York: Harper and Brothers. $2.50.

JUST the other day we read where Mrs. Roosevelt was scheduled to talk before a group of reformers who are in favor of doing away with the Southern poll tax. Before going to the conference the President's wife may have consulted the President, since, according to "Mr. Meek Marches On," Wilberforce Meek told the Chief Executive exactly what he thought of that tax. The scene in which he and the President get their polls together, so to speak, is one of the highlights of Homer Croy's novel. This story has those homespun graces which Mr. Croy cherishes, and it is amusing as well as timely.

Whoever christened Mr. Meek "Wilberforce" should have omitted the third syllable. A friendly, timid, self-effacing soul, he never suspected that he had the makings of a leader. Neither did anybody else in Joplin, Mo., where Wilberforce owned a shoe store and desired nothing beyond what he possessed—a faithful wife, a pretty daughter, a comfortable home.

As a young man on a farm, Mr. Meek hadn't minded the poll tax. Like the rest of the farmers, he worked it out on the public roads. It was "kind of a lark," he said, all getting together to repair the pike and fill in around the culverts, with a lively community dinner afterward at one of the farmhouses, just like harvesting time. But some twenty years later it suddenly struck Wilberforce that a poll tax was just one tax too many, even if it was only $6. He mildly announced that he wouldn't pay it, and so the reluctant Sheriff handed him a summons, and there was a hearing and nothing for the judge to do but sentence him to jail, with permission to take his zither with him.

When he was released, Wilberforce Meek found himself famous. And when he announced that he was going to Washington to state his case to the President, the populace of Missouri and neighboring states rallied behind him. He headed for the capital with a cavalcade of cars, and when he got back to Joplin he was elected mayor. That job gave him a different slant on taxes. Mr. Croy's yarn has pith and point.—New York Herald-Tribune.

EDMUND H. BROWN

LIGHT BEYOND. By Edmund H. Brown, Gamma Zeta (Wesleyan), '32. Pp. 290. Boston: Meador. $2.

WHEN catastrophe strikes, suddenly and unexpectedly, it may well change the whole pattern of life, leaving chaos and disillusionment where previously had existed a well-ordered certainty.

With Bruce MacFarlane it did more than that, for with the blackout of everything around which he had built his hopes and desires, there developed changes within himself that created a mental phobia against which it seemed almost useless to struggle.

Light Beyond is a story of that struggle. Bruce, having been plunged without warning from the threshold of a promising future into the depths of melancholia through physical mishap and the loss of Judith, his fiancee, wages what at times appears to be a losing fight against his infirmities and mental upheaval. In the process of overcoming this phobia, he feels the influence of many forces, each having its effect upon his conquest of self and of the anomalies of life. With new associations, a changed location, and the gradual development of an objective interest in others, he finds strength in a fresh and different outlook.

But there is more to Light Beyond than the mere struggle against a mental phobia. It is a study of conflicts, of individual problems that overlap and intertwine, of a diverse group of characters each with his own sense of values. There is Claudia MacFarlane, headstrong and self-willed; Jim, who accepts the fact that his wife is chasing a will-o'-the-wisp; Helene, proud, vain and ambitious. It is from this atmosphere that Bruce seeks escape in an effort to pull together the loose ends of his own life.

In the outward influences that work upon Bruce, we find many sharply drawn contrasts, many well-defined characters. There is a world of difference between the smug and comfortable Long Island life of the materially-minded MacFarlanes and the rough and ready, happy, day-by-day existence of Andy and Maria Russell on the small mountain ranch where Bruce seeks rehabilitation. We catch a difference in the tempo, in the point of view, in the evaluation of what is and what is not worthwhile.

Of the characters presented, none is more likeable than Andy. He is genuinely alive, and there is humor in his easygoing manner and homespun philosophy. Ethan Hunter, the family physician and Bruce's confidant is also appealing and deeply sincere. Yet perhaps the most remarkable of all is Anne Gilbert, who, though blind, finds life so full and interesting.

The tender love story that develops is shadowed by Bruce's lingering fidelity to a memory—the memory of Judith. As it unfolds, there are moments of emotional struggle, others of intense action and suspense.

Here is a first novel that is interestingly written, in a style that is fresh and light and not without individuality. There are no dragging sequences, no dull passages. Throughout, the story moves swiftly and smoothly.

An Associated Press dispatch of December 29 carried an interesting item on BRANCH RICKEY, Mu (Ohio Wesleyan), '04:

"Branch Rickey, the unpredictable trader who pulled some winter deals that amazed the baseball world, is so pleased with the looks of things he predicted today the Cardinals can win the 1941 National League pennant if their pitchers come through.

"'Mark now, I said IF, and you can make that 'if' as big as the whole page,' commented the Red-bird vice-president and general manager.

Now that that good Delt, RALPH L. CARR, Beta Kappa (Colorado), '10, has been reelected as Governor of Colorado, we shall tell below a humorous incident in connection with his campaign last fall:

"Ralph L. Carr, seeking his second term as Republican Governor of Colorado, was campaigning in northwest Colorado. His caravan was en route from Wray, Colo., to Holyoke when it pulled up in a small town and the sound truck opened up with some lively tunes.

"A crowd gathered. Mr. Carr got out of his car and started a speech. After listening to the Governor explain at some length why he should be reelected, one man called out:

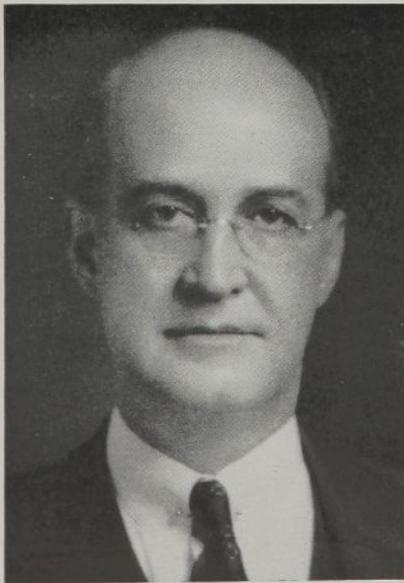

"'Aren't you out of your territory, Governor? This isn't Colorado. It's Benkelman, Neb.'

"Said the Benkelman Post and News-Chronicle in reporting the incident:

"'Governor Carr and his party then headed west in high gear to find a more fertile spot in which to hunt votes for the Colorado Governorship.'"

J. ALONZO PALMER, Beta '10, died Sunday, January 12, 1941, in Tucson, Arizona. He was there for his health and contracted the flu. "Lonz" was very active in Delt alumni affairs here, serving as secretary-treasurer of the house corporation and alumni club up until last year when he became bedfast. He was the brother of Horace "Hokey" Palmer, Beta '14. The Athens Alumni Club extends sympathy to the family.

Frank Gullum, '07, Beta chapter adviser and president of the house corporation, has been reelected president of the Athens City-County Board of Health. He is also president of the Athens City Board of Education.

THE DELTS in this area are still recalling with pleasure the All-State Banquet of November. It was a huge success, attended by over one hundred Delt. Many of these brothers had not been at a Delt function for years. It was a grand reunion.

The gathering was honored with the presence of the Vice-President of the Arch Chapter, Charles T. Boyd, and Kenneth Penfold, field secretary. Dean Raimundo De-Ovies of St. Philip's Cathedral, as principal speaker, upheld his fame for inspiring talks at Delt functions. Joe Westbrook, president of the Atlanta alumni for the second year, is to be congratulated on engineering such a splendid affair.

The Atlanta Biltmore continues to be headquarters for the regular monthly meetings of the alumni, which are being well attended.

Boston

THIS RAINBOW letter catches us right between our two winter social functions. Friday, December 13, a goodly crowd of good Delt braved superstition and convened at the University Club for a dinner and bowling party. There were some expert strike-makers present, but Dick "Smokey" Wilson proved tops, walking off with the prize with a three-string total of 335.

But our big function is in the offing. Plans are being made for a Founders Day dinner at the University Club, and a committee composed of Bob Wright, Roger Morse, Johnnie Fisher and the chapter's officers are hard at work to make it the event of the year. Although at this writing we are not yet certain of our principal speaker, the rest of the program is complete. Brother Elliot Smith, who we believe taught Edgar Bergen how it's done, will demonstrate his skill at ventriloquism and other forms of wizardry, and the Beta Mu Chorusers, Fred Waring's College Glee Club's top rivals, will add the musical touch and lead us in our vocal efforts. The largest gathering of the year is expected, with a good many undergraduates from nearby chapters planning to take in the festivities also.

We'd like to note here a change in arrangements for our weekly Thursday luncheons. They are now being held at the Dutch Treat Restaurant at 111 Milk Street, a more centrally located spot. Besides, our former eating place is out of business—we hope we didn't let them down!

Sorry we don't have much in the way of "personal" items to add to this letter. It caught us rather flat-footed in that respect, but we'll do better next time. We would like to throw one bouquet, however, and real hard! We're most pleased to have the Fraternity honor one of our members, Joe Reynolds, by electing him a vice-president of the Eastern Division. Not only does Joe perform most ably as chapter adviser of Beta Mu, but he was also instrumental in getting our Boston Alumni Chapter on its feet. We're proud of the Fraternity's recognition of his loyalty and wish him every success in his new job.

Chicago

THE OUTSTANDING events of our alumni year-to-date have been reported in the previous issues of THE RAINBOW and are now historical data with reference to the Chicago Alumni Chapter. Since our last letter, we have had the pleasure of meeting and having visit us, many of our Brother Delts from the East and West Coasts who were passing through Chicago.

Our chapter president, C. R. "Lefty" Miles, has been promoting many things to the interest of Chicago Delts. Among his most recent ideas, came one outstanding. Each week, on Monday, we meet for luncheon in Harding's Restaurant, 7th Floor The Fair Store, Adams and Dearborn Streets, at 12:00 o'clock throughout the year. As a consolation drawing at these meetings, each man who is present when his number is called is given a one-year subscription to THE RAINBOW. Those who have won subscriptions are: George F. Kahle, Armour, Donald W. Snell, Amherst, and Merrill M. Dwinell, Northwestern.

Later on, it was decided to take the attendance assessment for the month of December, 1940, as a donation, half of which was given to the "Neediest Families Fund" of the Chicago Daily News and the other half to the "Goodfellows Fund" of the Chicago Daily Tribune. This was done as an act of charity due the season.

All attention and effort is now being directed to plans and preparations for the informal dinner, at the Union League Club, of the Chicago Alumni Chapter in connection with the Northern Division Conference, on Saturday noon, March 1, 1941. President Miles called a director's meeting last month and committees are now active on an attractive program. PLEASE, ALL DELTS TAKE NOTE: We are combining our Founder's Day Dinner celebration, due March 7, 1941, to coincide with the Conference on March 1, 1941. A new basic idea is being planned for the speaking program that will bear ALL Delts' attention everywhere.

The only other function of the Chicago Alumni Chapter was the annual Undergraduate Christmas and New Year Luncheon held on December 30, 1940, at our regular weekly meeting place, Harding's Restaurant, Seventh Floor, The Fair Store. One hundred sixteen invitations were sent out to undergraduates living in the Chicago Area, twenty-eight of whom are residents of Chicago, from schools representing 27 Delt chapters.

Our plans have gone ahead to capitalize on Herb Bartling's proposition to interest young Delt graduates in his respective alumni chapter. The response is gratifying.

We have among our members, Francis F. Patton, Chairman of the Distinguished Service Chapter Committee, and member of the 1941 Karnea at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, Committee. Let's produce a large Karnea delegation from Chicago for "Fran."

We are anticipating the presence of many of the alumni who receive this issue of THE RAINBOW at OUR Founder's Day Dinner for the Northern Division Conference, March 1, 1941—see you then!

VERNON A. STURM

Cincinnati

THE Cincinnati Alumni Chapter staged its annual Christmas Party at noon, December 24, at The Cincinnati Club. Festivities got under way when the egg-nog, provided by Tom Grace, our perennial horn of plenty, was brought on. This year Tom supplied music with the 'nog, music swung out by an exceptionally able young accordionist who was equally at home playing the "Sextette From Lucia" or "Jennie With the Light Brown Hair," eight to the bar.

Thirty-five of the brothers enjoyed a turkey luncheon and an afternoon of bowling and reminiscence. "Dad" Pumphrey postponed his departure on a Caribbean cruise in order to be on hand, and several of the younger Delts, in Cincinnati for the holidays, attended.

Bill Burkhart brought his son, Bill, Jr., who is a senior at Ohio Wesleyan. Fred Hall corralled all three of his Delt offspring, Fred, Jr., T. J., and Oline Hall. Russ Bernhard, now taking postgraduate work in medicine at the University of Iowa, said he was attending the first Delt Christmas Party of his career. There's nothing like a year or two away from home to get the boys out, is there, Russ?

Other "youngsters" at the party were Bob Dhonau, Bob Williams, Bob Wuerdeman, Charlie Sulan, John Maycox, Jule Hessel, and Ed Hessel. Ed is now a member of the Navy Air Corps, stationed at Pensacola. Jack Boyle is traveling out of Indianapolis for Wilson Sporting Goods Co.

AL CLARK

Cleveland

THE BIG event on the Delt horizon at this season of the year in Cleveland is the annual meeting, election of officers, and banquet celebrating the initiation at Zeta chapter. Following tradition, this event will be held February 22, on the same day that the Zeta actives place the Square Badge on a fine group of newly initiated Delts. The party will be held at the Alcazar Hotel, and any Delts who may be within striking distance of Cleveland are cordially invited and urged to attend. This particular function serves as a round-up for Delts in this part of the State and this year we have promises to attend from Bill Moon at Port Clinton, O. P. Moon of Lorain, Judge Ray Speers of Sandusky, Judge C. W. Portman of Massillon, Roy Petty of Warren, Joe Higley of Youngstown, C. D. Russell of Akron, Clem Frank and Tom Gerbert of Columbus, and Dave Shannon of Cincinnati. The Cleveland gang also has hopes of seeing Ray Carroll migrate northward from Deer Park, Owen Orr trek in from the west, Harry Green, RAINBOW Editor and Herb Bartling, that grand guy who is our Alumni Secretary, hop into Cleveland from wherever they may be camped at that time.

Ray Hyre, H. C. Hopkins and Harry Hoffman were named by President Joe Wood as the nominating committee. This comparatively honest group of outstanding young Delts will hand pick a slate of officers for the coming year and, as is the custom and tradition, railroad them into office. Bill Hecker and Howard "Jim" Crow constitute the program committee for the annual meeting. Both Hecker and Crow have had their hands in this sort of thing for many years and will undoubtedly produce an interesting evening for the assembled brothers.

Our weekly noon luncheon meetings have been well attended, and once each month we have enjoyed a speaker. One of the best talks we have had in recent months was given January 10, by our own John Franklin Cover. John, who has been in the finance and banking business for many years and is connected with the Morris Plan Bank, gave a history of that institution and the manner in which it operates. Other speakers brought to us by our committee, which is headed by Bill Hecker, included a former Assistant U. S. District Attorney and a Public Relation counsel for the Federal Reserve Bank. This system of having a speaker once each month has been a worth-while addition to our meeting program.

The usual number of social events has been on our calendar, including a party for the Zeta actives, a Christmas party at Zeta chapter and the Christmas formal.

In the November elections Tom Herbert was reelected as Attorney General of Ohio. His vote was so outstanding that he is considered the logical candidate for governor of Ohio come next election time.

And now let's take a look and see what some of the individual members of the chapter have been doing since we last got together:

Of prime interest and importance is the fact that Bill Ruedy became the father of a son December 3, 1940. Young "Robert William" came into the world at 6 pounds 13½ ounces, but we'll wager that by the time he takes his dad's place on the Western Reserve University football team he'll be tipping the beam in the heavyweight class.

Gus Handerson gave up his connection with the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce and is going on an extended vacation in Florida.

Mark Egan resigns as manager of the Cleveland Convention and Visitors' office and goes to Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada, to manage his own hotel.

Windsor Kellogg, Zeta '22, was elected Probate Judge at Medina at the last election. Another Delt, William G. Batchelder, Jr., Mu '36, was named as County Prosecutor in Medina.

Chris Bannick, Clerk of the Cleveland City Council, has been lauded by the Citizens League and the Cleveland papers as doing the finest job ever done by a Cleveland Clerk of Council.

Ivan Davenport, our treasurer, is doing cost auditing for the government on the defense project at Ravenna.

Cleveland Delts are quite puffed up over the Western Reserve University football victory at El Paso, Texas, on New Year's Day, and particularly proud of the three Delts, Waggle, Eros and Noland, who did great work in that game.

Bill Hecker was recently elected president of the Board of Education in Euclid.

Paul F. "Sandy" MacGregor has been elected Worshipful Master of his Masonic lodge.

David Thomas, Beta Eta '22, has arrived in Cleveland and taken his place in the alumni chapter.

Harry Hoffman was elected a vice-chairman of the Lakewood Round Table of the Cleveland Real Estate Board.

. . . Well, as usual, we could go on and on telling you about the boys in Cleveland, but right now we have a better idea. If you are interested in the Cleveland picture, why not plan to be here with us at our annual meeting, February 22. Do that and you'll get to see every Delt in these parts, for that is one soiree that every one attends.

I guess that just about winds up this journal, except to say that we enjoy reading THE RAINBOW, that we like those swell letters from Herb Bartling, that we are all enjoying our alumni chapter activities and invite any Delt in the Cleveland area to take part in any or all of our functions.

RANDALL M. RUHLMAN

Columbus

A SHORT time ago we heard Brother (Colonel) "Ted" Haley, Beta Omega '15, was in Columbus again, but before we could get a chance to get him to come to our meetings, he had received orders to leave for Camp Beauregard, La. The way they are moving the Colonels around makes some of us young alumni wonder where we will finally light.

Undaunted for the present, our club is planning a Smoker at the Army & Navy Club (mind you) the 16th of January, with some Delt movies and a few informative talks on Ohio State University. We expect a big turnout and a wonderful time.

RICHARD J. HEER

Denver

WITH THE holiday season over (whew!), Denver alums will get down to business with the first meeting of '41, January 23. Brother Phillip Van Cise, who is attending a meeting of the Arch Chapter in Indianapolis, will return in time for our meeting to report on all the dope from headquarters. Brother Van Cise will be able to give us first-hand reports of Delt activities throughout the nation.

Plans will be laid for the next Delt activity of major importance, the Founder's Day Banquet and the annual election of officers to be held in the near future. Brother "Cac" Hubbard, head football coach at Denver University will show movies of the D. U.-C. U. Thanksgiving game as well as his pictures of the D. U.-Hawaii game. The boys will again have to go through those agonizing few minutes when in the last period of the game D. U. tied Colorado by kicking a field goal. Score: 3-3. The Beta Kappa football players will be the guests of honor and the actives will furnish some peppy entertainment. (We hope!)

At this writing and almost this very hour, Brother Ralph L. Carr, Beta Kappa '10, is being inaugurated for his second term as Governor of the State of Colorado. The Governor, a Republican, in spite of his support and strong recommendation of Willkie was reelected by a great majority. He's truly a great citizen, and I'm sure all of his Brother Deltis are proud to wish him every success throughout his new term of office.

Another distinguished Denver Delt, L. Allen Beck, has just been honored by his election as President of the President's Round Table. The membership of the Round Table is made up of presidents and past presidents of service clubs of Colorado including the Chamber of Commerce and Junior Chamber.

THE DELTS are busying themselves these days with preparations for the inauguration of the new Delta Shelter, February 21. This large new stone structure will be one of six new fraternity houses in the Lawrence College quadrangle. The new house will offer an old Delt a hearty welcome, and the active chapter has already extended an open door policy to all Delt alumni. We'll drink many a toast to the whole Fraternity, and particularly to the success of the active and alumni chapters of Delta Mu. You brother Deltis from other sections of the country—when you're driving around this part of the country, look us up. Drop in at the new Delta Shelter—you'll feel at home, for the same Delt spirits prevail here as in your local chapter. We'll be expecting a few visitors, so don't disappoint us.

CLIFF BURTON

Indianapolis

THE Indianapolis Alumni Association continues to keep itself occupied with the usual winter events.

The alumni association attempts to hold three or four evening get-togethers during the winter for the benefit of the alumni who are unable to attend the weekly noon meetings. First in the series was held early in December at the Indianapolis Athenaeum with an excellent turnout. Following dinner Mr. Alva H. Wynkoop, Beta Beta '18, editor of the Lebanon Reporter, famous for his after-dinner speeches, entertained the guests with his usual abundance of satire and wit. The alumni were further entertained with several reels of pictures taken at the last Indianapolis Speedway Race. This was unusually interesting to the alumni because of the fact that an Indianapolis man, Wilbur Shaw, who is known to many of the alumni, won the race. Following the program, the usual card games were enjoyed by the members.

The election of officers was held the second week in December with the following men being elected: Jess Pritchett, Jr., Beta Zeta '32, president; Ernie Miller, Beta Alpha '27, and Joe Morgan, Beta Zeta '89, vice-presidents; Bowman Downey, Beta Psi '37, secretary; and Donald B. White, Epsilon '37, treasurer. These officers will serve for a period of a year.

On December 20 the annual Christmas party was held at the Columbia Club. As has been the custom for a number of years, each man brought a 10-cent gift, preferably non-sensical. This party always brings out many Deltis who find it impossible to attend regular weekly meetings. There was an unusual abundance of Christmas cheer and a good time was had by all.

Plans are now being made for the annual Founder's Day Celebration to be held the 14th of March. Committees are rapidly getting organized and it is the hope of the officers to make this celebration an unusual success. Ernie Miller, Beta Alpha '27, has been appointed general chairman for the event. Fred Tucker, Beta Beta '08, a prominent Indianapolis alumnus, will be toastmaster and Paul G. Hoffman, Gamma Alpha '12, President of $\Delta T \Delta$, will be the main speaker. Both the alumni and the actives are looking forward to his sage words of counsel and advice concerning fraternity affairs.

The five active chapters in the state, at Indiana, Purdue, Butler, and DePauw Universities and, last but not least, Wabash College will be represented 100 per cent and will be in suspense until after the Indianapolis Alumni Foundation award has been made to the outstanding chapter scholastically for the last year. This award carries with it a plaque and a check for $50.00. Each of the active chapters will perform with their usual excellent stunts. The banquet will be followed by dancing with an outstanding Indiana University band furnishing the music.

Eugene Hibbs, Gamma Tau '33, former field secretary for $\Delta T \Delta$ and now locally employed, was married January 10, to Miss Nancy Socwell of this city. Gene, with his close fraternity affiliation over a period of years and his very fervent Delta spirit, is one of the most loyal Indianapolis alumni and has the congratulations and best wishes from all of the alumni.

Richard Savidge, Beta Psi '37, and Beta Eta '39, has recently become affiliated with The Inland Container Corporation. Dick is one of the most outstanding Beta Psi graduates of recent years. On finishing his undergraduate work, he was assigned as resident advisor to Beta Eta at the University of Minnesota where he received his master's in the University's School of Business Administration. We are looking forward to the time when Dick may be able to attend our weekly meetings more regularly and take a more active part in our affairs.

With all of these events it must not be forgotten that our alumni association meets every Friday at the Columbia Club. At any time that a Delt is visiting in Indianapolis, we will all be glad to meet him and do everything in our power to give him the old Hoosier welcome.

BOWMAN DOWNEY

Kansas City

WE ARE fortunate in being able to hold our annual Founder's Day Banquet during the Regional Conference of thirteen active chapters in this area, which will take place at Lawrence, Kansas, February 14 and 15.

This year's celebration will be held at the Kansas City Club, Friday night, February 14. Unless something unforeseen develops, we should have the largest attendance we have ever experienced. A program equal to the occasion is being prepared and will be assembled under the able generalship of Brother Charles L. Carr, who has seen service in this line several times before.

FRANK B. SIEGRIST

Los Angeles

THE ANNUAL election of officers was held by the Los Angeles Alumni Chapter in December, and the following is a list of those who will hold the reins for the year 1941: president, Henry E. Rivers, Beta Rho '12; secretary, Frank A. Zimmerman, Gamma Upsilon, Delta Iota '31; assistant secretary, Earl C. Adams, Beta Rho '16; treasurer, Roy P. Crocker, Beta Omega, Beta Omicron '15; vice-president, M. Philip Davis, Delta Iota '27; vice-president, John Krehbiel, Gamma Tau '29; vice-president, Gordon Carey, Omicron, Delta Iota '39; and cantor, John W. Twelvetrees, Beta Rho '33.

As the first official act of the new administration, the regular weekly luncheon on New Year's Eve was held in honor of Stanford. Eighteen Beta Rho undergraduates, who were in town for the Rose Bowl game, attended and enlivened the party with some of the best singing heard in these parts. Their presence swelled the total attendance to 76, 22 of whom were Beta Rho men. A wassail bowl was provided as fitting to the occasion, and President Jepson, of the Western Division, played the part of Lord High Executioner.

Owen Orr tells us that one of the Delta Iota pledges, who maintains an amateur radio station, succeeded in establishing contact with the Byrd Expedition in Little America for the purpose of sending the Holiday Greetings of the Los Angeles Deltas to Alton Wade, Chi, a member of the expedition. Wade was several hundred miles from the base aboard the snow cruiser at the time, and the message had to be relayed to him from the base. The same chap, whose name we are purposely not mentioning because of F. C. C. regulatory reasons, sent greetings to Lt. Col. Harry G. Montgomery and George Thompson, both in Honolulu, and both of Beta Gamma.

The Los Angeles Alumni Chapter sends New Year's greetings to all Deltas everywhere, and cordially invites them to attend, when in Los Angeles, the regular luncheon every Tuesday at the University Club, or the monthly dinner every second Thursday at the Delta Iota Chapter House.

FRANK A. ZIMMERMAN

New York

NEW YORK Deltas in force attended the National Interfraternity Conference Banquet in New York, November 29, 1940, at the Commodore Hotel. The Conference banquet was a tremendous success and it was reported that it broke all records of attendance for any banquet in New York City. Deltas were well represented at this meeting and three prominent Deltas were at the speakers' table. They were Dr. Henry M. Wriston, President of Brown University, Alvin E. Duerr and A. Bruce Bielaski. Dr. Wriston gave an inspiring address on the need for democracy's taking an aggressive stand in support of its principles. Alvin Duerr was presented with a medallion which was conferred by the National Interfraternity Conference as its award for distinguished service to youth through the American college fraternity.

Dave Reeder, who has been secretary of the National Interfraternity Conference for the past year, has now become vice-chairman of the Conference. Dave has rendered distinguished service to our alumni chapter here in New York and his elevation to a position of increased trust and responsibility in the Conference was to be expected.

Plans are under way for the Annual Founder's Day Banquet. It will be held early in March, probably Friday, March 7, 1941, and notice of the date will be broadcast soon. The Founder's Day Banquet is an outstanding Delt event and all alumni should attend.

Our monthly luncheons continue on the third Thursday in each month. They are held at Stouffers' Restaurant on Fifth Avenue between 44th and 45th Streets, at 12:30. We were happy to welcome three new Deltas to our last monthly luncheon; they are H. K. Murphy who is with the National Industrial Conference Board in New York, George R. Luxemburger, and Stewart Choate who is with the advertising firm of Newell Emmett Co.

JOHN M. MONTSTREAM

Omaha

THE Omaha Alumni Association of $\Delta T \Delta$ will resume fortnight meetings this month, following a lapse of several weeks. The first meeting in the 1941 series will be a luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce at which from twenty to thirty members are expected.

At this first session, arrangements will be completed for the annual Omaha banquet for the actives of Beta Tau who will come up from Lincoln for the occasion. This Omaha dinner for actives has a different objective than the annual spring banquet at Lincoln. At the Omaha affair, the design is to acquaint all actives, particularly "squabs," with all Delt alumni in Omaha, many of whom, as graduates of other chapters, do not customarily attend the Beta Tau reunions.

The last time the Omaha Deltas have been able to mingle with the undergraduates was on the occasion of the rushee picnic, sponsored by the alumni chapter, as a rush pre-veue for potential "squabs" from Omaha high schools. This event, held the last week in August, was attended by twenty sponsoring Omaha alumni with eleven guest rushees and twelve guest actives from Lincoln. The scene of the picnic was Lawrence and Charles Ortman's "dude farm" a few miles out of Omaha. It was unique in that it was held just prior to and during the heaviest rainfall ever recorded in a four-hour period by the weather bureau in Douglas County. The rain broke up a spectacular softball game and concentrated all picnickers and all equipment in the farmhouse living room. The cramped conditions were ideal for close work on the rushees. Only one alumnus, Brother Allyn Moser, got his car away under its own power. All the other brothers were ingloriously snaked up the long grade to the highway at the heel of a kind-hearted farmer's tractor. The profit-and-loss sheet for the nautical picnic was excellent as evidenced by formal pledging during official rush week in Lincoln the following month.

ROBERT H. MANLEY

Philadelphia

THE PHILADELPHIA alumni resumed their monthly luncheons the week after the Eastern Division Conference in December. A group of Delts from Philadelphia attended the Conference and banquet and all were well repaid for their trip to the shore. Some of those attending were Herb Rader, Tau '09, Jordan Gauthier, Tau '14, Bob Ferguson, Tau '32, Dr. Walter Cornell, Omega '97, Samson McDowell, Omega '01, Ed. Elliot, Omega '99, Frank Cornell, Omega '28, and Jack Doriss, Omega '33, who was Chairman of the Convention Committee.

At our January meeting election of officers was held. Ed. Rankin, Nu '12, was reelected president for his second term and Charles C. Gray, Upsilon '33, began his fourth term. The secretary-treasurer was detained and missed the business meeting and was therefore defenseless.

Karl B. Winsmore, Upsilon '33, is planning to be married February 22. Jim Harper, Upsilon '32, and the writer will be ushers and several other Delts will probably be on hand.

CHARLES C. GRAY

Pittsburgh

PROBABLY one of the outstanding events of the entire year, insofar as $\Delta T \Delta$ in Pittsburgh is concerned, was the Annual Church Services at Trinity Cathedral.

This year we had about 300 alumni and undergraduates present, which definitely establishes this as a tradition. Following the service and during the social period, Norman MacLeod presented to N. R. H. Moor, the Dean of Trinity Cathedral, a Citation to the Distinguished Service Chapter.

The Pittsburgh Delts have been taking a very active part in rushing activities among the graduate chapters. Plans are now under way for the Annual Founder's Day Dinner.

Portland (Maine)

DUE TO the wave of so-called "flu," meetings of our chapter have not been very well attended this past couple of months but we are carrying on.

Naturally, many of us who were members of Gamma Nu are greatly interested in the rebuilding of the Shelter at Maine and this is taking up much of our time.

Plans are being discussed relative to staging a Field Day for the early part of summer, when we hope to entertain several good prospects for the Fraternity.

L. R. MOORE

Portland (Oregon)

WE HAVE had what I consider a successful year in our alumni group, and the activities of the last month or two have been particularly interesting. We gave our Annual Christmas Dance, December 28, and had a very good time. The "flu" epidemic that we have had for the last month or so held the crowd down to only average size, but we made up for it in the fun we had. We certainly have a fine group of people.

Our annual election of officers and planning for the coming year took place October 23, at which time Bob Rankin, one of the longest and hardest working men in the group, was elected president. I was reelected secretary, mainly because they couldn't make out my notes for the last year. During our night of election, besides the fun we had, we arranged some of our activities for the coming year.

We have many little details that may not be interesting to all readers, but one of our most successful forms of entertainment and getting together are our monthly bridge parties, which are part of every year's activities. I mention this, because we find that we can always get a good group of Delts together for an informal social gathering like our bridge parties. The other alumni chapters may be doing the same thing we are. If they are not, they might give it a trial. Everyone takes his turn in giving the monthly party, and since five or six members have built new homes this year, we expect the parties to be better than ever.

The annual Honorary Initiation and Banquet for undergraduates, which is given alternately by the Seattle and Portland alumni groups, is this year being given by Seattle, February 8, and promises to live up to all standards we have built in the past. I say this because we have an especially high class of men to be initiated this year, and the six or eight men to be initiated by this special group should consider themselves highly honored. As you probably already know, the banquet is going to be honored with the presence of Paul G. Hoffman, our National President. We consider it a great privilege to have him at this function and hope to have an especially large turnout.

There are many things that have taken place about each individual fellow that I would like to write in here now, but will have to save them until next time when I have more room.

The Portland Alumni Chapter feels that $\Delta T \Delta$ is entering one of its greatest years, and we are going to do our level best to prove that.

JAMES H. ZILKA

Rochester

THE ROCHESTER Delts held a very successful dinner and bridge at the Locust Hill Country Club in December. The only bad feature of it was that our able secretary Charles Harper announced he was leaving town to go into the Aircraft Industry. Charlie has been very active since he came to Rochester and we surely will miss him and his good work.

RICHARD A. WILBUR

San Diego

THERE IS NO news of the San Diego Alumni Chapter, as such, for National Defense activities which have been under way in San Diego for the last six months have had so many of the alumni so busy that even a holiday meeting was out of the question. Street-corner conversations and an occasional informal luncheon or so have provided what there is to report on individuals.

Lynn E. "Bob" Rogers, Stanford '37, has swapped his Union Oil Company job for a commission in the United States Army Air Corps.

Gaylord Parkinson, Northwestern '19, who stuck in the regular army as a captain for several years after World War I, is reported as returning to the outfit in the near future.

Other Delts on our alumni roster are reported as having been called back to duty in the army, navy or marine corps, but verification in specific instances is lacking.

Ted Devereaux, Iowa State '20, is the owner-builder in housing projects under way for the use of service families at the Naval Training Station and Fort Rosecrans.

Harry Malm, Colorado '24, is interested in similar properties nearer to the center of things and intended primarily for workers in the aircraft industries.

Guerdon Price, Wisconsin '09, who operates a number of San Diego's most substantial business buildings reports 100 per cent occupancy in all of his properties.

As a matter of fact, the armed services and the huge aircraft factories are bringing new residents to San Diego by the thousands each week; so rapidly that it is literally impossible to house them. Some 60,000 have arrived in this city within the last three months; 30,000 more are due by March 1.

The point with us is that in this number—among all the officers, the engineers, the college-trained men—there must be a due proportion of Delta Tau Delta alumni. If any such read this, or if any chapter secretaries have San Diego addresses for alumni, a card carrying the essential information and mailed to the writer will get us in touch with them. We'd like to have their addresses because we hope to stage an all-out Delt dinner this spring.

This brings to mind another item, reiteration of an earlier complaint. During the current school year a half dozen alumni have asked, again, why active chapter secretaries cannot report on or at least acknowledge recommendations on potential Delts sent to them for their rushing committees. In as many instances even follow-up inquiries have been ignored. In two cases, inquiries made through families of the boys recommended have established that chapters to whom such letters were written never so much as got in touch with the freshmen in question. We don't know the answer; maybe someone else does.

Last outfit in the world with any right to expect anyone to hit 1000 per cent is the San Diego Alumni Chapter. To be frank, we're too lazy to answer a lot of our own mail.

But, this lackadaisical business about the freshmen makes suckers of us, not only in the eyes of the boys, but also in those of their parents and the prep-school executives upon whom we rely for much of our information.

Maybe we ought to rehearse our act.

STUART N. LAKE

San Francisco

EDITOR'S NOTE: We found Edwin H. Clark away on a business trip when we sent out our call for alumni chapter letters for the February number. Our follow-up notice finally caught him in New Orleans, and he sent an air mail S. O. S. explaining his inability to report this time. Ed is a good reporter, and we are sorry that his notes are not included, but he promises to make up for it in the May number. His letter reported that he visited the Tulane chapter while in New Orleans, which would be a good reason for excusing him this time. The undergraduate chapters are always glad to have alumni visitors, and we suggest that other traveling Delts make it a point to visit an undergraduate chapter whenever they have the opportunity.

Seattle

CHUCK PARKER, Gamma Mu '31, is the proud father of a 9 lb. 14 oz. boy. Norwood Nickols, '34, followed Chuck two days later with a second boy. Bruce Pickering, '31, has a second daughter.

Floyd Churchill, '40, takes the marriage vows February 8, and Don Christenson, '38, was married to Iverne Perry, Chi Omega, earlier this month.

The alumni committee is still in a huddle, but will soon announce the Robert M. "Pop" Dyer Scholarship winner.

If the editor of THE RAINBOW would look a little more closely at the pictures he publishes, he would have recognized the "Joe—last name not given" on page 26 of the November, 1940, number as Joe Baldridge, his Gamma Mu brother and classmate of '30.

Ed Campbell, '24, who has been in every $\Delta T \Delta$ office in Seattle from chapter president while in school to chapter adviser, to alumni president, to board of trustees of the house corporation, to president of The Rainbow Society, is the newly appointed Western Division vice-president. He fills the place of Bob Dyer, who moved to Alaska. What next, Ed?

Lane Summers, Delta '11, is the new chairman of the alumni supervisory committee and acting chapter adviser at Gamma Mu chapter.

FRANK KNOWLTON

St. Louis

EARL PAGE, president of Cornelli Seed Company, appeared on a nationwide broadcast over CBS, November 23. This was in connection with a new, lintless cotton seed. Two dirt farmers, a processor, and another agricultural expert discussed this new seed, the process of obtaining it and what it meant to the cotton grower. Earl is a Missouri University Delt.

December 19 the boys gathered at LeChateau out in the county and went to town with the annual Christmas party. There was a nice crowd out, the meal was excellent and the impromptu entertainment and "bull session" were enjoyed by everyone present.

Plans are now being made to celebrate Founder's Day, March 7, with tentative plans calling for a dinner date with the wives or girl friends, followed by some appropriate ceremony, and then a little dancing and general merry-making.

Don Holt, Gamma Omega, had the pleasure of seeing the Duke-Carolina game during the football season just passed, and lent a few hearty cheers as Carolina made news by scoring one of the season's upsets. Don will be remembered as one of the Carolina footballers of a few years ago.

Another note on Earl Page, Gamma Kappa, reminds us that Earl was elected to the Board of Directors of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and is also a member of the Agricultural Board.

Worthy of special mention is Paul Johnson's promoting and handling of the annual Christmas party. This is the first time in a good many years that Paul has done this and from the success it looks as though he might have a permanent job.

G. H. BUCHANAN, JR.

Savannah

ON NOVEMBER 7, 1940, Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of Washington, one of the senior Bishops of the Methodist Church, was entertained at a luncheon by the local alumni chapter. Bishop Hughes is the oldest living past national president of the Fraternity having served from 1899 to 1901. He was also at one time editor of THE RAINBOW. James H. Cobb, Jr., vice-president of the Southern Division, welcomed Bishop Hughes in behalf of the local chapter. The Bishop responded with an informal talk.

The attendance of our semi-monthly meetings has been somewhat depleted as I. C. Helmly, Jr., R. A. Redmond, J. W. Hesse, Jr., and J. W. Blount, all active members of the Savannah Alumni Chapter, are now spending some time in the service. All of these men are commissioned officers.

HERMANN W. COOLIDGE

Spokane

NEW DELT pledges in Spokane got acquainted with the local alumni during Christmas vacation at an alumni luncheon December 31, at the Desert Hotel Oasis. The get-together, arranged by Ben Lindsay, Gamma Mu '43, was well attended. This was our first function since our rushing party at the Spokane Country Club last fall, when Idaho and Washington actives and local alumni entertained rushees for both chapters. The affair was such a rousing good time, with Merle Emry, Beta Rho '30, sparking it as toastmaster, that we are already planning at least one rushing party for the coming fall, to be held at the Spokane City and University Club. The five Delt pledges now from Spokane will swell our ranks considerably when they are initiated, and will help to keep us much more active than we have been in the past.

LYLE J. M. MEEHAN

Topeka

OUR TOPEKA chapter held a very successful dinner meeting at the Union Pacific Dining Room, December 22. In spite of snow and ice we had an attendance of twenty-two members and no visitors. Brother Bert E. Mitchner gave a swell address on being a Delt and an American. Brother Floyd Strong led us in singing some of the old songs.

We plan to hold our next evening meeting either the first or second Friday in February for our first get-together of 1941.

C. G. BLAKELY, III

Tulsa

THE ANNUAL election of the Tulsa Alumni Chapter of Delta Tau Delta was held at the monthly meeting, December 13. The following officers were elected for 1941: Howard Newman, Oklahoma, president; Ralston P. Edmunds, California, first vice-president; Lawrence Ries, Iowa State, second vice-president; and Burdette C. Smith, Oklahoma, secretary-treasurer.

The Tulsa Alumni Chapter is considering a state-wide Founder's Day Banquet and is also making plans for its annual Easter Dance.

BURDETTE C. SMITH

Wilmington

ON FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1940, we entertained at lunch several of the undergraduates of the Lehigh chapter who were then home for the Thanksgiving holidays (old-fashioned date). At that time plans were discussed for our first Annual Christmas luncheon for Delt undergraduates to be held on Monday, December 30, at the Hob Tea Room. Gene Wilfert, Upsilon, was named general chairman and he immediately selected a committee to assist him. Walter J. Laird, Beta Iota, was made honorary chairman.

Other than introducing the undergraduates and a few other words by the chairman, the meeting was thrown open to discussion of ways and means whereby we might be of aid to active chapters, particularly in connection with rushing.

Cordial invitations were extended to us by the nearby active chapters to be their week-end guests from time to time.

As soon as Jimmy Otis, super-active bursar, had collected the "ante" from the alumni, the meeting was promptly adjourned.

Ned Lewis, Gamma Epsilon, whose business brought him to Wilmington several days a week the earlier part of 1940 and was instrumental in the reestablishment of the alumni chapter, is now located at 51 Auburn Road, West Hartford, Connecticut. Inasmuch as his work for the Coca-Cola Company keeps him pretty well tied up between Atlanta, Georgia, and New York City, his trips to Wilmington, sad to relate, are few and far between.

Three of the group, Bob Hollister, Upsilon, Henry Sheward, Beta Omicron, and Richard Tobey, Beta Mu, will all be inducted into the Army by the time this issue goes to press, and needless to say we're sorry to lose them.

GEORGE W. COCHRAN, JR.

THE DELT CHAPTERS

Alpha—Allegheny

THE BOYS at Alpha have had a successful season this year. In the line of house improvements we have a new recreation room in the cellar, which was dedicated as the Choctaw Room in memory of Col. Lewis Walker and was made possible largely through the generosity of Mrs. Walker and the efforts of "Cappie" Cappeau, '09. The heating plant also boasts a new stoker, a definite improvement on cold mornings. Both are agreed, by all who have seen them, to be major improvements.

Our pledge class is a swell group of boys. The Pledge Dance in October was a very successful event as was the Fall Formal, held December 7. Harry Shepard and John Donahey, well known to the Delta Beta boys, were the main spark-plugs in the decorating for the Formal; Shepard's experience in stage lighting serving in good stead for wiring, lighting, etc.

This fall John Cramer was elected president upon the resignation of George Evert. In the regular election of treasurer, Tom Bader succeeds Bill Morris.

Eight of the boys were on the football squad this fall, five of them earning letters. Ralph Marasco was voted a position on several all-opponent teams, as well as captain of next year's varsity. Two of the boys also received numerals for Freshman football. The intramural volleyball team came out on top and we expect to defend successfully our title in basketball, held unbroken for five successive years.

As social chairman, John Donahey has inaugurated the practice of entertaining the sororities on Saturday afternoons—in the form of tea dances. Radio parties on other Saturday nights help to fill out our social program.

We are all looking forward to the coming semester with the hope that it will be as successful as the one just past.

TED SAMPSON

Editor's Note: This department includes reports from all undergraduate chapters except Iowa, Butler, Virginia, California and Kentucky. Our aim was one hundred per cent representation but we missed.

Beta—Ohio

SCHOLASTICALLY, Beta for the second successive time led all $\Delta T \Delta$. Now under the leadership of President Steve Fuller, Phi Beta Kappa, Beta men have finished well over the Ohio University all-men's average during the last six semesters.

In the field of athletics, the chapter has three varsity football men, Johnny Zaharndt, right end and place kicker for the Bobcats; Bill Heintz, sophomore fullback; and Jack Clark, reserve sophomore end. Sophomore Harley Hosch has been showing well with the varsity basketball squad to date, while Hank Davis and Bill Howard are senior managers of Ohio's two major sports, football and basketball.

Intramurally, Beta again is leading the race for the athletic trophy by virtue of an undefeated football season. Karl Schmidt, Bill Kursel, Gene Sample, and Tom Morgan were selected on the all-intramural team. In basketball to date, the active team is undefeated while the pledges have dropped but one game. At the close of the football season, Schmidt named Dick Foster his successor as intramural manager.

In honoraries, the House has excellent representation with three men in Torch, John O'Brien, Stephen Fuller, and John Dengel; three men in "J" club, Donald Davis, Dwight Riley, and Lenard Farmer; and two men in Pawn and Bishop, Rex Potter and Frank Gerchow. Many other Deltas are active in the service and professional honoraries.

The House holds a virtual monopoly in University debate with Stephen Fuller and Donald Davis, number one and two men for the affirmative, and Dwight Riley and Frank Gerchow, number one and two men for the negative.

Beta also has an adequate representation in publications. Dick Foster and Gene Sample are sportswriters for the Ohio University Post while pledges Rupert Starr and Rankin Brunton have found places on the Athena yearbook. John Dengel is business manager of that publication.

The chapter glee club, which, under the direction of Frank Gerchow, has made several favorable appearances, includes in its ranks Varsity Glee Club men Tom Morgan, Tom Kelly, Bob Taylor, Ted Evans, Wayne Ketner, Dick Soliday, and Bob Clark.

On Homecoming Day the Ohio Deltas won the first-place cup in the pledge float division and the second-place award for best decorated house.

The chapter won a new phonograph in a campus contest sponsored by the Philip Morris Company and Senior Bill Kursel was voted "Greek God" at the recent Pan-Hellenic Dance.

At the chapter meeting of January 6, Martin Carnahan was elected treasurer and Bob Clark was named assistant treasurer.

Retiring treasurer Bob Liggett and Bill MacNamara have been training in the advanced flying courses and plan to enter the United States Air Corps upon graduation.

The Delt Winter Formal will be held some time in early February. Bands now under consideration include those of Andy Kirk, Coleman Hawkins, and Harry James.

JOHN DENGEL

Gamma—W. and J.

SINCE Christmas vacation the Shelter has been humming with preparations for our initiation ceremonies to be held, February 8. Initiation this year has a very special significance for all of us, for this is the year that we celebrate the eightieth anniversary of the founding of Gamma chapter which is the oldest chapter of the Fraternity in continuous existence. In addition to all that we are looking forward to another event which will take place on that day—the burning of our mortgage. When this document has been destroyed we will be the first fraternity on the campus to be entirely free of debt. Our alumni secretary is working day and night to get in contact with all of our alumni and we are planning on having well over a hundred of them back with us on that day.

On the evening of Sunday, December 15, all the actives and pledges of the chapter went to Pittsburgh to attend the annual vesper services given by Dean N. R. H. Moor in honor of the Delta chapters from W. & J., Pitt, and Carnegie Tech, at the Trinity Cathedral in Pittsburgh. After the services refreshments were served to Deltas and their friends and it was at this time that Dean Moor was awarded the Distinguished Service Citation.

In addition to the plans for initiation the extracurricular activities on the campus figure a lot in our work. In sports we have Wally Kettlewell on the varsity basketball team and Pledge Dave Spencer on the Freshman five. In football we had three sophomores, Gene Weimer, Del Paris, and "Chuck" Knight, on the varsity. Gamma was well represented on the Freshman team by Pledges Don Woidke, Bill Robinson, Walt Reese, Jim Locke, and Tom Murphy. We will have Ralph Vernon on the mat crew this spring and Chuck Wilson on the golf course.

As for publications we have Sam Robinson and Bill Dickie holding the positions of editor and business manager, respectively, of the literary magazine The Gambolier. Watson Sherrard and Jack Rynd hold positions on the editorial staff of that book. Dan Finkbeiner is business manager of the weekly paper, the Red and Black and he has on his staff Bill Dickie, George Redding, and Bob McFadden.

In official positions on the campus we have Walt Church as president of the Junior class. Joe Hufschmitt is president of Phi Sigma, the biology honorary. Dan Finkbeiner, Watson Sherrard, and Fred Wilson are all elders in the College Church.

The chapter elected Dave Crawford of the Junior class as our treasurer for the coming year.

May 1941 see the Crescent still increase!

JOHN D. RYND, JR.

Delta—Michigan

WHEN turning to survey the first three months of the 1940-41 school year at Delta, we find a most promising beginning for the rest of the year. The most encouraging feature is our fine pledge class of thirty men, the largest in the history of this chapter, and for the third consecutive year the largest pledge class among the Michigan fraternities.

Our four yearly objectives, scholarship, extracurricular activities, athletics, and social activities, are being met in fine style. Scholastically, we are striving to keep Delta high on the list, and perhaps move up a couple of notches. As usual, a large percentage of the House is engaged in some extracurricular activity, with the Sophomore class showing unusual interest and progress in this field. In intramural sports, we stand twelfth, so far, with brighter prospect in the winter and spring schedule. Socially, things have been humming again this year, each dance a greater success than the last one, with everyone looking forward to J-Hop in February.

The sum total of these four endeavors points to the culmination of our basic objective, not to remain static, but always to keep progressing, so as to be a better representative of $\Delta T \Delta$.

JOHN W. YAGER

Epsilon—Albion

EPSILON started another successful year last fall by pledging fifteen excellent men.

When the Albion Deltas arrived back to school after the summer holidays, they were pleased to find that the entire outside of the Shelter had been repainted. Some of the other improvements that have been made recently include a new phonograph system with speakers in three different rooms, a new refrigerator for the kitchen, and a new gas heater for the recreation room. Also, several of the study rooms have been redecorated.

The Epsilonians ended the interfraternity football season by taking second place. We hope to retain top place in Albion's intramural sports program by their efforts in basketball, baseball, swimming and track.

The Albion Deltas are anxiously awaiting the date for their annual Black and White Formal Dinner Dance. The party, which has always been considered to be the best on the campus, will be held at the Post Tavern in Battle Creek, Friday, January 31. The following night there will be an informal dance at the Shelter.

Dan Siler was elected to the office of treasurer at the first meeting in January. At the same meeting Bruce Stevens was made assistant treasurer and Ross Fleury was chosen to replace Ralph Fischer on the Interfraternity Council.

RICHARD W. SCHMID

Zeta—Western Reserve

CAME the New Year, and New Year's Day found the Reserve "Red Cats" playing at the Sun Bowl game at El Paso, Texas. Ernie Eros, Zeta Senior, literally "kicked" the team into the bowl game with his sensational last second field goal which won the Thanksgiving Day game against Case School of Applied Science. It was the winning of this Thanksgiving Day game by a score of 15-14 that put Reserve in the running for the Sun Bowl game against Arizona State of Tempe, Arizona.

Reserve, the underdog according to most critics, came out of the New Year's game victorious with a score of 26-13 and the huge Sun Bowl trophy. Two other Deltas contributed their share towards winning the game when, in the third period, George Noland broke through to block an Arizona punt; the ball was caught before it bounced by Willie Waggle, who scored. Both Waggle and Noland are Zeta seniors.

Our Intramural manager, Fred Oldenburg, reports that Zeta is now close to second place in fraternity intramurals. In trying to gain second place, and then first place. Zeta has won the fraternity championship in baseball and the runner-up for fraternity championship in volleyball. Zeta now holds the University championship cup in intramurals and hopes to hold on to it as a result of this year's work.

Joe Manak, Zeta Sophomore, has been active in the Reserve Rostrom, debating organization. He has made numerous out-of-town trips for this organization including one to Northwestern University at Evanston and to Kent State where he acted as "Senator" in a debating convention.

The Reserve Deltas are still getting their share of honors. During the last few months Dick Tomer, senior, was named to Beta Alpha Psi, national honorary accounting fraternity, and Walt Leonard and Bill Poe were named to appear in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities for 1940-41. Tomer, past treasurer of Zeta, has been active in the accounting club and Phi Society at Reserve.

With final examinations and the end of the first semester rapidly drawing near the Zeta Deltas are looking forward to Greek Week which follows closely on the heels of exam period and the consequent active-alumni initiation banquet scheduled as usual at the Alcazar Hotel in Cleveland on Washington's Birthday.

May the new year bring the best of everything to all our brothers.

WILLIAM G. POE

Kappa—Hillsdale

BACK to school with ten men, Kappa chaps promptly initiated David Rucklos, Larry Smith and Walter Zebrowski; then selected the twelve top freshmen, and but-toned them.

Annual, riotous Bowery Brawl, featuring handle-bar mustaches, brief skirts and beauty marks, went off with customary combustibility, perennial punch.

Delt Jim Crankshaw took the soapbox and subsequently the Senior class presidency, and '44 man, Burr Manby, dittoed the feat in his class. Pledge Manby shook hands over tossed coin with his brother, House president Bob Manby, as they captained the Freshman-Varsity football tilt, respectively.

Bob Baxter touched off a scintillating music career in December by performing a Tschaikowsky piano concerto to the explosive approval of the music department and his proud brothers who don't know the difference between clefs and dollar signs, but who were assured the recital was fine.

The intramural basketball team is coming along in agreeable shape and is happily composed entirely of pledges—which augurs well for years to come.

Brother Dick Taylor has been elected new treasurer and assigned the job of perpetuating the five years of paid bills which is ours.

Several and sundry signs point toward a high-flying spring, but right now it's time to season the wick with midnight oil.

ROBERT BAXTER

Mu—Ohio Wesleyan

A SUCCESSFUL year was predestined when Mu, for the first time in several years, captured top honors for the Homecoming decorations.

"Prexy" Battelle headed Interfraternity Council and at the same time assumed the duties of University Social Chairman. He held a seat on Student Council along with Chuck Ziegler, vice-president, who acted as co-chairman of the University Calendar Committee. "Curly" Copp, leader of the Sophomore class, is the third member of this Delt trio serving on Student Council.

Wesleyan Deltas have for many years achieved success in dramatics. Nissen and Danford, class of '42, continued this tradition by being received into Theta Alpha Phi, whose president is Dick Higley.

In the field of football four men—Dieckmann, Owen, Ireland, and Rickey—played for the "Red and Black." Pledge Secrest received his numerals at the close of the season. In basketball Hughes is playing on the starting five and is scheduled to make his second "W" in this sport. Pledges Milbourne, Morr, and Secrest have been showing great promise on the Freshmen quintet, and from indications will be playing on the varsity next year.

The senior managership in track went to George Kratt who has been assisted by two Delt Juniors. Jim White captured the junior managership in basketball and has pledged Johnson, Allonier and Shoemaker on his "stooge" squad.

Sid "A Student" Rowland at present is one of the four Transcript editors. However, next year he is expected to take over the editorship on the basis of his surpassing record of this year. "Ike" Stegman, sports editor of the Transcript, likewise has his hand in the business activities of the yearbook, along with Ed Vereeke.

Varsity debate is giving four of the members gray hairs, and nine of the gang devote much of their week to the various musical organizations on the campus.

The pledge class of eighteen men has been active in all phases of campus endeavor—dramatics, student affairs, debate, musical organizations, sports, and others.

A fine semester was enlivened by a beautifully decorated Shelter—the Mu Winter Formal—immediately preceding the holiday season which climaxes socially this commentary of Mu Delt Doings.

CHARLES ZIEGLER

Nu—Lafayette

NU BEGAN the 1940-1941 two-term tussle by annexing six new pledges in class of 1944 as well as continuing to rush good men after the formal season was over.

The chapter has been well represented in the field of sports this year. Luther Graves was one of the few sophomores to receive his varsity letter as a member of Lafayette's undefeated varsity gridiron squad. Howie Williams, also a sophomore, showed great promise as lineman on the team. Warren Hampe, Clint Everett, and Bill Sears were all members of the 150-lb. team and Hampe played first string end during the whole season.

Bob Montgomery was the Delt contribution to the soccer squad this fall and should be well seasoned for next year's team.

In intramural sports, Nu has had tough breaks. In football we finished a very close second in our division just missing the championship playoffs, and in soccer we took third in another very close decision.

On the freshman squads the Delts were well represented by "Duke" Harrison in cross country, Don Maue in football, and Ben McKelway in soccer.

In winter sports, Herm Gailey is fulfilling the promise he showed on last year's freshman swimming squad by being one of the mainstays of the varsity squad. Jim Sigman is senior manager and Andy Bubser is junior manager of this sport. Charley Troxell, although defeated for the varsity manager-ship in basketball, now manages the frosh club.

Warren Hampe will be a member of the varsity wrestling squad after very good work on the frosh squad last year, and Clint Everett and Jack Bolton are working hard for berths on the newly organized college ice hockey team.

Although winter intramurals have just barely begun, big things can be expected from the House basketball team since in three starts they have disastrously defeated all opposition.

Along other lines, Charley Troxell was inducted into the Knights of the Round Table, one of the leading organizations on campus.

JAMES G. SIGMAN

Pi—Mississippi

PI, SITUATED comfortably in its new chapter house, which is generally regarded as the best on the campus, looks forward to the second semester and initiation of a number of its pledge class of twenty. The new house and pledge class constitute a combination that should go far.

The election of "Junie" Hovious as Colonel Rebel and his girl friend, "Kitty" Tennant, as Miss Ole Miss gives a Delt and his sweetheart the highest honorary social positions at Ole Miss. Hovious is also Pi's contribution to the All-Southeastern conference football eleven and to the varsity baseball and basketball teams.

In interfraternity sports the record of $\Delta T \Delta$ is above average. Breaking even in softball, we have entered the basketball season with a veteran combination.

Attempting to improve the scholastic averages of the pledges, James Freeland, scholarship chairman, has been conducting a study hall. Professors make periodic reports on the progress of the pledges by means of the card system which was recommended by Garth Slater, field secretary.

Bob Hummel and Vernon Lash represent the chapter as members of Moaks, senior social group, while Claude Pittman, Jr., recently elected treasurer, was elected to the Cardinal Club, honorary sophomore organization.

Wilburn Holmes and Bob Hummel are members of the band and Beta Zeta band fraternity. Hummel also plays drums in the Mississippians, leading campus orchestra.

Bob Logan, president of the chapter, serves as vice-president of the Democratic party caucus, one of the two leading campus political organizations.

Two of our number, Vernon Lash and Robert Hamilton, are members of the Flying Rebels, organization of boys taking C. A. A. training. Hamilton, varsity pole vaulter, is also sergeant in the R. O. T. C. Pledge John Hartzfield, member of the National Guard band, has been inducted into active service.

ROBERT K. HUMMEL

Rho—Stevens

RHO SWUNG into action at the beginning of the fall term by initiating Les Mills, Art Arguedas, and Jim Lane. A few weeks later, the house had a successful rushing season, netting more than its share of men.

Les Mills was elected "Prexy" of the Senior class and became a member of Tau Beta Pi. Rho President Harvey Hennig, also a Tau Beta Pi man, brought forth the school yearbook The Link, as editor-in-chief. In his spare time Harvey is now instructing the new defense students here at Stevens in engineering problems.

Our chapter is well represented in school activities. Art Arguedas captains the Squash team while Harvey Hennig is captain of the fencing team. Fred Tyler is one of our tennis aces while Doug Collins plays tennis and fences; and Tommy Trent is on the basketball team. Gene Gardner is working himself to a frazzle as vice-president of the Stevens Engineering Society.

The social season has been quite complete. We were well represented at the school and Interfraternity dances, while almost everyone turned out with "drags" for the Autumn Carnival. A successful record dance was run, and a pleasant Fathers Night held in December.

We all had a grand time at our Christmas Party where we gave each other presents and humorous poems. A play was given for our entertainment by the pledges. New Year's Eve found a number of us at the house with "drags" for a real celebration to start the year off right. We will continue this good start by initiating eleven men in February.

WARREN S. COMFORT

Tau—Penn State

AS THE time for exams rolls around, Tau finds itself in one of the most advantageous positions in its history. Glancing back into September we are happy to report an unexcelled pledge class of nineteen. Although we anticipated a successful rush-week, our expectations were far surpassed, both in number and in quality. We have co-rushing chairman Bob Roelofs and Jim Gilmore to thank for this excellent piece of work. Thanks also to those Delts and alumni who sent us recommendations and did most of the necessary groundwork.

Among the new pledges, a number are represented in extracurricular activities, where their performance indicates that Delts will still be in the thick of things in the years that are ahead. These pledges, under the guidance of vice-president Ed Murphy and his new system, are really doing great.

No sooner was rushing season over, than the chapter really got busy on its long-cherished dream of a new recreation room—a room which could be built in one of the unexcavated portions of the cellar. When Alumni Day came around, we had some definite plans to present to the alumni, and thanks to their coöperation, the proposed new room is now a reality. It will be officially opened at our formal pledge dance, and will be given the name Alumni Room at that time.

The boys from the Shelter as usual have contributed in no small way to the activities on the campus. In football, Len Krouse supplied everyone with thrills, and the chapter with plenty of publicity. Len, besides being the team's most consistent ground gainer, was ranked second in the nation as a pass receiver. As a reward for his performance, he was elected captain of the team for the coming year. Off the gridiron Len is well known as the president of the Junior class. In another of the fall sports, pledge Bill Prichard was the star of the undefeated, unscored-on soccer team.

Boxing this winter will hold the spotlight, and in it will be Delt Jim Lewis—the defending 165-pound Eastern Intercollegiate Champion. This year Jim has an added incentive to win, for he was married last fall to Eva Kuhn of Pittsburgh, Pa. If you want to see plenty of action, come up to State when Army, Syracuse, or Wisconsin come to town; anyway, plan to attend the National Intercollegiate to be held here, March 27, 28, and 29.

This spring if you're in need of a golf lesson, come up and watch Jack Brand, captain of the team, clean up everything in sight. This same team has another Delt, Bob Baggs as the assistant manager. Bob was recently elected to Blue Key, honorary society.

Some of the other sports that will keep the Delta boys busy are: freshmen wrestling, Jim Foust and Joe Steele; varsity wrestling, Jack Brand as manager; freshmen basketball, Phil Martzolf as manager; gymnastics, Bob Tilton; lacrosse, Bob Morrow; fencing, Walt Gamble as assistant manager; and tennis, Sam Byers.

Chief among the other fields of Delt participation is music, where "Tip" Lyford leads the way. "Tip" is a member of the Blue band, symphony orchestra, college choir, and a local dance band. Besides "Tip," Dick Ramsey and Bill Fortmann are members of the Blue band and men's glee club, respectively.

The social season at Tau began on Dad's Day, when a number of dads came up for the week-end. This was followed by Alumni Day, House Party, our annual Thanksgiving and Christmas Banquets, and then a new feature for the chapter. This was a Christmas Party for twelve poor children from around the town. We hope that they had a good time. We certainly did.

Since this is the last letter to appear before the chapter elects its new officers, it is fitting that we thank the present leaders for a difficult job well done. Especially to Jack Brand, president, who has won the respect and admiration of everyone who knows him. This general opinion was well expressed in the following few lines taken from the Fraternity News, local Greek publication: "When you are wrestling manager at Penn State, you are somebody to be looked up to, if only by the seconds. When you are golf captain you deserve more than passing mention in any 'Who's Who at Penn State.' Also being A. A. President is something to tell your rushees about. But, Fratres, when you are all three of the above, you are Jack Brand. Jack, president of the $\Delta T \Delta$ palace, is one boy who gets our vote every time."

We so seldom hear from alumni that when we do, we like to show our appreciation. Dud Johnston, Bill McNary, Lambert Smith, Syd Cowlin, and George Berry, all have dropped us a line to let us know what was what. We also got a nice Christmas Card from Horace Burrell who lives in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and were glad to find out that the bottom half of the world is still progressing.

Speaking of our alumni, the chapter is having its thirtieth anniversary next fall. This is the first notice of the big event, which from all indications promises to make chapter history in the number of alumni attending. You'll hear more of this later, but keep it in mind and plan to attend.

FRANK ALLAN MITCH

Upsilon—Rensselaer

UPSILON Deltas came back to Troy a week before Rensselaer officially opened its doors for the 1940-41 school year last September. Under the direction of Charley Faas, house manager, and Bob Sterling, president, they pitched into the job of renovating the interior of the Shelter. By the middle of the week, the house looked as though it would be several weeks before it would be habitable again, but by the end of clean-up week the Shelter was once more in working order. The success of the renovation can be attested by the remarks of several of the parents on the improvement of the interior over last year.

School opened, the job of rushing was begun. Russ Warner, rushing chairman, organized the House into rushing teams for a systematic covering of the dorms. A quota of twenty-five pledges was set up for this year's class. It soon became apparent that there was a wealth of good men in the class of '44 and the problem resolved itself into a process of elimination to pick the best of a good class. Ten days after the opening of school, Upsilon officially closed its rushing with twenty-one pledges. Later at intervals five more men were added to the list of pledges. Practically all campus activities are represented in the class. Delt pledges so far have proved their ability in football and swimming.

This year's varsity football squad saw one Delt senior and two juniors in action. Senior Bob Baker played a fine game at end for the Fighting Engineers, with Junior Bill Johnson acting as his replacement. Junior Don Hoopes starred in the backfield as fullback for the Engineers. Don has been elected captain of next year's Rensselaer eleven, and shows promise of being one of the best backfield men in the history of the school. He was given honorable mention on the All-Upstate New York team for his performance this past season.

Senior George "Red" Nye, of Sharon, Pa., turned in another good season as goalie for the Institute soccer team.

Upsilon swimmers put in their bid for the interfraternity swimming title this year, but were forced to be content with second place. Two freshmen, Carl Munniger and Ed Flack starred for the Deltas.

Flack carried off top honors in the hundred-yard free style event and second place in the fifty-yard dash, with Munniger displaying beautiful form in the breast stroke.

Undeafated so far this season, the Rensselaer basketball team has seen two Upsilon seniors on the floor. Both Ed Mueller and Bill Wicks have been aiding the Institute squad in making its enviable record.

In activities outside of the field of sports the Delts have also made their mark. Russ Warner has been capably editing the Polytechnic, Rensselaer's campus newspaper. Russ is a senior. He has also been active with the Players, the Institute little theater group.

Campus Revue, a student program broadcast weekly over WHAZ, Rensselaer station, has heard two Delt seniors doing a bang-up job on the air. "Red" Nye capably handled the sports column during the past year, and his football predictions during the past season totalled in percentages that are hard to believe. Senior Bill Jacobus, who last season broadcast under the name of "Snoop" Dalton, this year was given the difficult assignment of organizing a new feature, "Campus Comments." Bill put a lot of conscientious effort into his job and the results of his "Comments" may be seen now on the campus. Many of his suggestions were acted upon by the student body and were found to be good. At a recent meeting of the senior board of Campus Revue, Bill Johnson was elected to carry on "Jake's" work during 1941.

This school year is now half over, and if the record for the second half reads like the record of the first term, it should be another banner year for Upsilon.

BILL JOHNSON

Phi—W. and L.

PHI CHAPTER inaugurated what promises to be one of her most successful school years by pledging sixteen men following rush week in September.

Perhaps the greatest single honor conferred on the House was the tapping of Dick Spindle into O Δ K. The honor culminated a successful record that includes varsity basketball manager and executive committeeman of the Junior class.

Sonny Heartwell, president of the Washington and Lee chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, and Frank Hynson, member of Pi Alpha Nu, honorary sophomore society, collaborated to give Washington and Lee their second annual Varsity Show. The production was entitled One for the Money and was presented on Friday, December 13. One thousand spectators saw the show, and the proceeds were turned over to the American Red Cross and the W. & L. sweater fund.

Ed Cuttino, a junior, has won a starting position at guard on the General's defending state championship basketball team, and has been one of the mainstays of the team's early games. Freshman King Carter was a standout on the Frosh football eleven.

Phi is off to a good start in the intramural field, winning the consolation football title and going to the finals of the volleyball tournament. The chapter is leading in the handball tournament.

Gordon Von Kalinowski is serving his second year as dormitory councilor and was a member of the Honor Roll last semester. Sonny Heartwell, Dick Spindle, and Sydnor Kirkpatrick all made the Dean's list and the Fraternity scholastic average ranked fourth on the campus.

Bobby Boatwright is serving his second year as "drummer boy" in the Southern Collegians, University dance band. Billy Webster is a member of Tau Kappa Iota, honorary biological society, while Frank Hynson, Al Wysong, Jim Funk and Dick Spindle are all members of Pi Alpha Nu, honorary Sophomore fraternity. Bob Boatwright, Bob Peckham, Emil Rassman are members of its rival organization, White Friars.

Dick Spindle, Bob Boatwright, Sonny Heartwell, Billy Webster, and Walter Brady are all members of the Cotillion Club.

Calhoun Bond, sophomore, is a member of the Calyx, school annual staff, while Sonny Heartwell is a columnist on the Ring Tum Phi, W. & L. newspaper, and a contributor to the Southern Collegian, school magazine.

Emil Rassman, president of the House, will serve as vice-president at Washington and Lee's colorful and nationally known Fancy Dress ball, January 31.

The chapter has given one house dance during the school year and held an informal Christmas party December 22. Phi was awarded first prize in the Washington and Lee Homecoming decorations this year.

W. L. HEARTWELL, JR.

Chi—Kenyon

WITH THE first lap of the college year drawing to a close, Chi feels again that her members have run up an impressive score in all campus activities. Chi has furnished to the college more than her share of talent.

Four of Chi's stand-out athletes have won letters in football during the past season. Fullback Paul Herrick, guard Ed Chamberlain, and center Bob Weaver have been permanent fixtures of the starting lineup, though all three are sophomores. Johnny Goldsmith, a junior, was an alternate tackle. Every one of these four men look forward to more football glory for Chi next year. Three of our pledge brothers starred on the Freshman team, too, with Bill Lane at end, Herb Long guarding, and Don Ross in the backfield, all winning their coveted numerals.

With basketball in full swing, we find two more Delts with starting berths. Don Bateman, though in his first year of college ball, has proved an able assistant to Junior Jim Logan, who is on the first string for his second year. Swimming, too, always a championship sport at Kenyon, looks to Delts for leadership. Sam Cook promises to be the best swimmer ever to compete at Kenyon; he has already unofficially shattered several pool and intercollegiate records. He, too, is backed up by an able Delt teammate, Ken Knopf.

College publications are still in the hands of the Delts. The Collegian, the campus newsheet, is still unaffectionately called "the Delt Rag" by rival fraternities on the Hill. Don McCleary is this year's editor, while Newt Bakley is in charge of business and advertising. Bud Southerd is managing editor, and Bob Weaver is business manager of the Hika, which has recently been called the best college literary magazine in the country by a group of well-known English scholars. Jim Logan, too, finds time away from his numerous other jobs to be business manager of the Kenyon yearbook.

Almost half the chapter have appeared in one or more of the plays of the department of dramatics during the fall season. Tom Huff, Hal Hoffman, John Goldsmith, Nevin Kuhl, Bill Cuthbert, Ken Dalby, Ken Knopf, and Don Ross have been everything from stars to supers in Alec Copel's, I Killed the Count, Galsworthy's, The Pidgeon, and John Anderson's adaptation of the Russian farce, The Inspector-General.

The college debate team, although not finally chosen to date, will certainly number among its members Chi-Delts Knopf, McCleary, Hal Hoffman, and Jim Logan. And in intercollegiate and intramural speech contests these same lads, and several others, always bring home the trophies.

Though college rulings forbid varsity men from competing in intramural sports, this handicap has not proved sufficient to keep Chi intramural teams far from the top. Our football and speedball squads finished high in their respective leagues, and the volleyball nine is headed for the title.

We are looking forward to a year that will maintain the high standards set by our predecessors in the college, the Fraternity, and extra-curricular fields. We feel we are already well on the road toward that goal.

JOHN ALAN GOLDSMITH

Omega—Pennsylvania

OMEGA DELTS returning from their summer vacations had many an interesting experience to share, but it wasn't long before school work and the program of activities around the Shelter reunited the brothers. The fall season with its football meant the continuance of the coffee hours after the games—this year exceptionally well attended by the alumni. In addition, many graduates returned to the Thanksgiving banquet before the Pennsylvania-Cornell football game.

At one of the coffee hours, the Omega News, chapter newspaper, was issued. Its fine form was indicative of the painstaking effort of editor Bill Donaldson and assistant editor Ed Morrison as well as many other members who contributed articles and columns.

Many of the bedrooms were brightened by the addition of new sets of maple furniture this fall. Following the skillful financing plans of treasurer Cliff Shane, the chapter plans to purchase furniture for the rest of the bedrooms within the next year.

But the biggest event of the year was the Eastern Division Conference in Atlantic City. Under the direction of Jack Dorris, chapter adviser, the two-day meeting went off without a hitch and provided much guidance to Omega and all other chapters in the Eastern Division. Every one of the large delegation from Omega that went down to the shore pronounced the Conference very successful in spreading the ideals of $\Delta T \Delta$ in addition to providing a fine bill of entertainment. All returned most enthusiastic.

Intramural athletics provided an outlet to the surplus energy of many of the brothers as teams entered league competition in football, volleyball, and basketball. Led by "Wild Willie" Hamer, the Omega pigskin aggregation uncorked a razzle-dazzle system of play that occasionally swept all before it. The volleyball team lost only once and the dribblers are, to date, undefeated.

Nor was the chapter without men who excelled in their individual pursuits. Cliff Shane was awarded a football letter for his bruising end play, a big factor in the team's successful season. "Lanky Hank" Peele as regular goalie on the soccer team staved off many an opponent's boot and was awarded a major letter. "Hank" has now turned to basketball. Bill Scheeler, Charlie DeLone and Sam Edwards were among the more prominent dancers in the Mask and Wig show, the latter two also serving as the Junior cheerleaders. "Granny" Munson continued his work as school organist besides holding down his job of organist and choir-master at one of the campus churches. Don Lynch, already a member the American Society of Mechanical Engineers annexed three more honors, election to Sigma Tau, Tau Beta Pi, and Pi Mu Epsilon. Bill Chadwick has become an important officer in the R. O. T. C. unit and "Harv" Smith finds time from his presidential duties to be a big gun in Christian Association activities. A host of activities take the time of Ed Dewey, basketball managerial and work on the Record, campus yearbook, most important. Bill Giberson, cocky defenseman on the hockey team, is playing his usual driving game.

Social events have been important, too. The biggest of the several dances was the house party during Prom week-end. The Christmas Formal went over well. A hay ride and several record dances filled out the schedule. The House held its annual Christmas party and this year it was decided to give a party for some of the underprivileged boys of the Philadelphia area. Accordingly, about twenty-five were rounded up and brought to the Shelter for dinner and the distribution of small gifts by Bill Murray, capable Santa Claus.

At the last chapter meeting, Bill Donaldson was named treasurer and Ed Dewey was elected assistant treasurer.

As this is being written, Omega is in the middle of what it believes will be a most successful rushing season. Cliff Shane, chairman of the rushing committee, has worked long and hard toward this end and with the fine record that the chapter has made so far this year, there is every reason to believe that a bumper crop of freshmen will be attracted. Omega will appeal to the rushees.

FRANK V. BIRCH, JR.

Beta Alpha—Indiana

THE New Year has arrived, and has left behind an old year replete with fun, work, and fraternal up-building in Beta Alpha. Though the current school year is but half over, the chapter has accounted well for itself at Indiana University by having members representing nearly every field of college activity. So it is with satisfaction that we look back at 1940, and with hopes that we surge forward into what may present itself in 1941.

We began anew in September with some dozen cracker-jack "rhinies" to brighten the Shelter—already glowing with many summer improvements. Several other "new babies" have been added through the semester, and are accounting for themselves creditably.

The annual tall pledge dance was held on October 14, and was acknowledged by all-university opinion to be the best pledge dance of the season—which record Beta Alpha has maintained for some years, and of which it is justly proud.

Additional honor was showered upon the Freshmen when they feasted at the annual pledge date dinner the following day. The remainder of the social calendar was filled with numerous afternoon dances and an upperclassmen's date dinner.

The termination of the football season saw three Beta Alpha men honored at the University Football Banquet. Robert Anderson, '44, Bernard Tetek, '44, and Edward Johnston, '43, were awarded numerals for proving themselves prospects for next year's varsity eleven.

At the pace he is now setting, Jack Morris, '44, is expected to make a name for himself on Indiana's basketball honor roll, as he has survived all the "cuts" and is now a valuable member of the Freshman team.

Beta Alpha in the intramural field now occupies the envied position of second in all-university intramurals, and is only one-half point out of first place. We plan to remain subordinate only until recent victories by several individuals and teams are tallied, at which time we are certain we shall be second to none. We seem to be headed for another All-Intramural championship, having already won the swimming championship for the second year in succession and by placing consistently in all other sports. Jack Morris won the cross-country run, and Floyd Hancock finished third to place us in that event. Enthusiasm in the House is running high and the participation and coöperation of members are the aids that have placed us in such an advantageous position.

The past year has left us with the disappointment that Don Batton, our able prexy, was forced to resign because of ill health. However, "Burly" Grimes, an equally capable and well-liked leader, has succeeded him and the administration is functioning as smoothly as always.

Beta Alpha has enjoyed tremendous support by its alumni, both in the attendance of House functions and in rush recommendations. It is this sort of spirit that we really appreciate, and we hope that the new year will see the continuance of this coöperation.

Best of everything for 1941!

HARRY E. HUFF

Beta Beta—Indiana

GREETINGS from DePauw. With a new year comes this chapter's wish to all Delts for a most successful year. We started out the year and boosted our "stock" on this campus with two social events. The first was our annual fall dance and the second was an idea carried out with the help of the song leader. The night before Christmas vacation we all assembled in the living room with our dates and sang carols. With a crackling fire in the fireplace and with the cheery Christmas tree lights, it was no wonder that it was a success.

Aiding the good name of $\Delta T \Delta$ on the DePauw campus at the present time are Dean Dooley and Dick Fillbrandt on the varsity basketball squad; Al Holtzman, city editor of the paper; and Dick Yocom, our president, as business manager of the yearbook uphold the publicity department. Bob Glass of Indianapolis has been appointed rush chairman for the coming year. Bob's grandfather, father, and uncle are Delts so we are sure we have picked a good man.

The men of Beta Beta will be struggling with final examinations about the time this article hits the presses. Two boys who won't have to worry about them anymore are Mark Bright, who is enrolled in the Navy Air Corps and Jim Briggs, with the Army Air corps. Our intramural manager, Bill Adams, is getting our basketball and bowling squads into shape for the season which starts shortly.

ROBERT A. NIX

Beta Gamma—Wisconsin

BETA GAMMA began the fall rushing period this year with high hopes after the upswing that had been so noticeable the year before. We were aided in large measure by the presence of Garth Slater, traveling secretary, who gave much of his time and energy to helping us get the boys we wanted. We also had the pleasure of a visit by Hugh Shields at the same time.

Shortly after the semester opened Gene Kuehlthau resigned as president and Phil Dressler was elected to fill the position. Bob Perkins, late of Beta Upsilon, was made resident adviser and has made a big hit with the chapter.

Rushing was the most successful in some time; the chapter was able to start off with a large pledge class, and prided itself on having beaten out several of its greatest rivals on campus with respect to the pledging of a number of boys. Since the fall rush, the job has been handled by "Tuck" Tucker who is doing a fine bit of work and promises us a bright second semester.

Athletically, Beta Gamma has not done as well as we would like, but has entered all sports offered and seems headed in the right direction in our basketball division, while hockey looms up ahead. "Zip" Zable, transfer from Baker, is handling this end of the chapter's activities.

Brooks Conrad, social chairman, instituted the annual Beta Gamma "Spook Party," slogan "Bring your own spook!" during which the Shelter was transformed into a haunted house. Chet Williams, Kenyon alumnus now working in Madison, has been doing most of the chaperoning. Due to the artistic abilities of Russ Bach and Bob Sheldon, decorations this year have been the most beautiful ever.

In an effort to improve the scholastic standing, the chapter has set up a new study hall for those whose grades are under the all-active average at Wisconsin with Fred Reynolds, vice-president, in charge.

Besides all the chapter activities, several of the fellows find time to enter University activities. Bill Deerhake, member of Interfraternity Board; Brooks Conrad, columnist for the Daily Cardinal, and publicity chairman of Pre-Prom; "Tuck" Tucker, our Interfraternity Council representative; Phil Dressler, member of the Student Board and Senior dance committee chairman; and Harry Franke, member of the Student Board Assisting Staff, help to keep Beta Gamma in one of the top positions on campus.

January 13, we will have Ward "Piggy" Lambert, Purdue basketball coach and a good Delt, as our guest at lunch and expect to howl at him later during the Wisconsin-Purdue game.

With a lively, active chapter and a house full of interesting men, Beta Gamma looks forward to the entire year as being one of the brightest in its recent history.

Beta Delta—Georgia

BY THE second of January Beta Delta was in full swing, all ready for winter rush week and ready to begin studies. Only one man was lost due to graduation, and seven of our pledges made their initiation average.

All of our pledges are well established in campus activities. Two of the boys, Gene Gledhill and Doug Thornton are playing in the school band and orchestra. Bill Keith, who has earned a journalism scholarship, is on the Red and Black, our school publication. The other pledges are in either social or professional clubs.

Donald Elsworth Hamilton, our "prexy," was appointed Periclean, which is one of the highest appointive offices in Georgia University. He was also recently initiated into the Gridiron, a national secret organization. This fall Brother Hamilton was appointed Adjutant of the Second Squadron, and Brother Hall was appointed Captain of Company C. At our first meeting Earl Carter was elected treasurer, and Billy Blackburn was appointed house manager.

Led by Pledge Humphries, president of the pledge class, $\Delta T \Delta$ had one of the best touch-football teams on the campus. We have already started practicing for intramural basketball. We should have an excellent team this year because we have several boys who played basketball in high school and junior college.

Beta Delta entertained Gamma Psi, Beta Epsilon, and many alumni with a buffet supper during Homecoming. Delta Tau Delta received honorable mention for having the most original decorations for Homecoming.

All of our graduates are well established in the business world—Marion Nesbith Dasher has an executive position in Macon; Isma Lee Price who was the biggest man on the campus last year, is well established with the F. B. I.; Dan McFadden is well established in the laundry machine business; Harper Huckaby is with the State Experimental Psychological Board; Malcom Bradbury was elected to the State Legislature; and Bill Henry Moses is working as a chemist in Jacksonville, Fla.

GEORGE GABELIA

Beta Epsilon—Emory

NEW YEAR'S greetings, brother Delt, from Beta Epsilon. May the coming year be as successful as the one just passed.

After a very enthusiastic rushing campaign, our roster of pledges was raised to eighteen. This is the largest pledge group we have had in many years. Congratulations to Gazelle and Gower for their efforts as rush chairmen. The pledges have been very active this fall under the guidance of Edward Gazelle. In December they brought out a publication dealing with chapter life that was sent as a Christmas greeting to all the other chapters. This publication is to be continued either monthly or bi-monthly. The chapter is also indebted to the pledges for a handsome new guest register.

The climax of the fall quarter's social activities was our fourth annual Christmas party for underprivileged children. The party was a big success and afterwards a dance was held for the members, pledges and their dates. The fall social calendar was filled with hay rides, steak fries, buffet suppers and house dances.

In athletics the chapter has made a creditable showing in the various events. Much interest has been shown in the various contests between the pledges and the actives. The chapter's thanks is due Glover Jordan and Carl Chandler for their untiring efforts and interest as chairmen of the athletic committee.

During the fall, Beta Epsilon was honored by the visits of Hugh Shields, Kenneth Penfold, and Garth Slater, all of the Central Office, and Charles T. Boyd, the Vice-President of $\Delta T \Delta$. We enjoyed seeing and meeting them and hope that they will have an opportunity to visit us again in the near future.

Brother Leonard Allen is due the unfailing gratitude of the entire chapter. His job as chapter advisor is a hard and thankless one and it has been said that a chapter advisor can either make or break a fraternity. He has definitely aided us and we appreciate his efforts in our behalf. His cooperation with Glover Jordan, our treasurer, has served to make the finance committee one of the most efficient committees of the chapter.

We are all looking forward to Founder's Day in March. As yet, definite plans are not available, but we will probably have a dinner-dance at one of the leading Atlanta Hotels. The Founder's Day celebration is always the climax of our social season and is looked forward to for many months in advance.

EDWARD M. WEST

Beta Eta—Minnesota

FOR A long time Beta Eta has talked about moving out in front at Minnesota, and they are now definitely on the way. There is evidence of this on all fronts. Take the athletic side for example. After a long period of mediocre performance in the intramural field they suddenly shot forth last spring to win the academic fraternity championship in softball. Then they came back this fall to win the academic fraternity championship in bowling and a week later made it all-university champs.

Committee work has been especially good. The sing committee has been working at top speed since the start of school; they are determined to win the University Sing next spring. Many of the boys are taking big parts in activities on the campus. Bob Van Nest was elected president of the Sophomore class and has placed many Delts in committee posts. Improvements in the house have been constantly going on. A whole new set of dining room chairs was given to the house by the Mother's Club this Christmas. Much favorable publicity has been given to the chapter by the Ocarina Trio who play at many campus functions and are on the local networks. They are an important part in Fraternity functions and they help considerably in the rush program.

JEROME SMERSH

Beta Theta—Sewanee

A SUCCESSFUL rush week signaled the beginning of a new year for Beta Theta. During the autumn and early winter months the Fraternity held informal get-togethers on Saturday nights. At each, there was an atmosphere of great fraternal spirit.

Under the leadership of Dick Hattendorf, the Fraternity took fourth place in intramural volleyball. From the first game in which we played, our team was considered one which would be ranked if not as champion, among the best. At present the basketball team, with Toby Belford as captain, is practicing and our hopes are high for an excellent showing.

In a time of which "national defense" is a key factor, Beta Theta is well represented by students who, in addition to their college work, are preparing to enter the service of the government if necessary. Of twenty students who were qualified to participate in the C. P. T. program at Sewanee, six were Deltas. They are Henry Meloney, David Dyer, Charles Wallace, Louis Lawson, Nick Zeigler, Glenn Massey, and Bob Donaldson. Including Gantt Boswell who took this training during the summer, this represents one-fourth of our chapter.

On the campus Beta Theta is still maintaining a high record. Bill Asger was elected to Phi Beta Kappa early in the fall, and Louis Lawson was elected to the executive committee of the Order of Gownsmen. Our chapter received national publicity in a recent article in Life magazine. The issue of October 21, 1940, carries a picture of Hap Hale, chapter president, kissing his date before Oscar. The caption reads, "Delta Tau Delta mummy is a useful stooge. Girls are told: 'Kiss mummy or kiss me.' Only one ever chose mummy." In another picture showing seniors in Academic gowns are Henry Meloney and Hap Hale.

Overshadowing all that has happened is the death of our chapter mother, Mrs. John S. Lewis. She was not only a mother to us as a group, but to each of us separately. Her passing has caused a loss which no one is capable of expressing.

E. N. ZEIGLER

Beta Kappa—Colorado

BETA KAPPA greets 1941 with all the prerequisites for a most successful year: (a) a strong pledge class boasting of twenty-five of the outstanding freshmen on the Colorado campus; (b) a strong internal organization augmented by the introduction of the Delt House System; (c) a membership which comprises two representatives on the University Student Commission, eight lettermen in intercollegiate athletics, and other leaders in social and scholastic life; (d) a chapter house improved by the installation of impressive modernistic furniture in the chapter room.

The excellence of the pledge class figured prominently in the achievements of our Colorado chapter during the first term of the school year. Entering enthusiastically into the several activities of the campus, the first-year men nevertheless managed to match the active members man-for-man in scholarship. Further honor has come to the Fraternity through the appointment of Royce Bowers, pledge vice-president, as chairman of the Freshmen Prom committee.

Dave Atkinson has been selected as chapter preceptor and has already set the plans in motion with a series of instructions in demeanor at the table and in general social carriage.

Perhaps the most significant accomplishment of the chapter's fall term was the success of our football men. Leo Stasica, quarterback, and Lloyd Oliver, tackle, were unanimous selections as all-conference players, and both were mentioned on All-American teams. Oscar Jacobson, Vern Lockard, Don Barris, and Dale Moynihan were also members of the team. Incidentally, these men have not forgotten the sincere hospitality which they enjoyed at Gamma Iota in Texas after the Colorado-Texas game.

With a veteran squad, the Delt team easily won its second consecutive intramural volleyball championship—not losing a single match. Efforts in touchball were somewhat mediocre, but an initial turnout of some twenty men for basketball promises a continuation of intramural success this term.

Vern Lockard and Robert Boatwright represent $\Delta T \Delta$ on the Colorado University Student Commission.

We should like to extend our thanks and appreciation to all alumni members who aided us so materially in our rushing program during the summer and fall of 1940; who have contributed to the improvements in the house; and who have helped make the introduction of the Delt House System possible.

RODNEY D. STEVENS

Beta Lambda—Lehigh

THIS winter finds the Delts of Beta Lambda hard at work studying in an effort to raise the scholarship of the chapter to first place among the Greeks. However, we are not so busy that we cannot find time to take part in many extra-curricular activities. Leading the list is co-captain of basketball Bernie Briody. Bernie has long been a steady and reliable player on the Brown and White team. This year Bernie is playing guard because of his fine defensive ability. Along with Briody is Bob Whipple and the star sophomore of the team, Bill Birder. Bill is high scorer on the team and without his eagle eye, Lehigh would have lost many a game. Against the strong North Carolina Quintet he scored twenty-five points. Incidentally, Bill's dad was William Birder, Tau (Penn State), '14. Brother Taylor is assistant manager of the Freshman team. Bob Mussina is giving a good account of himself. Bob is the son of William Mussina, Beta Lambda '04, from Williamsport, Pa. In swimming we find Boyd and Barrot making a good showing for the Freshman team, and John Loughran is making a record for them to follow on the varsity. Next in the line of sports we find Bill Belser giving his all for a position on the Freshman wrestling team.

Turning to other activities we find Bob Ulmer, B. M. O. C., busy at work with the business management of the Lehigh Bachelor. Bob is helping some of the other boys along. Phi Powers is financial manager. Metter, whose brother was Murray Metter, Beta Lambda '25, and Martin Taylor are trying out for a position on the board.

Brother Croat holds down the assistant circulation manager's position on the Brown and White, while Moriss, Boyd, Tucker, and Gordon are all competing for positions on the board.

The Mustard and Cheese Club just finished a successful presentation of Boy Meets Girl. We have a whole list of Delts who made the show a success. Brother Wooters, president; McClue, secretary-treasurer; Al Britton, stage manager; Harry Gunnison, publicity manager; John Loughran, chief carpenter; and many others who are competing for membership. To mention a few—Kirgman, Peck, Smith, Mussina, Gordon, Powers, Joslin, Whipple, Shaw, Belser, and Moriss. You can easily see that the Delts still hold a strong grip on their favorite extracurricular activity. I might add in passing that a year ago the University investigated the Delts' connection with the Mustard and Cheese Club and found that there was no politics connected with the two.

Plans are now being laid for a great Alumni Homecoming of all Beta Lambda Delts, to be held March 8. The program is not settled yet, but our big men of the past have promised to be back, and the whole chapter is going to be on hand to welcome the alumni. The wrestling team faces Princeton, and we have made arrangements to have enough food and drink to furnish all. Refreshments will be served which should assure a real old-fashioned get-together. Come back and swap a story with your friends and the whole chapter guarantees you the best of Homecomings.

J. DUKES WOOTERS, JR.

Beta Mu—Tufts

BETA MU DELTS started the year off with a bang by putting on a well-organized and well-planned rush week program. The result was that we pledged twenty-three good Freshmen to lead the Tufts campus both as to quality and quantity. One of the chief factors in our success was Bob Chatfield, rushing chairman, who proved to be a very capable leader.

To pay tribute to this outstanding group of pledges, the social committee arranged a gala Pledge Formal at a nearby country club. The dance proved to be an enjoyable one for all, and much praise is due to our social committee of Phil McGrath, Marsh Snyder, and Art Milhench.

For the second year, Tufts Delts held a Christmas party for fifteen underprivileged children. Again this party proved to be such a merry one both for the Delts and for the children that it promises to be an annual affair.

In interfraternity sports, Beta Mu's representatives are busy gaining points so that we may retain the trophy of trophies, symbol of the intramural championship, which we now hold. We placed first in interfraternity competition last year by winning firsts in squash, track, golf, and gaining runner-up points in baseball and basketball.

We are also proud to announce that our composite scholastic average at the present time is the highest we have attained in four years. Much credit is due to our committee—Nelse Fontneau, Bill Mahoney, and Bob Newhall.

More than seventy alumni turned out for Beta Mu's annual Alumni Dinner. This was the largest turnout of Beta Mu alumni that we have ever had, and it was due chiefly to the diligence of our chapter advisor, Joe Reynolds. Joe Reynolds was recently elected one of the vice-presidents of the Eastern Division.

Delts did not confine their activities to the chapter house, but were active on the campus also. Delts received their letters in the fall sports of football, soccer, and cross-country; six members in Tufts' honoraries; and three class officers, two from the present Freshmen class.

All in all, this has been the start of another big Delt year. The spirit of cooperation of each member of the House has been the keynote of every Beta Mu activity.

FLASH!

News has it that work is well under way for a new recreation room, called the Reynolds Room, honoring our advisor. The room promises to be a beautiful addition to our house and will be completed sometime in February. Brother McGrath was elected as steward last Monday to succeed Chet Kruszyna who has just completed a most successful year, leaving the house in a fine financial condition. Carl Hartshorn will be the new assistant steward.

ROBERT D. CHATFIELD

Beta Nu—M.I.T.

THE OPENING of the school year found Beta Nu off to a fine start with a very successful rushing season. We don't like to brag but the fifteen men pledged make up the finest pledge class on the campus. The Delts then started off the school social activities with their traditional roller skating party, which a bruised but enthusiastic crowd proclaimed the best ever.

Following this highly successful event, the House had a hay ride. Although some of the gang missed the wagons and didn't catch up until it was almost over, everyone had a grand time and most of us hope it will become an annual event. Just before Christmas vacation came our annual Christmas party. The Freshman play was an earnest if not an artistic success—it really was good, but we didn't want to tell them that. Afterwards Santa Claus, as interpreted by Paul Stomatos, distributed the presents. During the vacation all the boys living around New York got together for a New Year's celebration. They were all excited about it, and from all reports had a wonderful time.

Several members of the Junior class were elected to professional and class honoraries. Phil Phaneuf was initiated into Beaver Club and Scabbard and Blade; Claude McCord into Eta Kappa Nu, an electrical engineering honorary, and Pi Tau Pi Sigma, a Signal Corps honorary; Bob Shaw into Scabbard and Blade and Alpha Chi Sigma, a chemical engineering honorary. Bob was also elected to the Junior Prom Committee.

After exams all the ski enthusiasts plan to go to Conway, New Hampshire for their annual outing. About half the House yells "Track!!" as they come running down the stairs, and even the boys from the deep South are starting to get ski fever. Exams are starting to push skiing into the background as the deadly week approaches. In the entire month before finals all anyone has time to think of is finishing up his term papers and reports, not to mention reviewing for the exams.

CHARLES F. KELLEY, JR.

Beta Xi—Tulane

ALL OF US are warming up for exams, after those good Christmas holidays, and are hoping to come through one step higher up the ladder.

Our Homecoming was celebrated by our annual Homecoming Dance and is believed by the majority on the campus to be the best fraternity dance given so far this year.

In the field of sports we are ably represented by Roy Bartlett, Billy McGehee, and George Schneider, three members of the school's tennis team. McGehee entered in national competition last summer and brought back quite a few honors. The chapter has participated in all the intramural sports which have been open to date this year but so far we have not won any top honors. We must say though, we gave our opponents some stiff competition and expect to win our share before the year is over.

Beta Xi is well represented in the R. O. T. C. Naval Unit. Student Lieutenant Commander Lane Plauche and Student Lieutenant (j.g.) Conrad Meyer hold two of the highest positions in the unit. Other Delts in the unit include: Richard Andry, Louis Bass, N. C. Cromwell, Richard Cromwell, Jack Grayson, Joseph Partridge, and Robert Willard. Two of our chapter, Ned Hardin and Lester Price, have left school to enlist in the Army. We wish them the best of luck.

Conrad Meyer still retains his office of student body president while Lane Plauche has been elected president of Alpha Alpha Alpha, a prelegal fraternity.

We cannot pat ourselves on the back without giving due credit to our active Mothers' Club and its president, Mrs. Bartlett, for the great help they have given us during the past year. We sincerely appreciate it.

This is usually a letter telling only of our successes but the chapter reports that its scholastic standing has fallen below that of our previous high record of the past few years. We mention this as an open challenge to ourselves to regain our former high position in scholarship.

We are confident the coming year will bring us even higher honors than we have enjoyed in the past.

WALTER J. VERLANDER

Beta Omicron—Cornell

THIS is the time of year when Delts at Cornell are not so happy.

Finals are coming! But, with finals comes the end of a successful first term for Beta Omicron.

Fifteen men were pledged during rushing by chairman Tom Stanley and the rushing committee. Many of these men are already participating in campus activities. Ted Lansing, all-state high school football player, was end on the frosh football team; Clark Kee won his numerals in fall track; Bill Littlewood was the only Freshman to gain recognition in the Dramatic Club by being the hit of an early season play; Carol Pennock has been working out regularly with the Freshman crew; Fred Bailey is doing well in frosh basketball; Jim Tunison is out for the Freshman ski team; and Phil McGinnis, a high school hockey captain, is carrying on here with the frosh hockey team. With this early start we predict great things for this class in activities.

Out of thirteen Sophomores returning this year every one is out for an activity—Dan Neher and Jarl "Tiny" Swanson, football; Art Eddy, football manager; George Marchev, swimming team and baseball manager; Fitz Donnaly, for manager of track; Roger Parker, for manager of minor sports; Tom Turk, for manager of basketball; George White, for manager of crew; Jack Westberg, for manager of swimming; Walt Fitzpatrick, for manager of tennis; Stew Underwood, for position on the board of managers of the college paper; and John Whittemore, swimming team. If things continue as they are five sophomores will be eligible for Tau Beta Pi next year, which should set some sort of a record.

Among the Juniors, John Hansen is doing well on the tennis team and soccer team; Clark Brinckerhoff is the mainstay of the rifle team; Sterl Blakeman is on the swimming team; and Herm Norton is out for crew.

Seniors Warner Lansing and Paul Simmons are still doing big things on the Hill. Lansing is a member of Tau Beta Pi and many other honorary societies and also president of the chapter. Simmons is manager of wrestling, a member of Red Key, Quill and Dager and several others. Other outstanding seniors are Jim Fortiner, advertising manager of the Cornell Daily Sun, and Steve Close, one of Cornell's representatives to the National Live Stock Show in Chicago.

So far, five good Delts have been chosen by the Selective Service Commission. We are interested in knowing how this compares with the mortality rate in other chapters.

With the coming of cold weather our tennis court was rapidly converted into a hockey rink by the Freshmen under the expert supervision of house manager John Hansen. We are developing a hockey team on this rink which is expected to smash its way far into the realm of interfraternity hockey. Also in interfraternity sports the Delt basketball team has faltered only once in four games and has aspirations for the league title.

The climax of the varsity football season as far as the Delts were concerned was winning a second sheepskin from Beta Phi—Ohio State as the payment of a bet on the Cornell—Ohio State game.

To bring the term to a close the social committee, under the direction of chairman Sterl Blakeman, is making extensive plans for the annual Junior Week house party which should be a fitting climax to a successful first term.

TOM TURK

Beta Pi—Northwestern

APPROACHING the end of the first semester, Beta Pi can look back over a very successful fall. But right now the chapter is looking ahead to the Northern Division Conference which will be held here February 27, 28, and March 1. George Ebenhack, '42, is in charge of the program for the three-day conclave and the chapter is making plans to show the delegates a real time. The annual Delt Prom will be held March 1, and everybody is looking forward to that.

The Friday night before Christmas vacation the Christmas Formal was held at the Union League Club in Chicago. Al Fleischmann, '43, gave a cocktail party at his home in Kenilworth, Illinois, before the dinner-dance, and everyone reported that the evening was one of the best yet. Previous to the formal, the boys turned their Christmas Banquet into a charity function and the money and toys were turned over to the Northwestern charities. Thad Snell, '41, was co-chairman of the campus movement to raise the charity funds. Thad is a member of the Senior Commission as well as Deru, senior honorary society.

The boys have been busy in campus activities, too. Bob Warnock, '41, was senior manager of the football team and has earned his membership in the N-Men's club. The football team was captained by Dick Richards, '41, who led the team to victory over Notre Dame. Paul Kiefer, '42, saw a great deal of action as guard on the team. Jim Badger, '41, has been and still is busy as Senior manager of the wrestling team and his assistant is Bill Armstrong, '42, Junior manager. Dick Trubey, '42, is busy as captain of the squad. Russ Cobb, '42, and Emmett MacInnis, '43, are two active members of the swimming team. Russ and "Mac" just returned from Florida where they spent Christmas vacation swimming under Miami's sun. Russ is also a big shot on the Junior Commission.

George MacKinnon, '41, is getting ready for his spring season as captain of the baseball team. Mac also received an electric clock with a gold statuette of a football player on the top for winning in the intramural punting contest last fall.

The chapter has just elected Bob Mason, '42, as treasurer for the coming year. Bob Habicht, '43, will be his assistant. Bob Noel, '41, retiring treasurer, was influential in obtaining a new phonograph for the House, through the House Fund Corporation.

WILLIAM M. OTTO

Beta Rho—Stanford

BETA RHO participated in a lively and successful celebration of Stanford University's fiftieth birthday, climaxed by one of the most inspiring and interesting Rose Bowl football victories in the history of that classic. Three Beta Rho men, Thor Peterson, Dean Burford, and "Speed King" Clyde Jeffrey were members of this phenomenal team, which on New Year's Day placed these Delts among the immortals who have trod the Rose Bowl gridiron. Cheering the players was the entire chapter transplanted to the southern clime led by Beta Rho's Joe Messina, Stanford yell leader. The previous evening the Stanford Delts had been guests of Delta Iota at U. C. L. A. at a New Year's party given in conjunction with another House. It was a most successful evening, and all of the men of Beta Rho were very grateful for the thoughtful hospitality shown them.

Bill Turner held the campus spotlight intellectually as he engaged in a number of panel discussions and addresses on various phases of his tour of Japan last summer. Bill was also in great demand for radio quiz programs because of his wide knowledge of many topics. James Haugh, Junior Class president, who conducted such a fine pre-registration program this year, is rush chairman and is looking forward to a fine pledge class. Fourteen new initiates swelled Beta Rho's active membership to thirty-eight. Leo McCaffrey's fine performance on what looks like a conference-winning basketball team, and the varsity soccer lettermen, Ed Johnson, Ray Chapot, Frank Card, and captain George Dole are a credit to Beta Rho. The Axe society, chaired by Bob Anderson, experienced a season of great activity promoting school affairs. The all-university boxing tournament finds four Beta Rho's entered with one, Blair Hyde, defending champion of the 135-lb. class.

JAMES P. THURMOND

Beta Tau—Nebraska

WITH A new determination and flying colors, Beta Tau started the current year. During rush week we pledged fifteen men; since then we have pledged five more.

Although we are stressing scholarship this year, we have still found time to enter the social whirl of the campus. About three weeks after classes started, the actives entertained the new "squabs" by giving them a stag picnic. The pledges retaliated with the "Squab Scramble"—a buffet supper and dance at the Shelter.

Beta Tau is very proud of its athletes. We boast two men in the starting line-up of Nebraska's Rose Bowl team and two more members on the squad. Other athletes include a member of varsity baseball; men in freshman basketball, football, tennis, wrestling, and track. To aid and abet the athletes, we have two varsity cheerleaders and two men in Corn Cobs, the pep organization of the campus.

In addition, Nebraska Deltas have a number of men figuring prominently in campus activities. To name a few: Member of student council; member of Pershing Rifles; two senior officers in R. O. T. C.; member of University Theatre; and a political faction leader. And let's not forget our eligible bachelor, Dick Gellatly, who is one of the six men found most desirable in an election by the women of the campus. Another feather in our cap was the Delt skit which was one of fifteen chosen from a field of thirty-two to appear in the Kosmet Klub Fall Revue.

Beta Tau ranks among the leaders in intramural sports. Already we have earned a tennis trophy for our collection.

MAX WHITTAKER

Beta Upsilon—Illinois

AFTER A VERY successful but hectic rush week, during which we garnered twenty-three pledges, the chapter settled down to the routine of organization under "Prexy" Bill Moody. Emphasis was placed on scholarship, activities, and intramural participation.

Through the efforts of Proctor Ken Brooks, Vice-President John Gardner and the chapter as a whole, study rules have been kept well in hand; and we hope to initiate a good percentage of our pledges after this semester.

In activities, we are proudest of George Bernhardt, '41, who won this year's "Most Valuable Player" award for Illinois and Cliff Peterson, who won his Senior varsity letter. Ted DuBois, '41, was chosen as Cadet Col. of the R. O. T. C. and also was chosen as a member of Ma-wan-da, Senior men's honorary. Bill Giachetto, '42, is Junior advertising manager of the Illio. Philip McDonald, '42, Chuck Hawkins, '42, and Dean Wessel are all active in Men's League. Dean is also a member of the Illini Board of Control. All these men were instrumental in getting our pledges well started in various campus activities.

So far, we have earned more intramural points in every sport except water polo than we did last year at this time, capturing division titles in both softball and soccer.

So much for the past. As to the future—we are now mainly interested in final exams and the elections of new House officers.

So long, and good luck to all!
PHILIP McDONALD

Beta Phi—Ohio State

SINCE Beta Phi lost approximately twenty men in the graduating class last spring, the remaining representatives of the Shelter faced a real problem upon their return in the fall. The problem, not new to the fraternity world, was that of pledging an outstanding group of men who would be potential assets to the chapter, both as pledges and later as actives. This became a realization as we pledged twenty-two of the most sought-after men on the campus. They are making a fine showing, and we are sure they will all make the grade to become "Good Deltas." We are aware of the fact that it is the pledge class of today which will represent the Fraternity tomorrow.

Socially Beta Phi has been outstanding this fall with dances after the Minnesota and Michigan games leading the parade. The barn dance sponsored by the pledge class was one of the outstanding functions of the season, and enjoyed wide popularity on the campus. In addition, house dances held weekly at the Shelter added to the social entertainment of the members. Delt hay rides and other novel events were also a feature of the fall and winter season.

Shortly before Christmas, the men at the Shelter played host to a group of boys from a local orphanage, entertaining with presents, a fine dinner, and an all-around good time. The active touch football team made a fine showing in intramurals, losing only two games, while the pledge volleyball team won the flight championship, adding another trophy to our collection. Prospects are also good for bowling and basketball, just now getting under way.

We must not overlook our individual accomplishments, which play an important part in adding prestige to Beta Phi.

Harry Calavan, treasurer of the chapter, received an appointment as justice of the student court in his Junior year, and is a member of Bucket and Dipper, one of the men's honorary societies, and also of Ohio Stater's Incorporated.

Jim Kelso, newly elected "prexy" of the chapter, is active in Strollers, a dramatic society, and takes part in local radio activity.

Tom Dickey is a member of Ohio State's All-American marching band. Warren Drew has been appointed Junior block cheering section manager. Bob Kegerreis is a Sophomore class officer and is active in Strollers. Dickey, Drew and Kegerreis are members of Phi Eta Sigma freshman scholastic honorary. The Ohio State Lantern, campus daily, is fortunate in having Delt John Dietrich as sports editor. Wayne Lewis is a Sophomore cheerleader.

Beta Phi is well represented in intercollegiate athletics having six men on the varsity football team. These consist of Fritz Howard and Andy Rosen, guards; Les Horvath, backfield; Bill Vickroy, center; and Don McCafferty, end. Howard, Rosen and Horvath are lettermen. Playing spectacular football all season, Horvath was awarded the Quarterback Club's trophy as being the outstanding sophomore on the team.

Ed Moeller will represent the Shelter on the basketball court this season.

We are expecting great things from Freshman Ken Cochran who received his numerals this year in cross-country.

In a recent election Jim Kelso was named president of Beta Phi;

Ernie Eynon, vice-president; Don Kronenberger, recording secretary; John Oliver, corresponding secretary; and Harry Calavan, treasurer.

The drive for a new Shelter has been reopened, and we hope to see our dreams become a reality in the not too distant future.

JOHN OLIVER

Beta Chi—Brown

MID SEMESTER of the 1940-41 year finds the Beta Chi Shelter fairly bulging with activity. Scholastically, the chapter is preëminent at Brown; on the Dean's List appear the names of Bill Allen, '41, president of the Brown Engineering Society; Don Mikolas, '42, star hurdler and member of the Brown Key; Bill Roberts, '42, desk editor of the Brown Daily Herald, and Key man; Bob Curtis, '41; and Bill Beauchamp, '42.

We end the first semester with a strong Freshman delegation, including Jack Ahearn, outstanding diver; "Butch" Harding, swimmer and Glee Club man; John Pattee, captain of the Freshman football team and basketball guard; Doug Mikolas, already getting his pitching arm in shape for the baseball season; and George Rich, who had a lead in The Marquis, a Sock and Buskin Production.

Falcon John, '42, coaches the sabremen for the varsity fencing team. Steve Dolley, '42, is a contributing sportswriter for the Herald. Earl Dane, '41, varsity end and point-after specialist, represented Brown at the Annual Banquet for New England's Unsung Heroes. Ted Rickard, '41, boogie-woogie piano artist and Glee Club man, is one of the musical directors for this year's Brownbrokers Show.

Socially, the chapter highlighted this semester with several enjoyable events, among them being informal dances at Hallowe'en and Thanksgiving, tea dances during the football season, and a Christmas Formal.

The end of this semester sees the completion of a new recreation room, fitted with pine panelling and fluorescent lighting.

The bell tolls for "Bud" Losey, '42, and "Butch" Eggert, '41, varsity guard, who have been drafted under the Conscription Act. Yet the chapter looks forward to another semester of maintaining Beta Chi's leadership among the fraternities at Brown.

EDWARD H. RICKARD

Beta Psi—Wabash

BETA PSI started the fall semester with a bang. Fourteen men were pledged. These men have entered into school activities with a vigor. Ches Francis is showing up well on the Freshman basketball squad. Jim Martindale, Wayne Cox, John Nelson and Bob Kashner were the mainstays of the Freshman cross-country team. DalSasso and Wilde represented the Delts on the Freshman football squad.

On the other side of activities, Bob Shepler's mellow baritone voice got him a solo part in the Glee Club's Christmas program. Jack Ellis is tootin' a flute in the local symphony and there are four other freshman musicians in the band.

Beta Psi has been stepping out socially this fall. Something new for Wabash was the radio dance planned by that planner of planners, Dwight Hamborsky. Under his able guidance, the pledge dance also became another Delt triumph in originality. It was transformed into a political campaign, with both Willkie and Roosevelt being represented. However, when the heat of the campaign died down, Willkie girls danced affably with Roosevelt men. Quoth the venerable "Ham" with his usual charming modesty, "This dance that I planned was a tremendous success!"

The Delts have climbed high in the Wabash Thespian circles this fall. John Buzzard and Greyble McFarland were the leading characters in the hair-raising production The Chess Game.

Intramural sports have been only mediocre this fall, but the old fighting spirit is there in a plenty. Kohlstaedt, Hollinger, Young, Miller, Holt, Jack Kipp, and Pease, have all been working hard in football, volleyball, and basketball.

In varsity basketball, Earl Borre is this year Beta Psi's lone but fine representative.

ROBERT S. JOHNSON

Gamma Beta—Armour

GAMMA BETA is looking back on a successful first semester in their new Shelter. Rush week was very successful, resulting in the pledging of eighteen men. Active members Donald Knief and Bob Creagan were elected to Salamander, the Fire Protection Engineering honorary. The first important social event of the year, the pledge formal, turned out to be a fine dance, with an unusually large group of merry-makers attending.

Interfraternity competition is in full swing, with the football season completed, the bowling well under way, and basketball about to start. In touchball, the season was fairly successful, with Gamma Beta defeating her traditional rivals, and still the only House on the campus with two legs on the trophy. Bowling has not been so successful, but the issue has not, as yet, been decided in this competition. The chapter is, however, looking forward with high hopes to the capture of the basketball cup. Several promising pledges, and many outstanding veterans are on the team.

School basketball has a good start, with Umbright and Suthers, of Gamma Beta, on the squad. Pledges O'Leary and Stickling are out for the Freshman team, and O'Leary is proving to be a "natural." The school tennis team is working out indoors, with letterman Dunworth, and aspirant Philipps doing nice work. Pledge Curran is being built up for the golf team as a result of low scores turned in during the fall season. Creagan and Ekstrom are working out with the track team and much is expected from Ekstrom who was a star trackman in high school.

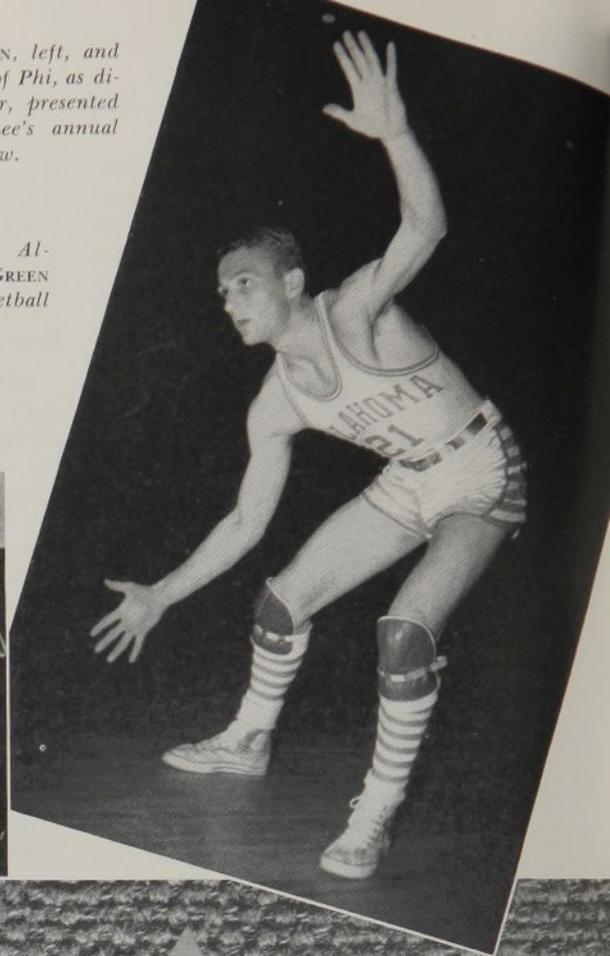

That about winds up the report for this issue, but mention must be made of Jack Rice, and pledges Blake Cooper, Chuck Shank, and Dick Ekstrom who are doing fine work in the Glee Club. Rice comes in for special mention because of his present work in preparing the chapter for the interfraternity sing.

Any wandering alumni who drop in to inspect the new Shelter will be more than welcome. Monday is now the official meeting night.

Gamma Gamma—Dartmouth

THE OPENING of college for the 1940-41 session found Gamma Gamma in the midst of the usual deferred rushing of men of the Sophomore class. When the smoke cleared, sixteen new men were well on the way to becoming good Delts and are now brothers. Three of these new men have already distinguished themselves on campus. Church Leonard, Dick Rudolph, and Neal Tyler were named to the assistant managerships of varsity track, basketball and swimming, respectively. There are but six major ranking sports at Dartmouth and come 1943, Delts will manage three of them.

Thus far this year Gamma Gamma has combined average athletes, good teamwork, and excellent spirit to a great advantage and has been a consistent winner. At the last official rating, $\Delta T \Delta$ rated third in twenty-two, but subsequent victories have boosted that mark to at least second.

In the line of varsity athletics, Gamma Gamma has ten lettermen, among whom Dick Howard, '41, is outstanding as track captain.

At the present the chapter is in the midst of preparation for the outstanding social event of the year—the Dartmouth Winter Carnival. Having dominated the Snow Sculpture in the past and retired the cup, we are out to gain a leg on the new award. Charles Gibbons, '42, is in charge of this year's sculpture. We are expecting the annual influx of both alumni and visiting Delts for the event, and are anticipating the year's best party.

Our ranks have been temporarily depleted by the Naval Reserve Training Cruises, one cruise providing the laugh of the year. One budding admiral returned to the house, greatly perturbed, and concerned with the state of the nation, having cruised all the way from Pier 3 to Pier 7 of the Norfolk Navy Yard. In the meantime, we remaining landlubbers sit in apprehension, one eye on our draft number, one eye on the Karnea date.

CHARLES S. FRANTZ

Gamma Delta—West Virginia

NEARING the half-way mark in our scholastic year, Gamma Delta can look back over a most successful first semester.

Starting off, we had a most successful rush week, resulting in the pledging of eighteen men. The pledge class organized under the able hand of Brother "Whizzer" McPherson, pledgemaster, and elected Howard Stuart, '44, of Fairmont, their president. A banquet honoring the new pledges was held shortly after the conclusion of rush week. Under their direction the annual Prep Pan, to which the pledges of the other campus fraternities and their dates were invited, was held and proclaimed an outstanding success.

Socially, Gamma Delta has been very active. Our reception for Mrs. Albert H. Lehman, our new house-mother, was attended by over two hundred. A formal dinner for Delts and their dates was held in the chapter house prior to the Pan-Hellenic dance. Our Christmas house party climaxed a socially successful first semester.

Scholastically, Gamma Delta is leading the campus, according to the mid-term averages. We hope to annex once again the scholarship trophy. Brother Joe Fraker is our scholarship chairman.

Since the beginning of school several of the brothers have gained additional honors on the campus. Brothers Butler, Gibson, and Matthews, have been initiated into Scabbard and Blade, joining Brothers Davis and McCartney, already members. Brothers Matthews and Tudor became members of Fi Batar Capar honorary. Brothers G. Davis and Sanchez joined Gibson, Haight, Matthews, and McCartney, as members of Eight-Ball, campus society honorary. Brother Jim McCartney became a member of Mountain, Senior men's honorary. Jim is also president of the Student Body.

In winter sports Gamma Delta is well represented. Brother Jim McCartney is serving his third year as a member of the varsity basketball team. Brother Gene Tudor and Pledge Brother Johnny Jones are regulars on the boxing team. Brothers Miles, Jorgenson and George Davis are our contributions to the wrestling team.

Looking ahead, plans are being made once again to play host to the military department at our annual Military Ball dinner. Arrangements are being made for our annual spring formal by James Townsend, social chairman, and in intramurals we are preparing to capture our third straight basketball championship.

ROBERT L. GIBSON

Gamma Zeta—Wesleyan

THE MIDNIGHT oil is burning late these nights as the Delts are all busy preparing for exams. Yet, with the exams less than a week away the Gamma Zetas are still keeping up active participation in campus activities.

The House is very well represented on the varsity basketball team. Bill Sinnamon is co-captain, while Hank Derbyshire, Phil Norton, Bill Zaiser, and Ted Brand are all on the squad. Charley Roberts, one of our talented Freshmen, is playing first string forward on the Freshman quintet, and to date is the high scorer on the team.

Tommy Gibb is our representative on the swimming team, and his consistency in winning points in the backstroke is well appreciated. Arne Rosengrin is one of the leading swimmers on the Freshman team.

Dean Brown and Bill Campbell are continually fighting each other to see who will represent Wesleyan in the 120-lb. class on the wrestling team. The Freshmen who are doing well are Fred Harwood, Fred Weismuller, and Paul Mosher. Brothers Tom Meeker and Bill Marsh are among the first seven on the squash team.

In the field of publications Tommy Gibb and Stan Lewis are two leading contestants for the Cardinal business board. Ed Vought is on the Argus business board.

One field in which the Delts practically have a monopoly is the Cardinal Network. One of the first, and one of the best, of the collegiate radio stations was built and engineered by Bob Stuart. Other Delts in the organization are Bill Marsh, Dick Wade, Bill Anderson, Hal Chase, Chuck Crowell, and Fred Herrigel.

The "Purple Tide" ($\Delta T \Delta$'s football team) ran roughshod over all opposition for the second consecutive year to annex the intramural touch football crown. Now the House is busy competing for honors on the basketball court. Joe Brown is our able and experienced captain.

In February Gamma Zeta is planning to initiate a large group of Freshmen and several Sophomores. We are planning a big banquet and hope that Division President Herb McCracken will be our principal speaker. Any Deltas in the vicinity are sincerely invited to attend the ceremonies to be held on the third Saturday in February.

FRED HERRIGEL, III

Gamma Eta—Geo. Washington

THE FALL semester at Gamma Eta was one of many activities. Following a successful rushing season, the chapter entered the tennis and golf tournaments of the interfraternity competition. James Woodard was the outstanding golfer, while Guy Ballou, John Jackson, Charles Beachy and Dean Nichols displayed their skill on the court. The fall sports season was highlighted, however, by the excellent performance of the basketball team captained by veteran Bob Garlick and supported by the fine performance of George Pagano, Dean Nichols, Guy Ballou, Archie Burklin, Lowell Moran and Bill Sibert. The team battled its way to a brilliant league victory, suffering no defeat. Pledge Dean Nichols gained distinction by placing highest in individual scoring of all the teams entered in the competition. Garlick and Nichols both placed on the University Hatchet's all-star team.

The Deltas have their share of C. A. A. pilots also, including Gene Banning, Jim Alford, Leon McCreight, Frank Loops, Jim Chesson, Guy Ballou and Owen Wheeler. Other campus fraternities are lucky to boast two "cloud hoppers."

Social functions for the semester were climaxed by a fall formal held at the Roger Smith Hotel November 20. Other parties and dances contributed to colorful week-ends; among these were the Halloween party, the Christmas party, and a New Year's Eve party. At this time last year Gamma Eta was first in scholarship among all the fraternities on the campus, and indications are that that record will carry on at the Delt house.

Events scheduled for the spring program include the highly anticipated annual Delt "Tacky Party" and also the yearly outing on scenic Skyland Drive.

JAS. A. CHESSON, JR.

Gamma Theta—Baker

GAMMA THETA appears to be headed for another big year at Baker University.

With final examinations coming up, Gamma Theta's scholarship record promises to be among the highest in recent years. The entire chapter average was high when six-week and twelve-week grade reports were issued and should be higher when final grades are released.

Leader in this extensive scholarship campaign is Pledge Bill Clark. So far this year Bill has been getting nothing but A's in all of his classes and probabilities are that he will finish the semester with that unusual average.

The "B" basketball team leads the intramural league without a defeat. The "A" team lost one game to finish second in the league in the first half of the schedule, but some added strength should hoist that team to the top in the second half of the schedule.

Karl Kramer withdrew from school just before Christmas to join Battery D of the National Guard at Olathe, Kan., for its one-year encampment at Ft. Robinson, Ark. Kramer, outstanding football, basketball and track man at Baker, is a corporal in his battery of the Guard and probably will become a sergeant soon, if he hasn't by this time.

Other Gamma Theta Deltas in Battery D are Captain Dennis Pearce and Lieutenant W. C. Tainter.

"Prexy" Earl Wait has represented Gamma Theta well on the campus as president of the student council.

Three members received their letters as members of the second-place Baker "Wildcat" football team this fall: Karl Kramer, quarterback; Brengle Starmer, end; and Don Roberds, center.

When the varsity basketball squad of fifteen members was announced recently, seven of the cagers were Deltas: Karl Kramer, Troy Gordon, Kenny Jackson, Joe Peters, Brengle Starmer, Rodney Starmer and Harold "Tuffy" Walters.

The annual meeting of the executive committee of the board of trustees of Baker University just before Christmas caused the hearts of Gamma Theta men to swell. Four of the seven members of that committee are Gamma Theta alumni: Henry J. Allen, Lauren Conger, Charles Becks, and Homer Hoch.

The pledge party, December 14, was one of the most memorable of recent years and actives were sincere in their voluminous expressions of appreciation.

Don Roberds and Leland Weber have been chosen to head the rush committee for the coming year and have really been digging in to uncover replacements for the large number of vacancies expected next year.

Bob Dosieu was elected treasurer for 1941, succeeding Bob Osborn.

TROY E. GORDON

Gamma Iota—Texas

GAMMA IOTA of $\Delta T \Delta$ is on its way to one of the most successful years of its history. The record of Gamma Iota since the beginning of school bears this out.

Forty-one active members of Gamma Iota returned to participate in rush week activities. We had a most successful rush week, for when the three-day period was over there were twenty-one new pledges wearing the Delt pledge button. Five old pledges returned giving Gamma Iota a pledge class of twenty-six men—one of the largest on the campus. Since rush week several other men have been pledged.

Gamma Iota formally opened its new house, October 5. More than one thousand friends and alumni attended the five-hour open house. The formal opening was an outstanding success, and was one of the largest social affairs of the season.

Keeping up its high social rating, Gamma Iota has held a number of social affairs since the beginning of the school year. The social affairs of the fall semester were brought to a climax with the fall formal which was held January 10. It was a very successful dance. Several other social affairs were held during the fall semester—open houses, buffet dinners, and luncheons.

When the University of Colorado football team played in Austin, Gamma Iota held a buffet dinner in honor of the Colorado Deltas playing on the team. Dr. Rainey, president of the University of Texas has been a guest of Gamma Iota at a luncheon, and several faculty members of the University have been our guests at various times.

We are now looking forward to the spring formal which will be held March 8. At that time we shall be dancing to the music of Jimmy Lunceford.

Gamma Iota celebrated its Homecoming the week-end of the A. & M. game. On the day of the game a buffet luncheon and dinner were served. Over two hundred alumni and friends visited us and the affair was distinctly a success. The smashing victory of Texas over A. & M. made the affair even more of a success.

Gamma Iota has been active on other fronts. The scholastic averages of the twenty-six fraternities on the campus were announced October 1. Gamma Iota was ranked fifth out of the twenty-six which is indeed a high honor for a fraternity of this size. We hope to maintain this high position in the future.

In intramural sports Gamma Iota has ranked high—in the upper fourth of the fraternity division. Basketball is now in full swing and the two teams entered are expected to go far.

The annual Varsity Carnival which all fraternities and sororities entered was held December 9. Gamma Iota was represented by a show starring Stalin, Hitler, Mussolini, O'Daniels, Martin Dies and numerous hillbillies. This show was one of the most popular on the floor playing to capacity crowds at every performance.

Individual members of Gamma Iota have been active. Malcolm Kutner, one of our pledges, was placed on several of the All-Southwest Conference second teams, and was one of the thirteen men who toppled A. & M. after nineteen straight victories. He is also a regular forward on the University of Texas basketball team. Tom Law, Robert Sneed, and Bill West are members of the Debate Squad—Tom being captain. Joe Corbin and Bob Wilson are members of the U. of T. Glee Club. Joe is a member of the Longhorn Quartette and was recently elected librarian and stage manager of the Glee Club. Bob Carmichael is a candidate for the track team—specializing in the dashes and broad jump. Dick Knowles was elected one of the five cheerleaders of the University at a pep rally before the first football game of the season. Bobby Kelly is a member of the Freshman basketball squad. I. E. Clark was recently elected to Phi Beta Kappa, and is also on the Sports Staff of the Daily Texan. Stanley Jung is editor of the fraternity section of the Cactus. Grady Chandler, Jr., is one of the staff cartoonists of the humor magazine, the Ranger. Austin Leach was elected secretary of the A. S. M. E. and was also elected president of the University Aeronautical Society. Bob Sneed was elected president of the Freshman Fellowship Club, the only social organization for Freshmen on the campus.

So Gamma Iota is off to a good start for a very successful year. We hope to make this the best year in history.

STANLEY BANKS, JR.

Gamma Kappa—Missouri

THE FIRST semester of 1940-41 is almost over, and Gamma Kappa can look back on a term that was slow in starting, but didn't take long to gain momentum and really start rolling.

With the help of Garth Slater and our new resident adviser, Donald Pritchard from Pittsburgh, we pledged fourteen fine boys during rush week. Since then we have pledged six due to the cooperation of the whole chapter with Bill McGinness, the rush chairman.

Our social season was opened with our Third Annual Orchid Ball which was one of the outstanding dances on the campus. A new and unusual touch was given the ball this year by the addition of formal invitations which were provided for each date. These invitations, in glazed orchid ink, accompanied by tiny spray orchids—specially obtained from California for the purpose—were delivered by the glee club on Thursday evening before the dance on Saturday. Then, following the usual custom, each date received an orchid corsage the night of the party.

Four new affiliates are active in our Shelter this year. John Aufder Heide, Jack Stevenson, and Earl Saunders came to us from Delta Omicron at Westminster College, while Larry Dickinson came from Gamma Pi at Iowa State College.

Something new has been started in the House this year with a round-table discussion being held for an hour each Thursday evening on the theme of Occupational Orientation. An outstanding person of the University or Columbia heads the discussions.

Bill Reed, Jim Lowry, and Don Pritchard have been the leading point winners to keep Gamma Kappa in the race for the top in intramural sports. Led by Ed Stokely as intramural manager, the football team ended up in second place and points were also collected in tennis, golf, handball, and aerial dart. L. W. Yates and Bob Stewart are doing great and are heading the bowling team into first place. With the basketball team still undefeated and ten good men ready for table tennis, Gamma Kappa should be in first place in two weeks.

Many Deltas are very active on Missouri's campus. Paul Cunningham, our out-going treasurer, is a member of Scabbard and Blade and also of the rifle team. Jim McVay, whose brother, Bill, is also a Delt, is a member of Men's Glee Club and is the Secretary-Treasurer of the Fencing Club. Our president, Fred Stockdale, serves as a University concert usher. John Ernst holds an office in the interfraternity pledge council and another pledge, Ray Watkins, is on the Freshman Council.

Some new offices had to be filled this year so Jack Stevenson is the newly elected social chairman, Paul Mueller the treasurer, and the list is completed by your correspondent.

Jam-sessions have been held in the Shelter often this year. It seems that we pledged some great swingers. Bob Stewart can really beat out on the drums and when Jim McVay and Jim Lowry join in with the piano and the saxophone, respectively, boy, you really start to swing!

With exams facing us in two weeks it is hard to tell much about the future, but I am sure Gamma Kappa will not let the other chapters down in any way.

Gamma Kappa wishes to extend a Happy New Year to all brother Delts.

LARRY W. DICKINSON

Gamma Lambda—Purdue

THIS YEAR has again proved to be no exception to the general rule that finds the Delts of Gamma Lambda one of the most active groups on the Purdue campus. The seventeen pledges and thirty-eight actives have been setting a pace in scholastics, activities, and social endeavors that will cause them little fear of losing any of their hard-won prestige.

As far as the "big guns" on the campus are concerned, there are a number of Gamma Lambda's lads who could be billed under the title. In the senior class, President Tom Petty and Bob Bailey, Purdue's ace baseball twirler, are members of the Gimlet Club, senior honorary. Dick Thornton is the manager of the Glee Club, while Ralph Wunderlich holds down a singing post in that organization. Keith Correll is well known in Purdue's sport circles, by virtue of his seven athletic sweaters garnered in football and baseball.

Frosty Sprowl, a junior, is the leading scorer of the Boilermaker basketball squad. Burt Anthony is Purdue's ace quarter-miler. Johnny Adamson is an associate sports editor on the Purdue Exponent. Bill Hepburn is a vice-president of the Student Union. "Pug" Lawrence is the chief politician of Gamma Lambda by virtue of his job in the Student Senate. Jim Mercer has the position of baseball manager.

Curt Lanius is bringing glory to the Sophomore class by being elected president of the Skull and Crescent, honorary sophomore society, and also being very active in the Student Union. Dwight Zellar and Dick Carr are on the yearbook staff; Will Shockley holds an important spot on the Forensic Board; and there are three more of Gamma Lambda's sophomores in the Student Senate.

Highlighting the local lads' social season so far this year, has been our pledge dance held in a barn, and several radio dances. A formal affair is being planned for sometime in the near future, while our Turkey Run house party will come later in the spring.

Gamma Lambda's athletes started things out right this year by winning the intramural golf crown. The bowling team is in first place at the present time and is being given a good chance of grabbing another trophy. When spring rolls around, the Delt diamond men will be out to defend the baseball title that they won last year.

The house is in better condition as a result of a thorough going-over last summer. A small addition to the Shelter has just been completed in order to provide better rooming conditions for our house mother.

JOHN F. ADAMSON, JR.

Gamma Mu—Washington

OF THE eleven thousand students attending the University of Washington, no single group has been any more active during the first part of this school year than the one-half of one per cent of that body who call the Delta Shelter home. The evening before this letter was written the Delts were in the limelight at the University's most lavish social function of the year, the annual Varsity Ball. Nearly a thousand couples filled Seattle's Civic Auditorium to enjoy this formal affair planned by Burt Waldo, general chairman, and Ben Lindsay, business manager. The chapter attended in such numbers as to virtually make the dance a House function. The evening began with a formal dinner at the chapter house.

A glimpse backward to fall quarter recalls that the chapter's rushing program ended with twenty new pledges from all over the Northwest. Some of those who have already distinguished themselves on the campus include Jim McGuinness, Seattle, president of the University Riding Club; Curtiss Meeker, Yakima, secretary of the Freshman Interfraternity Council; Robert Fraser, Spokane, and Vernon Walton, Seattle, who already have letter sweaters for glee club participation; and Keith Kolb, Helena, Mont., and George Crosser, Billings, Mont., members of the varsity band. Herbert Sugg, Vancouver, Wash., licensed pilot, is searching for a place to keep his plane in Seattle. The pledges deserve much of the credit for the chapter's large accumulation of points in intramural sports; already we have about as many points as for the entire year last year.

Chapter members who tried their hands at new jobs include John Nelson, recently elected chapter president, who was chairman of Homecoming signs and is now campaigning for election to the post of Senior Representative to the Student Board of Control; Robert Whiteley, minor sports manager; and Ben Lindsay, who was awarded a Certificate of High Scholarship for his freshman year by the University president, chairman of showings of movies of out-of-town football games.

Past president Will Teller, who graduated in December, is now affiliated with the Puget Sound Power and Light Company here. Emil "Skid" Hanson departed for Pensacola to train for naval aviation. Also doing their bit for national defense are three Delts who have gone to work at Boeing Aircraft here, Clifford Ellis, Gene Norris, and Jack Grauer. Don Christensen, past vice-president of the student body, was recently married to the former Miss Iverne Perry, Chi Omega.

The house is in tip-top shape with its fresh coat of paint applied this last summer. Our faithful Mothers' Club remodeled the stairway and entrance to the dining room, and gave us new, quiet carpets for our stairways. The pledges just finished a four-day work week which left the Shelter in first-class repair.

Our fall informal, the "Ghoul Gallop," honoring the pledge class, featured a realistic corpse in a borrowed coffin and epitaphs for each pledge. Costumes were in keeping with the graveyard motif. The pledge Christmas party inaugurated by last year's pledge class, at which pledges and actives turnabout, became traditional with its repetition this year, and again featured the campus' only Christmas lights on the front of the Shelter, spelling out "Greetings."

Some of our less orthodox activities included the appearance of five Delts as "supers" in the Ballet Russe when it appeared in Seattle. They were launched on their stage careers by pledge Sidney Stambaugh, Deer Lodge, Mont., who is an accomplished ballet dancer and has appeared occasionally with the Ballet Russe. A chapter profit which doesn't show on the books accrued early in the fall when Chapter Adviser Lane Summers, prominent Seattle maritime attorney, offered the House one dollar for each member of the initiating team who spoke his part letter-perfect. Mr. Summers lost five dollars. We haven't yet determined the winner of a bet between Gamma Rho's pledge class (Oregon) and ours on the pledge grade average for the first quarter. The stake amounts to twenty dollars, to come out of the pledges' pockets! One of their men still owes Burt Waldo a sheepskin bet, and he lost on the outcome of the Washington-Oregon football game. Gamma Rho was a little overconfident; they offered to bet their living room furniture, and later offered to bet us a pledge!

Principal Delt activity in Seattle now, both undergraduate and alumni, is planning for the Northwest Honorary Initiation which alternates yearly between Portland and Seattle. We hope to have scores of Delts from all over the Northwest here February 8, to meet President Paul G. Hoffman, who has indicated he will attend the banquet. Two honor initiates from each of the four Northwest chapters will be initiated by a team of Seattle alumni headed by Ed Campbell.

It was news to us to read in the last RAINBOW that we enjoy the questionable distinction of being the northernmost Delt chapter. But can you blame Editor Harry Green for plugging his old chapter?

BENJAMIN B. LINDSEY

Gamma Nu—Maine

AS GAMMA NU is working under abnormal conditions this year due to the destruction of the chapter house by fire last May, we lack the usual activities to report on.

However, we are keeping together as a group extremely well and everyone is looking forward to living in the new house which has been under construction since December 8.

We are participating in intramural sports and, at present, the bowling team is second in the league. Our winter sports team is shaping up for the annual carnival in February.

Our rushing period starts February 3 and we hope to have a successful season although we will be working at a disadvantage compared to other years.

GEORGE D. GILMAN

Gamma Xi—Cincinnati

THE scholastic average of Gamma Xi has been raised considerably this year by the very excellent grades of many of the members of our pledge class. Those especially to be commended are Bob Calvert, Walt Bertsche, Carl Schroeder, George Ingersoll, and George Bruestle.

Immediate past president George

"Baldy" Dawson has been elected to O Δ K, national honorary men's activities fraternity. George is also president of the Interfraternity Presidents' Council. Ken Heuck is a member of Sigma Sigma and "Jud" Hall of Ulex, upperclassmen's honoraries. Ken Heuck, our new vice-president, has been elected vice-president of the Men's Senate of which John "Chum" Klum is secretary-treasurer. Paul Riffle, an Ohio Wesleyan grad, now here in Law School, is president of the Student Council. "Chum" Klum also holds the position of vice-president of the "Y" Cabinet. In the realm of forensics, Karl Keck is treasurer of the Debate Council. Ed Beiting is a Delt representative in student government inasmuch as he is a member of the Applied Arts College Tribunal and so is Walt Ismael, member of social board and teachers' college tribunal. Tom Porter is president of the Association of Commercial Engineers. The success of the Delt team in the annual Intramural Debate Tournament was complete. Our team, composed of Maurice Frost and Bob Hetzel, won the contest in a decisive manner. Another trophy for our already overloaded trophy case is the reward. Bob Hetzel was awarded the gold key for ranking first among all the debaters, and Maurice garnered a certificate for his forensic efforts.

In November the chapter "threw," and we do mean "threw," one of our famous Old Clothes Brawls. The Δ T Δ Dames gave their annual Christmas party in December to which "everybody and his uncle" came to enjoy a taste of that good old Yuletide spirit. Delt Robert C. Gowdy, Dean of the University Engineering School, obliged with a talk on the outlook for the young men in the United States with regard to the present crisis. The traditional Christmas Formal which followed a few days later continued the series of Holiday festivities in which the Delts indulged.

Our new "prexy" Ed "Dink" Dinkelaker has become engaged to Jean Schwab, president of Kappa Delta. Baldy Dawson has announced his success with Janet Henderson. Others whom Cupid has pierced: Tommy Jacobs and Kay Sullivan; Walt "Ish" Ismael and Jean Krohme; Bob "Rie" Rie- man and Audrey Theler; Al Vontz and Essie Lueders; Mac Mac De- vitt and Libby Rie; Bo Koenig and "Fly" Danford.

It is too early in the intramural race to report much. Delta Tau Delta is still the best volleyball machine on campus by a mile. Other sports look as promising as last year when we won the championship. If we repeat it will have been the fifth time, and $\Delta T \Delta$ gets the handsome trophy for keeps. Those of us who aren't athletes get out and root so that the whole chapter is out there fighting.

For the second straight year the boys from the Shelter built the best float in the annual Homecoming parade and were duly rewarded with another trophy. "Baldy" is chairman of the Engineers' Ball, having last year been chairman of the Interfraternity Dance. Pledges Jack Strubbe and Morris Frost were elected to the Freshman "Y" Cabinet. "Chum" is "prexy" of the Glee Club and Rick Nielsen treasurer. The year is only half through and there's plenty yet to do to add to what has been accomplished. We'll be back in the August issue, so 'til then, "So long."

KARL GLENN KECK, JR.

Gamma Pi—Iowa State

GAMMA PI started what promises to be a banner year by pledging sixteen men during rush week. Fall quarter was highlighted by informal activities, the Pledge Day Fire- side, the annual Delt Hayride, and Homecoming. At the beginning of winter quarter, the air was filled with blue cigar smoke as Kent Magruder announced his engagement to Carrie Palmer. A few days later Willard Jones followed suit by announcing his betrothal to Connie Gray. At the end of fall quarter Max Ryerson Fletcher received a degree in agricultural engineering. Max now has a position with the Allison Aircraft Engine Division of General Motors.

Plans for the chapter's new Shelter under the able direction of Hal Brenton and the Gamma Pi House- building Committee are approaching completion and we expect news from them very soon.

Many of Gamma Pi's men participate in widely diversified activities on the Iowa State Campus. The men engaged in activities include: Kent Magruder, president of Gamma Pi, who was a delegate to the National Interfraternity Conference from the Iowa State Interfraternity Council; Fred Siegrist is photographic editor of the 1941 Bomb; Reynolds Emerson, a member of the Science Council and Cardinal Guild, student governing body, and chairman of Mardi Gras, the Science Division's annual dance; Bill Cutts won a numeral as end on the Freshman football team and is out for track, accompanied by John McKee; Dan Johnston is a member of, and John Carpenter a pledge of Phi Mu Alpha, national music honorary; John Robbin is Freshman basketball manager; Rol Meyer is a hurdler on the varsity track team; Sid Moore, Dale Meyers, John Carpenter, John Selby, and Rex Balmson are on the Iowa State marching band roster; Sid Moore, Bill Pad- dock, and John Kuelme are members of the Iowa State Players; and Bruce Patterson and Gene Ilten are members of the Iowa State Pon- toniers, engineers' crack drill organization. In intramurals the active touch football team crushed all opposition in round robin play and emerged unbeaten to compete in the Class A league; here they were finally defeated by a strong Phi Gam team. Now as the basketball season begins, hopes are high for a winning basketball team.

All in all, the Delts are well satisfied with their record to date and we are working for greater things to come this year.

BENNER HITCHCOCK

Gamma Rho—Oregon

A SUMMER rushing program that covered three states bore fruit this fall term in Gamma Rho's pledg- ing of eighteen fine men. California contributed seven, bringing that state's quota in the House to its highest point in years. Gamma Rho's newly chosen proved them- selves with the publication of the University's official grade averages.

$\Delta T \Delta$ was second among fraterni- ties, edged out only by Sigma Alpha Mu.

Evidence that her new men were not one-sided was shown when Delts were in intramural finalists in golf, tennis, and volleyball.

A constant stream of invitations has proven Delt popularity on the campus this year, giving the House one of its most successful social seasons.

This summary would not be com- plete without a word of praise for Gamma Rho's well-known presi- dent, Frank Thomas Atkinson, for his work both in the chapter and on the campus, pushing Deltism.

Plans for the best regional con- ference Gamma Rho and Delta Lambda can produce are being rushed to completion in the anti- cipation of delegate arrivals next month. The week-end of February 22 is the date set with activities both here and Oregon State. Guests sought are none other than H. J. Jepsen, Western Division President, and Paul G. Hoffman, President of $\Delta T \Delta$. To insure the affair's suc- cess, the Portland alumni group in- tends to be present in full force.

CARL MAIZE

Gamma Sigma—Pittsburgh

GAMMA SIGMA opened the fall season by pledging twenty-six men at the conclusion of the one week rushing period. This was more than any other fraternity on the University of Pittsburgh campus pledged. Combined with seven holdover pledges, the total was thirty-three, which we have been informed was the largest number of pledges of any Delt chapter in the country.

The chapter was not unusually successful in the fall sports' pro- gram, but managed to take a third place in speedball. Things are go- ing better in the winter sports pro- gram and we are in second place, pressing the leaders, for the Inter- fraternity All-Point Trophy.

As usual, Gamma Sigma has its share of Pitt campus honors. Bob Shaw tops the list as president of Scabbard and Blade; Vice-Presi- dent of $O \Delta K$, national activities fraternity; and President of the Pitt

Y. M. C. A. Jack Stauff, Gamma Sig vice-prexy, is editor of the local humor magazine and a member of the student governing association. Bill Sheris is editor of the yearbook. Bob Jones, House president, is comptroller of the school magazine. Dave Buente is a member of the student governing association and vice-president of Scabbard and Blade. T. J. Lewis is co-chairman of the Senior Memorial Committee. Dan Cannon is a member of Quill Club, honorary writing fraternity, and of Pitt Players. Dave Naley is a member of the yearbook staff, a committee chairman for the Freshman Dance, and a department head of the campus magazine. George Gregg is the cartoonist for the campus humor magazine. Pledge Charles Camarata is a feature writer for the school newspaper. Business manager of the Junior Prom is Pledge Howard Hanna. Walt Dickinson is a member of the Y. M. C. A. cabinet. Bob Bentley is assistant comptroller of the campus magazine, and is a member of the Pitt Band, along with Pledges Tom Pitzer, Bob Totten, and John Kennedy.

In athletics, Gamma Sigma is well represented. Bill Benghauser, John Stahl, and Harris Hawkins are members of the varsity football squad. Pledge Bud Kincaid is a member of the squad and Jim Clowes is on the Freshman football team. Bob Soles is a member of the varsity swimming team. Bert Beerbower is Junior football manager. Pledge Jack Foley is Freshman basketball manager. Ed Cornelius is Sophomore football manager. Jim Klein is a first-string varsity basketball player.

Gamma Sigma feels confident that the end of this school year will show a brilliant record for her.

DAN CANNON

Gamma Tau—Kansas

GAMMA TAU welcomes all active members and alumni of $\Delta T \Delta$ to the Conference of the Western Division to be held at Lawrence, Kansas, February 14 and 15. Plans for it are going along in fine style at this time, and we're hoping for the best Conference ever. There will be a smoker at the Shelter the first night, Thursday, Feb. 13, and a gala dinner party at the Student Union Building, Saturday night. Friday, all of us will go to the Founder's Day Banquet in Kansas City.

Charles Soller, Washington, Kansas, is our newly elected president. His cohorts will be Ward Benkelman, vice-president, and J. R. Jones, Indianapolis, Indiana, treasurer, along with several other capable leaders. We're looking forward to a progressive year under these outstanding officers.

Our rush week was necessarily small last fall, for we had nearly a house full of active Delts returning. We pledged fourteen new men, and will initiate most of them in February.

We shall appreciate help from all our nearby alumni in rushing for next fall, as many of us are graduating next spring.

Brother John Blocker, for several years our chapter adviser, is gone from his position at the head of the Accounting Department on a one-year leave of absence. He is now teaching cost accounting at the University of California. Last year he completed a textbook for Cost Accounting which has already had twenty-eight adoptions, among them being in such noted business schools as California and Columbia. He will be back with Gamma Tau again next year.

BILL REECE

Gamma Upsilon—Miami

UPON RETURNING last fall, we found that the U. S. Army Air Corps and good jobs had claimed the greatest number of "non-returners" that the chapter has experienced in years. All of the classes found vacancies in their midst as we took up school this fall.

At the start we were proud to announce the pledging of two Sophomores, Ted Migdal and Andy Vonovitch. Later we found "Teddy" sparking the Miami football team, and Andy is now playing steady varsity basketball. Jack Meier also played fine football in the end position. Jack played first string this year and still has another year of football ahead of him.

There is a full "Delt" representation on the Miami basketball team. Five Delts are on the team: Captain Jim Van Orsdel, Wayne Clapp, Ted Migdal, Andy Vonovitch, and Bill Carr. Carr suffered an ankle injury at the start of the season and has been unable to play since, but the remaining four are giving steady service to the team.

In intramurals the "play-off voodoo" seems to still be with us. Both divisions of basketball lost in the play-offs; we finished second in bowling in both divisions; and fall softball found us runners-up for the cup. Pit volleyball is just starting and we have our fingers crossed because the chances look good.

The fall formal dance was held at the Shelter this year and under the leadership of social chairman Edgar it was run off with its usual smoothness. A hay ride and a buffet supper finish the fall social calendar as we mark time waiting for next semester and the spring season for the holding of our biggest social events.

Staying up late at night now working on the student paper is Bob Shape, associate editor. Jim Davies is also found at the job when he is not getting in shape for his entrance in the Golden Gloves competition. Harold Feldmaier and "The Baron" Leininger are working on the school annual and in the meantime are pulling down the top grades in the chapter.

Latest events are the pledging of Sophomore Bob Jacobs who proceeded to get the next highest grades in the House, being nosed out by potential "Phi Bete" Neil Baumgartner, the scholarship chairman. Also, the chapter annual comes off the press the day of this writing, as its editor, Bob Shape, makes his contribution to the coming rushing season which is held the first week in February. The C. A. A. boys, "Lindy" Warner and Bob Jacobs have talked a few more into joining them in the flight training, so it looks as though a Delt flight squadron will be dusting the roof of the Shelter this spring.

We close by congratulating Junie Hunter on being recently elected to the position of treasurer and wish him the best of luck in the coming year.

ELMER WARD

Gamma Phi—Amherst

AFTER finishing a successful rushing season in which thirteen freshmen and three sophomores were added to the chapter, thanks to the excellent work of rushing chairman Jack Wysor and the cooperation of the whole house, Gamma Phi swung into her usual large participation in campus activities.

The chapter is well represented on all the college publications: Tom Wilcox and Jack Wysor took their places gained last year on the Amherst Student, as assistant treasurer and member of the editorial staff, respectively. Harry Cramer is this year business manager of the Olio, while Charlie Peirce is art editor of the Touchstone, and Tom Wilcox and "Red" Valens are on the art staff; Jack Wysor and Bill Webber are on the business board.

In athletics, the chapter has also been active. "Red" Valens is again captain of the ski team, and Jim Wells is president of the Outing Club. Pete Macomber won his freshman numerals in cross-country, and Dick Donaldson won his in freshman football. Otis Cary received his letter in soccer. M. Davis is on the wrestling team. Bill MacNamee is competing for cheerleader.

In the presentations of the Masquers, the Amherst dramatic society, "Stu" Kinney is Stage Manager. Charlie McCallum and Bob Freeman are competing for the stage managership in the future, while Bill MacNamee is out for the business board. Charlie Pierson took part in the Masquers Apprentice production, and Bob Farwell, Warren Wallace and Dave Carson take parts in the plays.

Bill Machmer, Jim Wells, "Hank" Stryker, Dave Carson are again in the Glee Club and Warren Rossell joined this year. Warren is also in the band with "Hank" Butterworth and Don Thomsen. Charlie Pierson is in the choir.

Gamma Phi is active in debating, with M. Davis and Don Thomsen as members of the Debating Council. Davis is also acting as manager of the Freshman debating team, and of the Speakers' Club. Charlie Pierson and Warren Rossell are out for the Freshman debating team.

M. Davis is also in the Fraternity Business Management with Dick Farwell.

"Ace" Stewart is still president of the Sphinx Club, and Charlie McEvoy, treasurer of the Student Council.

"Hank" Stryker is president of the Pre-Medical Club, Art Brogna, treasurer of the Pre-Law Club.

The House is again very strong scholastically, having nine on the Dean's List and two members in Phi Beta Kappa.

RICHARD W. CASE

Gamma Chi—Kansas State

GAMMA CHI got off to a good start this fall with a most successful rush week. The excellent work of rush captain Norris Holstrom and his assistants was undoubtedly an important factor in the results.

Our annual Father's Day was held in the latter part of November and was very well attended. Many of the fathers were here for both the football game on Saturday and the dinner on Sunday.

At present in intramurals Gamma Chi is only a few points out of first place. Our intramural golf team placed first in the tournament with Wayne Wittenberger receiving the medal for low score. Probably our greatest thrill this fall came in winning the school championship in touch football. It was a hard fight all the way and the boys on the team certainly deserve a great deal of credit.

This year Gamma Chi is represented on the varsity basketball team by Norris Holstrom, Jack Horacek and Warren Hornsby. Having played basketball together in high school, they form an important cog in the varsity team. Also in the sporting line we find Harold Kalousek and Bob Washburn who are cheerleaders for Kansas State.

Early in November the annual Paddle Party was given by the pledge class in honor of the graduating seniors. The decorations were excellent and credit for these goes to "Buck" Martin and his decorating committee. At the intermission period in the evening, the seniors put on a very humorous floor show under the able direction of the pledges. The seniors were then rewarded for their efforts by receiving large souvenir paddles as a gift from the pledge class.

To complete the social activities for the fall, we held our annual Christmas party in the Shelter. The theme for this year's party was that of a "jelly joint" and the decorations were very complete in every detail. The party was started off with the serving of a turkey dinner and the remainder of the evening was spent in playing cards and dancing.

ROBERT WASHBURN

Gamma Psi—Georgia Tech

ONE YEAR ago this January, Gamma Psi moved into its new chapter house. This year finds the house improved with the addition of shrubs and a lawn, and the beginnings of a terrace on the back of the lot. Thanks to Brother "Pop Hoffman" of Savannah our alumni room is well furnished and we are very grateful to him for his gift of the furnishings.

Our rushing season this year has proved very successful in pledging sixteen good men, who have shown their abilities in activities and sports. Harry Morrow, Jim Weaver, Herb Glass and Charlie Lynch were on the Freshman football team, and showed good promise. Other freshmen were active on publications and managerial posts.

Bill Woodard was elected president of the Sophomore class, which gives him two seats on the Student Council as he was elected last spring as Sophomore Representative. John Fullenlove is treasurer of the Student Council, Jim Griffeth is Junior basketball manager and new Interfraternity Council Representative, Paul Woodruff is Junior football manager, and Charlie Smith is Senior swimming team manager. Bruce Parmenter is exchange editor of the Yellow Jacket and the staff has more than ten Delts on it. John Fullenlove is managing editor of the Blue Print and this staff also has its share of Delts.

The results of the scholarship for last year found Gamma Psi in second place. It is hoped that this year will turn out as well due to a brilliant group of the Juniors.

Mid-term dances will bring Will Bradley to Tech and the chapter is planning a house party to accommodate a large number of out-of-town dates. Plans are also under way for the annual Artists and Models Ball and a Founder's Day Dance in cooperation with Beta Epsilon at Emory and the Atlanta alumni.

The chapter has really turned air minded with the introduction of the C. P. T. Leibert Bower, Ed Clapp and Bruce Parmenter are about to finish this term's course. In addition, our chapter adviser, Gordon Curtiss, is taking his training on his own and took the pilot's test only a short while ago. Next step, they hope, is to get the chapter to buy a plane.

Our first year in the new house has shown a lot of progress in the chapter and with our plans for improvement it is hoped that 1941 will see us a lot further ahead.

BRUCE W. PARMENTER

Delta Alpha—Oklahoma

DURING THE past summer, Delta Alpha was remodeled practically from "head to foot." A new lounge was the greatest improvement. This has tiletex floors, new fireplace, knotty pine walls, and a new acoustic celotex ceiling. The dining room, the bathrooms, the kitchen, and the chapter room were all remodeled.

This remodeling paved the way for a most successful rush season, during which Delta Alpha pledged seventeen men. Credit for much of this is due Don Raines, the untiring rush captain.

The University celebrated Dad's Day October 19, and Delta Alpha had one of the biggest celebrations on the campus. We had one of the most unusual dances ever given at the University of Oklahoma—a "Boom Town" dance, October 26. Oil wells spouted "oil" in the form of black confetti while spotlights played on the oil wells. It was the most novel dance of the year.

On November 16, we had Homecoming, and a great many alumni visited the Shelter from all over the state. Especially attendant were men from the alumni chapters at Tulsa and Oklahoma City.

On November 26, was a house party and buffet supper. The house was decorated as a hunting lodge, food was prepared and served accordingly, boys and their dates dressed in clothes to fit the occasion, and the effect was very realistic.

Following these novel parties of the fall and the winter, Delta Alpha gave the most beautiful dance of the season in the Christmas dance, December 13. Three gigantic silver Christmas trees with blue lights were placed on the floor. Silver icicles hung from the ceiling, and huge metallic Christmas cards covered the walls. This entire scheme was finished in blue and silver. Is it any wonder that all the girls raved?

Yes, all the campus has heard of the famous Delt serenades, but never before in the chapter's history have they given one like that of December 15, 1940. Refreshments, of course, were given by all the sororities, and one sorority, Kappa Kappa Gamma, gave a special party for the fraternity whose serenades are unequalled and unapproached. The next night the chapter was asked by Dr. Bizzell, President of the University, to come to his home and sing. It was at this occasion that the chapter presented the President with his Christmas present.

But Delta Alpha is not only playing this year, but doing good work, too. We are well up among the leaders in fraternity scholarship, being second among the nineteen fraternities on the campus. Deltas are being placed in more campus activities every day, and we are having another great year at the University of Oklahoma.

JAMES E. DAVIS

Delta Beta—Carnegie Tech

DELTA BETA had a very successful rushing season this year at our new Shelter on Morewood Place. We pledged nineteen fellows and will initiate them February 1. To get our new chapter room off to a flying start, we are opening it for the first time for the initiation. Invitations are being sent to the officers of $\Delta T \Delta$ to attend this initiation and help us make this another banner year. Initiation will be held in the afternoon, after which there will be a stag banquet and after that, our usual formal initiation dance.

Shortly after school started this fall, the Deltas and their pledges combined forces to win the intramural touch football championship for the second consecutive year. To keep up the good work, our basketball team is at the top of the ladder, having won all of their games so far. The school table-tennis champion, Hugh Bek, and a very likely group of actives and pledges, make the table-tennis trophy look well within our grasp.

Ion Cunningham, our British friend, sailed for England November 26 to lend a capable hand against Hitler and his "Ratzi's." After a summer of flying lessons in Pittsburgh, we are confident that he will make a good showing in the Royal Air Force.

For those of you who have been wondering what happened to "Bud" Murphy, field secretary for $\Delta T \Delta$, let me inform you that he is now Consular on Student Financial Aid, at Carnegie Tech. Shortly after he took this position, he was chosen to be faculty advisor for Delta Beta.

WITH THE first half of the school year drawing to a close, Delta Gamma can look back on a very fine start. A well-chosen pledge class of twenty-two good boys and an exceptionally strong active chapter promises one of the best years in our history.

In the field of intramurals Delta Gamma is holding her own, making a good showing in touch football and losing by only two points to the final winners in basketball.

In varsity basketball we claim more than half of the team. Mack Albertson, "Bud" Ebert, and O. F. Jacobsen are on the starting line-ups. Albertson is president of the chapter this year. Jacobsen is president of Strollers, honorary men's and Ebert was recently pledged to it.

In dramatics, Pledges Christol and Schab are consistently stealing the show.

Last year we were second in the scholarship race and we are looking forward to when we win the cup this spring. Our pledge class of last year received a bronze plaque for the highest average of all pledge groups on the campus and we feel that this plaque has found a permanent home.

In the two leading publications on the campus, Delta Gamma has a controlling interest. Ross Oviatt is business manager of The Wet Hen, a college humor magazine, and Morrey Persons is business manager of the Coyote yearbook.

Last spring and fall, the boys practically went back to the soil. We haven't been satisfied with having the best house on the campus, we want the best lawn. Following a landscaper's layout we have planted grass, shrubbery, and enough trees for a good size forest. Next spring the results will easily justify the work.

It isn't hard to see that the boys are covering the campus and keeping $\Delta T \Delta$ right up on the top.

WILLIAM R. QUINN

Delta Delta—Tennessee

THE FALL quarter here at Tennessee has been a very busy one with the football team having such a successful season, we do not consider the Bowl games here, but prefer to merely overlook them. Several of the chapter have followed the team to most of the games and also celebrated New Year's Day in New Orleans.

Following our program of several house dances each quarter, Delta Delta was successful as usual. At one we used the War theme and had the air raid sirens screaming and a total blackout for a few minutes. The all clear signal was given before the lights were turned on again. Previous to this, an assistant house mother was elected from the dates present with profuse campaign signs for the candidates who gave short soap box speeches immediately before the balloting.

At another house party all the dates filled out registration blanks giving their experience and qualifications and were assigned a draft number which was placed in a bowl. Later several numbers were drawn and the girls gave various performances with prizes for the ones selected as the best.

A program for the strengthening of alumni contacts has been inaugurated with the plan of several buffet dinners for the alumni and their wives or dates. This is to be followed with various contests between the actives and the alums such as bowling, handball, basketball as the season permits.

Delta Delta gave its annual Christmas party for a number of underprivileged children December 15, and it was hard to tell who enjoyed it the most—the children or the members. Many of the toys that were given to the children were beginning to show wear as we could not resist playing with them ourselves. Plenty of ice cream, candy and fruit was served which climaxed the party.

With the Fraternity Sing coming up in the near future, Delta Delta is getting its chorus ready. Finishing second for the last few years, all are determined that the trophy will come to Delta Shelter this year. I hope that I have a favorable report to make in the next chapter letter.

Our basketball team looks better than ever this year and we have high hopes of winning, especially since we have new suits. We'll give the results later.

CHAS. D. KING

Delta Zeta—Florida

EARLY September found the Delta Shelter at Florida a beehive of activity. The new house needed a few of the corners polished up and many of the boys cut their vacations short to put on that cleaning. Rush week found the house in tip-top shape with the newly planted lawn showing great promise. With the fine work of Bill Welch, now with Beta Eta chapter and the concentrated effort of all the boys, twenty men were found wearing the crossed Deltas. Several others followed in quick succession bringing the total up to twenty-four.

Homecoming found our house easily adapted into the Delta Showboat with great results. It proved to be the most successful Homecoming in many years. Nearly forty alumni were here for the festivities and the annual game with Maryland. A dinner dance at the house after the game proved the highlight of the week-end.

Later in October, the intramural basketball team really went to town but coasted up just short of the cup. However, the Delts were not to be denied. December found the touch football team taking the role of giant killers, knocking off five of the numerically largest fraternities on the campus to become the undisputed champions of the Florida campus.

The championship was won on the day which we had planned to hold our Christmas party. Killing two birds with one stone there was held a Christmas party such as will be remembered down through the years. The Freshmen, upperclassmen for a day, carried off a hearty party and gave the upperclassmen, Freshmen for a day, a taste of their own medicine.

With exams upon the near horizon, the boys came back to school from Christmas holidays planning to cram right up to the last minute.

Delta Eta—Alabama

DELTA ETA started the year with high hopes but rather heavy hearts. We suffered an unusually heavy loss of members through graduation and the draft and started the year with six actives returning. Other brothers were able to join us later through late registration, thus casting a more cheerful glow upon things. Despite the fact that we were short handed Delta Eta emerged from the pledging period with twenty-four fine pledges.

On the campus the Delts have held on to their top ranking activity status with Ed Ginn, Charlie Adair, and Bill Walker being tapped for the Spirit Committee at the opening dances. Bill Walker and Ed Snipes were tapped for Theta Tau while Snipes also went into Phi Eta Sigma. Ed Ginn, mighty midget of Union City, fills his time as editor of Rammer Jammer and vice-president of Excelsior Literary Society, which also counts Adair among its membership. Marion Coley, C. W. Adams, Bud Williams, Brown, and Adair are in advanced R. O. T. C. and are members of the Officer's Club. Adams and Coley are in Scabbard and Blade, and Brown is in Phalanx. Coley carries on in dramatics as vice-president of Blackfriars and secretary-treasurer of National Collegiate Players. House manager John Ayers is a graduate assistant in the Political Science Department. He is taking temporary leave of us this month to accept a fellowship with the personnel department of the State of Alabama. "Last chair" Harper, Gabriel of the Delt house, who blows his horn in the Million Dollar Band, is transferring to Michigan at mid-winter. Charlie Adair, exchange editor on the Rammer Jammer, is also "prexy" of Greeks and a member of Quadrangle and the Interfraternity Council.

Actives and pledges alike have worked hard in attempting to maintain Delta Eta's usual high ranking in campus scholarship. Ed Snipes drags down his usual straight "A" average and is being pushed by several of the pledges, including Yoder, Waite, Voyer, Prutton, and Goode.

The social picture has been colored by several house dances and the annual Christmas party. Things are now pointed toward the highlight of the social season, the Rainbow Ball, in March.

Among campus organizations numbering Deltas in their membership are the following: Greeks, Theta Tau, Rho Alpha Tau, Tau Kappa Alpha, National Collegiate Players, Tau Delta Tau, Scabbard and Blade, Phalanx, Executive Committee, Freshman Advisory Committee, Spirit Committee, Quadrangle, Rammer Jammer, Press Club, Officer's Club, International Relations Club, Newman Club, Blackfriars, Phi Eta Sigma, A. I. M. E., Gamma Sigma Epsilon.

JOHN K. AYER

Delta Theta—Toronto

SCHOOL and rushing of the first term of 1940-41 were started off simultaneously by the Toronto chapter of $\Delta T \Delta$. Dances, smokers, theatre parties and a wiener roast paved the way to the pledging of the best rushees on the campus.

Socially Delta Theta was at the top. Things started off with the annual "Hard Times" party. Many a siren was seen if not heard at this affair and it was generally conceded to be one of the finest we have ever had.

Following this came the party of the Mothers' and Wives' Club at the Old Mill, the proceeds going for boxes for the many Deltas in service overseas. Later the 1940-41 pledge class put on a very good party at the Shelter and a grand time was had by all present. Another annual event commonly known as a Christmas banquet soon came across with a great repast of turkey and all the trimmings—and I do mean "all."

The fall initiation gave us a brief change from social life but it was almost as hard on the actives as it was on the initiates. After it was over a banquet was held at the Granite Club in honor of the new members and from there we adjourned to "Prexy" Lee Foster's home where an enjoyable evening was spent, lasting until the small hours of the morning just as if we all had slept at some time during the previous week.

During the Christmas vacation the library was remodeled into an office. Plans are now being completed to change "the barn" into a reading room.

Lee Foster is applying for a commission in the Air Force and so we are losing a fine president this year. In behalf of all Deltas we wish him loads of success in this venture.

Having regained our feet after New Year's Eve, we all look forward with great anticipation to the Delt Formal to be held at the Crofton Villa this year and a successful year socially, fraternally and academically.

W. EDWARD BESSANT

Delta Iota—U.C.L.A.

AS THE new year rolls around we can look back on a very successful first semester. Our chapter house, a little over a year old now, is sporting many new furnishings due to the continued hard work of our Mothers' Club and the alumni.

We started it off successfully with a pledge class of twenty-two good men. This was the result in a large way of the excellent work of our rush chairman, Whit Collins. Whit graduates this February and we will all miss a good fellow and a hard worker.

In the athletic line we have done very well this semester, especially in interfraternity competition. In touch football our team was runner-up for the championship and was never scored on during the season. The outstanding men on the team were Jerry Sieck, Frank Glingburg and Charles Howard in the backfield, and Ray Johnson, Dick Zacher, and Jack Millikan in the line. In the track meet a three-man team from Delta Iota composed of Frank Cookson, John Fryer, and Allen Haycox swept the meet with four firsts and a couple of places. In basketball our team, composed of Jim House, Dick Harris, Jerry Sieck, Bob Winegardner, and Fred Montgomery, made the play-offs which are still in progress.

In school varsity athletics we had "Stu" McKensie and Dell Lyman, who was out part of the season with appendicitis, on the football squad. As football managers we had Bill Bybee and Clark Tinch doing their part. On the basketball team we had Vic Millar, John Fryer, and Dick Horton with Gordon Hewson working hard as manager.

In other activities on campus we find the following men: Kingston Cable, our president, is the vice-president of the interfraternity council; Dick Horton and Gordon Hewson are members of the Sophomore council; Stuart McKensie and Arnie Ballentyne are on the Junior council; and John Hessel is the president of the Religious Conference.

This fall also saw the initiation of nine new men into the Chapter. Also the election of some new officers due to the fact that some of the old ones did not return to school. These changes made Arnie Ballantyne vice-president; Dick Zacher, recording secretary; and Jack Young, corresponding secretary.

JACK R. YOUNG

Delta Kappa—Duke

THE INIMITABLE, incomparable chapter of Delta Kappa of $\Delta T \Delta$ has been having what might be called a rather successful year.

From the very first meeting the chapter seemed to show a new life and spirit. You know how it is frequently difficult to get the members of the chapter to really get out for intramural sports? Well, this year, in spite of the fact that we are not super athletes, and, as a result, are taking more lickings than we are handing out, we have had practically unlimited support for all the intramural teams. There were always seventeen or eighteen men out for the football games, and they were willing to stay and watch the whole game just on the off chance of getting to play a minute or two. We lost more games than we won, but winning or losing games really didn't seem to make any difference in our spirit. For us, the getting together and making a spirited and concerted and cheerful try at something is the most important thing we can do. You see, we don't have a house here at Duke, and, therefore, we don't get to live together in exactly the same close union that most of you boys who live in houses enjoy. (I certainly hope, by the way, that you guys who have them, appreciate how fine houses are.) It is of paramount importance to us, then, to do as many things together as we can, and the way that the boys are working together this year is something that I defy any other chapter, house or no house, to surpass.

We had Cabin Parties after every home football game this year, and they were tremendously successful. The girls, especially, seemed to enjoy the parties thoroughly, and I heard several of them remark how well the whole group seemed united. Following our usual pre-holiday program, we held a dance. Before the dance we had a banquet for which we hired the entire main dining room of the best hotel in town. The dinner was excellent, and, after we had eaten, we sang, very informally, three or four Fraternity songs. We had the songs printed on the back of the menus so that the girls could all join in the singing, and they all carried the menus out for souvenirs and so that they could learn our songs. Every girl was sent an orchid, and what an impression those orchids did make! Needless to say, the dance was a complete success.

Right now we are preparing for our rush week which will be held the first week in February, and the close harmony that has been created by the satisfaction we have found in working together augers well for our success in this most important of all Fraternity undertakings. There is undoubtedly a warmth and friendliness of atmosphere in a fraternity house or fraternity section in which every man feels a deep and real affection for his Brothers that is quickly apparent to freshmen, and makes them want to be a part of the body in which this feeling is apparent. Most of the benefits of a fraternity are really intangible, and there is an intangible something living in a closely united group which does not require a second look to be ascertained and appreciated. I feel that this intangible something is, at the present, an integral part of our chapter; and, therefore, if you will add to this living, intangible feeling and the splendid dance and the grand Cabin Parties, an excellent initiation which was held for two fine men who had been pledges for some time, and the fact that our rushing prospects look exceptionally bright, perhaps you will be able to understand and in some measure pardon the pride and satisfaction, both so evident in this letter, which I show in being a member of this chapter. This pride has caused me to babble on too long already, and maybe it has caused me to introduce into this letter things which could be accused of being sentimental. Maybe they are a trifle sentimental, but—well, it's a great Fraternity to belong to, isn't it?

JIM DOLSON

Delta Lambda—Oregon State

THE 1940-41 school year opened on September 28 with the prospects for a good year very bright. Twenty members returned to the fold. Also we welcomed two transfers, Charles Schannep and Frank Morgan, both of Gamma Rho, into our group.

The first rushing period ended with the pledging of twenty-three men. Since that time we have pledged four more. This is much the best we have done for several years. Dr. Wienheimer, our chapter adviser expressed the belief that it is the largest initial pledge group that the chapter has had so far in its ten-year history. The entire pledge class looks to be an outstanding group.

During the fall quarter we also fared quite well in athletics. Marv Markman returned this fall and held down the left guard position on the Oregon State varsity, the team that finished third in the Pacific Coast Conference during the season just past. Art Wieland, a sophomore this year is holding down a regular spot on the varsity crew. Al Barrow made his numerals as center on the Freshman football squad.

"Prexy" Johnny Kling returned from a summer in the forest service with many new and excellent ideas for the betterment of the chapter.

At the present time we are practicing very hard for the forthcoming interfraternity sing and are quite hopeful of winning it.

Although we do not hold the top position in publications this year that we have enjoyed in the past, we do have several comers in the running and prospects look good for next year. Joel Kahn was one of the four men on the campus that were taken into Alpha Delta Sigma this fall: Bill Henderson, another of our outstanding juniors was conducted into the local chapter of Scabbard and Blade.

Calvin Schmidt distinguished himself by being appointed to head the Cotillion, the annual Sophomore class dance. He also is a member of the Thanos, a sophomore service honorary. Gordy Swan, Drum Major of the Cadet Band is still with us and better than ever. Also, for the third consecutive year

Two of last year's graduates have accepted their commissions in the Army and are serving where we all may be in the not too distant future.

Looking with apprehension at the situation in Europe, three seniors and seven juniors of Delta Lambda enrolled in advanced R. O. T. C. this fall. The seniors are Major Milton Fox, infantry; Captain Roy L. Boals, engineers; and Lieutenant Berton H. Laird, field artillery. The juniors, all with the rank of sergeant are Marv Markman and Don Wooden, engineers; John Kling, Joel Kahn, and Jim Farley, field artillery; Bill Henderson and Paul Duruz, infantry.

Delta Lambda closes, wishing every chapter of Delta Tau Delta a VERY HAPPY NEW YEAR.

DON K. WOODEN

Delta Mu—Idaho

DELTA MU enjoyed a very successful rushing season, winding up with a group of outstanding pledges. For instance there is Jack "Earthquake McGoon" Jones, giant 260-lb. Frosh footballer. Jack's work for the Frosh team was exceptional and many predict him to be excellent varsity material. Jim Rossman is on the Frosh basketball squad, while Bill Leonard, brain truster of the pledges, walked off with the honors for pledge grades.

Meanwhile the actives were not to be outdone, and had men in various campus activities. Bill Read is president of Xi Sigma Pi and editor of the Idaho Forester.

Chick Donaldson was pledged to Blue Key along with his present assistant business managership of the Gem of the Mountains, Idaho Yearbook. The Gem also has two other Delts in important positions, as Bud Clark and Dick Still are both associate editors.

Sam Zingale is assistant coach of our national champion boxing team, member of the A. S. U. I. Executive Board, Silver Lance, and Blue Key, along with many other activities.

Chuck Murphy is senior manager of the boxing team.

Don Corliss, an alumnus of Delta Mu, returned from Wisconsin to take his place on the faculty as an instructor in the College of Agriculture.

The chapter as a whole at the nine weeks showed a definite improvement in scholarship. The Holly Day decorations cup again was won by Delta Mu. Incidentally, the chapter has won three out of the last four Holly Day decoration contests.

All in all, Delta Mu is looking forward to a very successful year in 1941.

WILLIAM CAMPBELL

Delta Nu—Lawrence

HAPPY NEW YEAR from Delta Nu at Lawrence College. This is going to be a big year for Delta Nu. Many important events are to take place which will make it such a year.

The first big event is the moving of the chapter into a new Shelter about the first of February. The new Shelter is located in a quadrangle with the four other fraternities on the campus. The building was begun last spring. It is a modern stone structure, large enough to house twenty-two men. The new Shelter contains a kitchen, large dining room and game room, the cooks' room, and a modern and permanent chapter room in the basement. On the first floor is a huge living room, music room, card room, library, the house mother's suite, and several study rooms. On the second floor are the study rooms with large sleeping porches at each end of the building. Right now the house is in the process of being decorated. Everyone is anxiously awaiting moving day.

A big week-end on our social calendar is the dedication of the new Shelter. This will take place Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, March 21, 22, and 23. Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of Brown University and former president of Lawrence College and a Delt, and Alvan E. Duerr, past president of the National Interfraternity Conference and past president of $\Delta T \Delta$, will be the principal speakers at the dedication. Officials of the National Interfraternity Conference and the national presidents of each of the fraternities here at Lawrence have been invited, as all the fraternities moving into their new houses are having their dedications at the same time. Delta Nu extends a welcome invitation to everyone to attend this dedication.

The next big event for Delta Nu is our annual winter formal to be held February 8, at the Alexander Gymnasium. The dance, under the direction of our social committee composed of Wallace Patten and Al Held, is to be something new, an all-day affair. In the afternoon we are staging a snow carnival and then the dance in the evening. Norsemen by day and play boys by night, that's us!

Let's take a look at the milestones which Delta Nu has passed so far this year of school. Under the leadership of President Gereld Suszycki and Rushing Chairman Jack White, we pledged, early in the fall, sixteen freshmen and three upperclassmen.

In the interfraternity sports program we have, so far, copped two firsts. The first one was in touch football and the second one was in golf. Besides this we took second place in volleyball. The next event is basketball. We're looking forward to a good season in this with our two well-developed teams. The first is the regulars and the other the butcher boys, the rugged and rough boys of the court.

In varsity sports Delta Nu was also well represented with thirteen men on the football squad and six of these received letters. The team was led by co-captain Art Kaemmer of Delta Nu. We are also well represented on the basketball squad with five men on it. In swimming we are represented by two men.

In scholarship we came up. In scholarship rank with the other fraternities on the campus, we were second.

The singing Delts! Musically we have many fellows in musical organizations on the campus and as a chapter we enjoy music, too. We have seven fellows active in the famous Lawrence A Cappella Choir and four men in the Interfraternity Choir. The whole chapter, every man present, has given two serenades to the girls in the dorms. The outstanding one was the Christmas one which was sung from sleighs and consisted of Delt songs and Christmas carols. Did the girls love it!

Delta Nu is justly proud of her men active in campus activities. Jack White is the president of the student body for the present year. Dexter Wolfe is editor of the college weekly newspaper and Milton Promer is the new business manager of this same paper. On the executive committee of the student governing body, are Bob McIntosch and Art Kaemmer. Leading the Lutheran Students Association, is Al Held. Many other fellows are active in dramatics, debate, and club work. And as usual we have some smooth boys socially.

This about winds up the activities of Delta Nu for the first semester of this year. We'll have a lot more to tell in the next issue.

MILTON PROMER

Delta Xi—North Dakota

DELTA XI started the current year with two stripes on her, but has managed to produce, with a more than to be expected fervor, some rather pleasing accomplishments thus far. At the start, the position of president was left open on short notice, but George Hoherz, who filled in the term, has put us on a firmer footing than we have experienced in some time. Secondly, the failure of several men to return, crippled our style somewhat, but new recruits have bolstered up the line to the point where we can consider that we are still on the fraternity map, both here and elsewhere.

The pledge group has shown more than average promise and the increased power in that group in the form of men with more experience in life has meant a lot to both the active and pledge groups in our "hope chest" for the year.

Last year we considered ourselves quite fortunate to have seven men in the University Madrigal Singers group, but this year we have increased this number to eight and added two officers to our laurels—

Vincent Reuter, who, incidentally, has done a bang-up job as treasurer of the chapter, is also treasurer of the club, and Pledge Robert Alard is president. This spring the Madrigal Club will tour through Minnesota, touch Iowa, and have a three-day stop in the Windy City of Illinois.

Kent Horton, our master of the slide, added the honor of Sigma Tau, honorary engineering fraternity, to his and our benefit. Kent is a Junior engineer, recording secretary of the chapter during the past year, and a member of Phi Eta Sigma, national freshman scholarship fraternity.

Leonard Griffin and George Hoherz are doing their parts in the National Defense Program by striving to become masters of Military Science and Tactics in the advanced R. O. T. C. Griffin, another Phi Eta Sigma man, has recently become our scholarship chairman and has endeavored to instill the practice of study into our pledge chapter in what appears to be a fruitful effort. Hoherz, in addition to being the chapter president, is one of the leading lights in the Madrigal Club.

Led by two of last year's pledges, Clifford Anzjon and Malcolm Bekken, and aided materially by Delt Vince Reuter, Leonard Griffin, and Ted Keller, pledges Bill Hazelton, Ledyard Burhans, Kenneth Jacobson, and 230-lb. varsity footballer and goalie Roy Schwerdtman, the ice hockey team has swept through its pre-tournament series with only one tie against its otherwise perfect record for six games. Five goals have been scored against the Delt six and only once did two come in the same game, whereas, in the same number of encounters, the Delt pucksters have slipped twenty-six counters into the opposing goalie's cage.

LARRY N. GILL

Delta Omicron—Westminster

DELTA OMICRON began the fall semester by pledging the finest class on the campus, and several of its members have already obtained positions of merit. Two of them, Bob MacDonald and Dick Watkins, hold offices in the Freshman Literary Societies. Pete Somerville made the varsity debate team, and George Dutoit the varsity swimming team. Gilbert Jordan had a lead in the fall play given by the dramatic society.

Not to be outdone by the pledges, several actives have also attained enviable positions on the campus. Outstanding is Jean Booth who holds the presidency of the Y. M. C. A. and Alpha Phi Omega, national scouting fraternity; he is a member of O. D. K.; a member of the Skulls of Seven, the college disciplinary board; and he serves on both the yearbook and newspaper staffs. In the athletic limelight is Roy Jackson who captured a berth on the varsity basketball team. In addition to this he is a track letterman, captain of the baseball team, member of the student council, and sports editor of the yearbook. Dick Booth swims the breast stroke on the varsity swimming team.

The gala event of the fall semester was the Christmas Formal with Jay McShann furnishing the "jive." Elaborate decorations adorned the front of the house, while within, cedar boughs covered the ceiling. Many alumni returned and the affair was proclaimed a tremendous success by all who attended. Throughout the semester, numerous "vic" parties have been held.

The fall intramural season was only average; however, a second place in swimming added considerable prestige athletically. Basketball, which begins in February, has an encouraging outlook.

The C. A. A. introduced their Civil Pilots' Training Course here at the beginning of the semester, and A. R. Hustad, Jr., was one of the first to complete it. Signed up for the second semester course are Roy Jackson and I.

The outlook for 1941 is very optimistic, but we must accept with a keen sense of loss and regret, the departure of our treasurer, George Smith, who is leaving to accept a position in St. Louis with a life insurance company. George was one of the most popular men in the school, and it will be a severe handicap starting the second semester without him.

Remember The Days?

. . . WHEN YOU AND YOUR COMPANIONS crowded into the corner candy store with a penny to invest? Remember how you scanned the candy trays in quest of the most for the money until you espied a large stick of candy resplendent with a "diamond" ring—all for only one cent?

That was our first introduction to the premium racket. Then we never dreamed there would be the necessity to dodge it from time to time—all the rest of our life. The eternal lure of something for nothing! It is remarkable how it keeps popping up in different guises. The manufacturer who is forced to offer "premiums" to make his product more attractive publicly confesses the inferiority of his goods. He does not have what it takes to compete honorably or fairly. He is forced, therefore, to take advantage of the gullibleness of human nature. He dangles that something-for-nothing before the customers' eyes in order to tempt them into accepting inferior merchandise.

POSITION OF YOUR OFFICIAL JEWELER

The L. G. Balfour Company has built its success on the giving of maximum quality material and labor effort in well-designed merchandise for the price asked. We prefer to sell the finest grade of Balfour products that will give complete satisfaction at a reasonable price, than to cut the quality to make possible inclusion of flashy premiums as an inducement to buy.

Our order checking system insures protection of your insignia. Your contract with the L. G. Balfour Company guarantees that you can purchase any merchandise from your Official Jeweler at prices no higher than offered elsewhere for equivalent products.

Therefore, BUY WITH CONFIDENCE FROM YOUR OFFICIAL JEWELER.
