From a Delt Father to a Delt Son

(written in 1873)

MY DEAR SON AND DELTA TAU DELTA BROTHER:

I have been through many experiences, of trials, successes, failures, and accomplishments of personal purposes; but, in all my long life, I was never so thrilled as when, before all those fine Delta men at the banquet, my boy got up to declare in his toast:

"I drink also to the one who will always be my greatest Delta brother, my father."

The joy of it will warm the heart of your old Dad until the day when he is laid away beyond all earthly experiences.

Of late I have been very depressed about you, even at times thinking thoughts that were too hard to be harbored by a good, sensible father. Dear boy, almost since you began to walk, we had been partners. We fished and hunted together. We worked gardens together. We played ball, tennis, and other games together. You must be able to recall that I had no partners in men of my age. My God! It has been a hard, heart-wrenching struggle to realize that my boy, my partner, is entitled, naturally and rightly, justifiably in every way, to partners of his own age, fully able to participate in the enterprises and enjoyments that are youth's legitimate right in the Almighty's great scheme of human existence and growth. Such a trial, such separation of interests and action, I suppose, comes to every father worthy of having a decent son. The trial is hardest when the association has been very close, as in my case. I will still have a struggle with myself, within myself; but your toast of last night has made me able to say, to myself at least, "Good-bye, my partner; welcome, my greatest, dearest Delt brother!"

Brother, you entered that chapter's cavern, last night, preimposed by the possible symbolism, mysticism, and clannish features of a secret organization. But you discovered the Delta soul, when you were required to make oath that you would always deal squarely, live cleanly, and help others. Keep that in mind always. Let no reaching for success of any sort make you violate it. The great genuine riches, at the end of life, lie in the fact that one has rendered honest service. I believe that you realize the obligations of your oath and that you will carry on, not only because you have sworn to do so, but also by reason of already established character principles. I hope that, some day, you will know the superlative happiness of having your son stand up and toast his lost partner as forever his greatest brother.

God bless you, my son and brother.

Fraternally and affectionately,
DAD

Any Scholarship Today?

By L. Allen Beck

In England the cabinet resigns. In Japan a man commits hari-kari, and thus avoids creditors and critics. In Delta Tau Delta we never seem quite sure that we are licked.

Well? Are we?

The fourteen large fraternities (having more than fifty chapters) are grouped together by the Interfraternity Conference for comparison of scholarship records. Here's the list:

Alpha Tau Omega	Phi Delta Theta
Beta Theta Pi	Phi Gamma Delta
Delta Tau Delta	Pi Kappa Alpha
Delta Upsilon	Sigma Alpha Epsilon
Kappa Alpha Order	Sigma Chi
Kappa Sigma	Sigma Nu
Lambda Chi Alpha	Sigma Phi Epsilon

Look them over carefully. Whatever your chapter, some of those fraternities are your close competitors. Most of them have to surmount about the same scholastic hazards as your chapter. All of them pick their fraternal lemons; get their potential loafers, sheiks, dullards, good-looking boys. Many have chapters in which every man is a good student—except one or two or three; and the average drops accordingly. Just about the same alibis, I imagine, as we get from chapters here and there.

But here are the facts. We ranked

In 1925-26—8th of 14
In 1926-27—13th of 14.

In that last year the fraternity standing first had an average of 60.0, and the lowest one had 42.1. Ours was also 42.1, a very small fraction causing us to miss the bottom.

I am not permitted to tell you the respective ranks of these fourteen. But, really, it isn't necessary when you realize that all but one of them outdid us in scholarship.

The Conference report for 1927-28 will be in soon. It's too late now to help it. But what of 1928-29, just now in the making?

Can it be that we are just naturally dumber than the Betas? Are we just a little lazier than the Sig Alphas? Do our boys outshine the Sigma Phi Eps so much in the wearing of their clothes? Are the A. T. O.'s just a little more clever in checking up on the averages of their members before it is too late? Is it possible that the Fijis are a bit stiffer in enforcing their initiation requirements, or that the Phi Deltas supervise the study of their freshmen? Do you suppose that more of the Sigma Nus realize that the first requisite of a college is a classroom?

Maybe we're shooting at the wrong mark. If we can't get somewhere near the top, why not turn around and shoot at the bottom? We're sure of keeping it, once we have arrived there. Let's get crusty and thick-skinned about it. Those corporation heads that employ college graduates; college administrators and instructors and trustees; even the competing fraternities—all would be interested to know that since we cannot compete in the classroom, we're just not going to compete at all, that the real class in the fraternity world is utter lack of scholarship, and that we have finally attained it!

Of course, there's that group of forty or fifty chapters that do stand well in scholarship. Some of them might not agree. Some might even suggest that those other fellows quit rocking the boat!

But, then—having no more scholarship, you'd not need a Supervisor. And how would I spend my leisure hours!

"We Now Dedicate This House"

By Edwin Holt Hughes

This address was delivered by Bishop Hughes at the dedication of the new chapter house of Beta Beta, at De-Pauw University.

MY DEAR BROTHERS AND MY DEAR FRIENDS:

The dedication of the more intimate hall within which our fraternal vows are taken and our more formal business is done is now to be followed by the dedication of this complete house. In this second, but not secondary, event, we gladly welcome our fathers and mothers, our daughters and sisters, and that closer group of friends whom we love and without whose presence here our hour would be far from perfect. Even as it is meet and right, according to the ritual of all churches, that houses erected for the worship and service of Almighty God should be formally offered for their sacred purpose, so is it meet and right that these walls, builded for fraternal expression, should now be consecrated to their good intent.

Only a dull heart could escape from some of the meanings of this hour. The life of slightly more than half a century is focused at this point; and we commemorate the fellowships of the past. Certainly, too, the life of quite more than half a century to come is indicated in our glad prophecy. The shoutings and laughs and confidences of the days gone greet the shoutings and laughs and confidences of the days to come, so that now Yesterday welcomes Forever. Much that could rightly be uttered here can be fittingly spoken this evening when we gather at the festal board of Delta Tau. But the actual dedication of this mansion of brotherhood demands that these rooms, already dear, shall be made dearer still by a human service to which we shall all look back as joyfully and yet solemnly impressive.

Therefore, Mr. President, I now hand over this building for the use of the activities of Beta Beta Chapter of Delta Tau Delta: and in these following words, whose formality does not defeat their feeling, we present this beautiful building, this attractive lawn, these wondrous trees, these social halls, these rooms of study, these dormitories, and all these conveniences, far surpassing those enjoyed by our forbears—this whole splendid equipment to be consecrated to the mood and aim of the brotherly heart.

1. To the memory of the men who long ago in a spirit of fairness and fraternity, organized the Delta Tau Delta Fraternity; to those who, being dead, yet speak to us out of a significant past—to the Founders of the Brotherhood, we now dedicate this house.

2. In loving appreciation of the men who in 1882 became the charter members of the Beta Beta Chapter, and whose names we now speak in grateful tones, James Asbury Beatty, Samuel C. Crose, Pierre Tousant Jett, Wellington B. Johnson, William I. Lawson, Henry T. Lloyd, LeRoy M. Krider, Charles W. Mann, Oliver Matson, George E. Nolin, we now dedicate this house.

3. In affectionate recognition of Justin Nelson Study, of Mu Chapter, who, being Superintendent of Schools in Greencastle, gathered and organized our chapter members, and so became the father and founder of this chapter, we now dedicate this house.

4. In loyal relation to the general fraternity of Delta Tau Delta, represented here today by its President, Norman MacLeod, and its Vice-President, N. Ray Carroll, even in relation to the more than twenty thousand of our brothers scattered through out the world, we now dedicate this house.

5. In the mournful hallowing of our dead, the long roll of our fraters who have crossed the flood and who, having seen the Purple and Gold of the final sunset, have been enrolled in the Chapter Eternal, we now dedicate this house.

6. In gallant love toward the widows of our fallen comrades, long represented in this town by Mrs. Landes and Mrs. Evans, elder sisters who never failed to answer to the call of their younger brothers, we now dedicate this house.

7. To the parents of all our brothers who not being themselves the recipients of our vows or the wearers of our badge, have still, like John Bain, given abundant and practical proof of their loyalty to us all, we now dedicate this house.

8. To our friends of other Greek-letter societies who, being moved by the spirit of interfraternity and by friendship toward our Delta comrades, have, like John H. Harrison, Sigma Chi, made for us an investment which wins our love, we now dedicate this house.

9. To that feminine influence which has softened boisterousness and has transformed the spirit of this dwelling into the spirit of a real home, even to Mrs. Hardacre, mother of the house and mother of the heart of youth, we now dedicate this house.

10. To those members of the University faculty, represented by ex-President Francis J. McConnell and ex-Professor William W. Sweet, who have given wise counsel in sometimes doubtful days, and who have passed on the Square Emblem to their own sons, we now dedicate this house.

11. To Arthur Taylor and Wallace Weatherholt, brothers beloved, who have given careful thought and plenteous time to the erection of this splendid home and who are typical of many other Deltas who proudly hail this day, we now dedicate this house.

12. To affectionate appreciation of Ira Burton Blackstock and Mary Hardtner Blackstock, loving allies of this chapter, older brother and sister to all the boys of Beta Beta for fully three decades, loyal hearts that never wavered in support when days were dark or bright, we now dedicate this house.

13. In tribute to Roy Owen West, Beta Beta, '90, and United States, 1928, helpful comrade of every young Delta who has come to Chicago in a quarter of a century, an honored member of the President's Cabinet, but chiefly for us a steadfast friend of all the Beta Beta men of his own day, whether they were successful or not, and now, as chairman of the trustees of this building, a generous giver for the erection of these walls and a liberal fashioner of our landscapes, both material and spiritual, we now dedicate this house.

14. To DePauw University, Alma Mater ever beloved, whose campuses become for us all the scenes of memories good and tender, and whose teachers more and more are carried in our revering hearts, to Alma Mater in glad confession that she is the collegiate integer of which Beta Beta is a loyal fraction, we now dedicate this house.

15. To that tide of young life that shall come hither from our towns and homes, and shall rush in their eager enthusiasms through these halls and rooms, to our younger brothers of the present days and of the days to come, for whose sake we have builded this home and to whom we now assign it for conscientious care and as the shrine of genuine brotherhood, we now dedicate this house.

16. Finally, and most, and highest, to God Almighty, maker of all spirits, who by his beloved Son, our Saviour, taught us to approach the altar and to look up saying, "Our Father," so that then we might look around and say "Our Brothers"; to the Holy Lord whose name finds an august place in the ritual of our dear Fraternity, and under whose blessed will we would so conduct this place that it may harbor no evil thing; to God, the King immortal, eternal, and invisible, we now dedicate this house.

And that He may graciously accept our offering let us now pray.

The Wieland Dinner

By Al Lippmann

DEAR STUART:

Gosh! I'll bet you are fighting mad by this time. Almost two weeks have lapsed since the big event, and you are still waiting to hear about it. But there have been many handicaps to contend with; so be charitable. In order to be in fighting trim for the dinner I decided to get a breath of fresh air watching the "Fighting Illini" battle the University of Chicago team, and that's where I was all wet. After sitting through a pouring rain for practically an entire afternoon I finally got back to the scene of the festivities much the worse for wear, and have spent the last several weeks recuperating from the unlooked-for Saturday afternoon bath.

You have so many excuses come to you from chapter secretaries that you must be fed up on them; so I'll stop that mode of attack and attempt to give you the high points of the Chicago Alumni Chapter November Open Dinner. I prefer to call it the Wieland Freshman Dinner, but the Doctor says no; so I want you to forget that I ever mentioned it. I don't know how many of these affairs I've attended, but I always thought I had been to all of them; and when it was announced that this was the 27th game of the series, I tell you I began to feel old. Twenty-seven years—imagine that! And as time goes on, they seem to grow better and better. The attendance this year was almost a record, totaling 275, of whom 140 were pledges. They came from all sections of the country—Florida, Oklahoma, and points west. I'm telling you, Stuart, that these dinners are no longer local events but are national in character; and if you don't believe it, come out and we'll prove it to you.

When you pay for the dinners of 140 guests (at $3.00 per), you are entitled to some consideration; so of course Dr. Wieland was toastmaster. Frank will probably resent my telling you this in such a manner, but it is true, and don't let him tell you different. I sometimes think he stores up his anecdotes for the entire year so he can unleash them on the unsuspecting frosh, but they are always good, and I never yet knew anybody that can put the stories across as neatly as our esteemed doctor friend. Our toastmaster was at his best that night—doing most of the talking himself and keeping the speakers well within the limits of endurance. But before the oratory began, the crowd was stimulated by some excellent entertainment provided by the artists of the WLS radio station. Cecil Condit, president of the Chicago Alumni Chapter, was responsible for this, and he sure is a good picker. There was only one weak point in his selections—he didn't bring down any fancy dancing girls.

Our worthy president first introduced Joe Guidotti (you pronounce it; I can't), the accordion man, and, boy, how he could accord! There followed Claude Moy, commonly known as "Pie Plant Pete," whose renditions met with unqualified approval. Jack and Jean, the harmony boys of the Orpheum circuit, brought up the rear, and after this display of pep the crowd was all set for the worst—the speeches.

The speech of welcome was given by Al Brunker—Chicago's own fearless crusader. It was a typical Brunker speech, full of his usual pep, but devoid of his proverbial profanity. All my life I've been saying nice things about Al, Stuart, but if he tells the story of the toastmaster and the gavel once more, I'm going to have some one use the gavel on me. I can still hear him. But, anyway, it's a good story, and he tells it well. Al's speeches have always enthralled me, and no doubt the freshmen present received the same stimulus which I got when I heard him for the first time. The boy is there, Stuart; and when he gets the old fire in his eye, he just plows right through. They are talking him for the next mayor of Chicago, but that's not fair. He is too good for us to keep for ourselves, and the least we could do would be to send him to the Senate to stir that august body into constructive action.

It is customary each year to share with the more unfortunate the pleasures and inspirations which Delta Tau Delta has given us. This year was no exception: and Mr. Leverone, President of the Interfraternity Club of Chicago and a member of Phi Gamma Delta, was the honored guest. I hope he realizes the great privilege which was bestowed upon him. I am afraid, however, that he did not fully appreciate it, for he made some pretty wise cracks. I wish I could tell you all of them, but he was too fast. He did say, however, that he felt "as chaste as a Wisconsin's co-ed caress"—but I have my doubts about that. Neither do I believe his other remark that he felt "as much at home as a Christian on the University of Chicago campus." But in all seriousness he was all there. Never have we had any better speeches, and any time our esteemed friend wishes to join a real fraternity there is a pledge button waiting for him. He tickles the mental palate, so to speak, and when he described Herb Gibbons as having "the wisdom of Socrates, the humor of Mark Twain, the literary genius of Dumas, and the linguistic expressions of Big Tim Murphy," I felt that he was giving a good description of his own ability. Let's give the boy a hand.

Probably the most interesting speech we have heard out in this little town of ours for many years was the short talk given by Herbert Adams Gibbons on his personal experiences. Herb went a long way back to tell of his graduation from Princeton, his trip to Turkey at the time of the revolution of the young Turks, and his eventful domicile in Paris. Stuart, I'm telling you that some of those frosh nearly fell off their chairs, and I'll bet everybody there would have given his left arm to have had those experiences. We all hope that Herb comes back next year to take up where he left off, and I feel sure he will, for he has never missed one of these dinners when he has been in the United States. That's a real record for you, but it is a "regular guy" who set the record.

We were all set for a great speech from Norman MacLeod, our President, but the head waiters kept buzzing around to hurry up, and Norm had time for only a few words. You see we had this banquet in a hall that is used as one of Chicago's best night clubs, and the regular patrons in the soup and fish were already beginning to appear on the scene. That's one way of getting your dinners over promptly. In any event there was little time left for Norm, and while he may not have regretted it, the rest of us did. Next time we'll start with him, so there will be no repetition of such a disaster.

Among the celebrities present were Harold Tharpe and Frank Hemmick of the Arch Chapter; Harry van Patten, Charlie Axelson, and George Paddock, former members of the A. C.; and the representative of Beta Chapter wearing the famous horseshoe vest. The prize to the pledge who had travelled the greatest distance went to the representatives of Florida and Oklahoma. As Oklahoma had two representatives and Florida one and there were only two prizes, we had to promise another would be forthcoming. And, by the way, you ought to know that one of these prizes was given by Warren Piper, a Sigma Nu (can you beat that?), the same man, by the way, that started the Chicago Interfraternity Club. Another was given by that old warhorse of Delta Tau, Bob Churchill of New Orleans. It was a happy evening, which ended in time to permit all who desired to go forth in search of adventure. And so, having made merry, many went forth to make whoopee.

"As usual," I attended Doc's Sunday morning breakfast, and so I can't give you any gossip about that. I hope I have not overlooked any of the salient features of the event; but if I have, I'm sure they will be overlooked. Also, Stuart, tell the boys that write in complaints that anything said is said in the spirit of fun. Until anon,

Faternally,

AL LIPPMANN.

The Manor House at Tau

By K. E. Galbraith

The new Tau chapter house has become one of the show places of State College. Constructed along the lines of an old English manor, its graceful outline presents an impressive silhouette of gray against the black bulk of old Mount Nittany.

Its location on the northern border of the town allows a pleasing vista of the surrounding mountains and the checkered fields of the valley.

The dignity of its gray stone is warmed by the introduction of stucco and timbered work, the simple treatment of the windows and door openings, the flagged terraces and sun-porches. Sturdy chimneys suggest the huge fireplaces within, and an exterior tower hints at the enchantment of a circular stairway which winds past a slender stained-glass window.

We enter through a low vestibuled doorway and step into a formal reception hall. Two imposing tapestried chairs are softly shadowed by the light of wrought-bronze lamps.

The living room is the most striking feature of the house, with its two-storied open-timbered ceiling. An enormous fireplace at the far end of the room heightens the effect of the medieval treatment. A card room and library open to the side, the former bright with chairs and tables of Chinese red. The dining room opens to the rear. A modern and efficiently arranged kitchen is attached. Thus all of the reception rooms are in the west wing of the building.

The center and east wing are arranged in suites made up of a study and dressing-room for two men.

The second floor is similar to the first, with the exception of the space over the living room, but we look down upon it from spacious balcony windows.

The third floor contains a dormitory and servants' quarters.

Large tiled lavatories from which showers are recessed bring cleanliness close to brotherhood.

The chapter room, entirely separated from other portions of the building, is located in the basement, under the living room. A dark stain applied to the walls and benches creates an impressive atmosphere of secrecy and solemnity.

On the main floor a guest room with a private bath welcomes the visiting brothers and alumni.

Except for the reception rooms, all the flooring is composition, and the construction is fireproof throughout.

Brother Creal's father arranged for the furniture, manufacturing much of it himself. Handsome rugs, comfortable divans, and easy chairs beckon us in the living room. Massive tables and sturdy chairs grace the dining hall. The studies have been provided with ample desks and chairs. The bedrooms are furnished with chifferobes, closets, and specially designed double-deck beds which assure peaceful slumbers for the brethren. The top bed has been raised and the bottom one lowered so that there is no bumping of heads.

Lighting fixtures are made of wrought-bronze and are cleverly arranged as brackets or electroliers.

The house is masculine in every respect without sacrificing its charm, and not a single feature has been overlooked to rob it of its distinction.

Henry Theobald Brück, Rho, '78: A Tribute

By Clarence Pumphrey

*"And once again . . .
Passeth a soul from this our earthly ken,
Where deeds remain till time shall be no more."*

"How often we have seen at the close of a Summer's day the whole western heavens ablaze with the glory of the departed sun. So a life well spent overflows the borders of the physical existence, and remains to illuminate the pathway of mankind."

Henry Theobald Brück, our beloved friend and frater in Delta Tau Delta, passed peacefully from mortal life into the Chapter Eternal October 14, 1928, at his home in Hartford, Connecticut, after a brief illness involving his heart, comforted by the presence of his devoted wife and his beloved daughter, Laure, at his bedside. He was laid at rest in the beautiful cemetery in Hartford October 17th, 1928.

With his demise our beloved Fraternity lost one of her most faithful and devoted old warriors, for Brother Brück's life abounded in invaluable, self-sacrificing, and devoted service to Delta Tau Delta.

He was born in Hoboken, New Jersey, May 29, 1858. After attending private schools in Hoboken and New York, he entered Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken and received his M.E. degree in 1878. After being variously occupied in and about Hoboken, he went to Mt. Savage, Maryland, in 1890, and became the mechanical engineer of the C. & P. R. R., and later the superintendent of motive power of that railroad, remaining there for twenty-three years. In 1914 he located in Dayton, Ohio, with the Dayton Pipe Coupling Company, in which our lamented Brother David O. Holbrook was interested, and in February, 1915, he entered the service of the Hartford-Fairmount Company, now the Hartford-Empire Company, as mechanical engineer and purchasing agent, which position he held until his death. In April, 1896, he married Miss Minnie O. Kenah of Mt. Savage, and to them was born a daughter, Laure.

Brother Brück became a Delt and a member of Chapter Rho at Stevens Institute of Technology, where his deceased brother, Louis J. Brück, was his classmate and also a member of Rho. When our Fraternity adopted its present form of government, he was elected its first President in 1883 and served for two years, and was then elected Secretary of the Fraternity, serving for two years from 1886 to 1888 inclusive, and again from 1897 to 1915, when he declined re-election on account of ill health, which prevented his attendance at our San Francisco Karnea in 1915. Thus he led our long line of illustrious Presidents followed by Brothers Day, Gardner, Hoyt, McClurg, Serfass, Dickinson, Babcock, Hughes, Wieland, Curtis, Bielaski, Duerr, and MacLeod, some of whom have preceded him into the Chapter Eternal and awaited his coming.

How appropriate are the quotations at the beginning of this tribute to the memory of a life so active and so full of faithful, unselfish service to the well-being of Delta Tau Delta. He was associate editor of our Fifth General Catalogue, and our Sixth General Catalogue with its 1902 Supplement and our Seventh General Catalogue were principally the products of his tireless and patient research, a tremendous undertaking, as many of his colleagues of that time knew full well, and which was so eloquently testified to by our lamented brother, Frank Rogers, in his tribute to Brother Brück printed in THE RAINBOW when Brother Brück was compelled by ill health to retire from active official service in the Fraternity. Brother Rogers there described Brother Brück as "one of that band of stalwart brothers Rho gave to Delta Tau Delta in the early days of our Fraternity's awakening, who was soon summoned to the national councils of Delta Tau Delta; and when we were one of the first fraternities to abandon the antiquated government of a mother chapter and substitute a national, centralized administration, he was the first President of the Delta Tau Delta under the new order."

My more intimate acquaintance with Brother Brück dates back several years before 1912, when it became my privilege and honor to sit with him in the councils of the Arch Chapter; this acquaintance ripened into a devoted friendship, and for the past fifteen years or more it has been my privilege and pleasure to be an annual guest in his home, and to enjoy his generous hospitality and the serenity of his delightful home life, for Henry was a devoted husband and father and the idol of his family. One can well imagine the joy of my visits as we all sat about his library, while he affectionately turned the pages of his Delta Tau Delta catalogue, as kindly as though it were his child, as it virtually was, and to which he had given so many patient hours of loyal endeavor inspired by his faithful love of our Fraternity, and he recalled to me from the dim past the memory of many of the outstanding personalities in this roster of the rank and file of the Delts of the past and present, and recounted the difficulties that often seemed insuperable in this ambition, or, as we sat and listened to a beautiful concert from his beloved victrola, the token of the love and appreciation of his friends when he retired from office in the Fraternity. He had gradually added many splendid records of the choicest classics in music to the original collection given him, and this was his pride and frequent joy.

The precious memory of these delightful visits will ever linger with me, I am sure, until I join him in the Chapter Eternal with our Founders and Arter, Curtis, Rogers, Redpath, McClurg, Gardner, Maas, Holbrook, Wakefield, Bemis, Southworth, Oliver, Jeffries, Keith, and the host of others.

Henry Brück's faithful friendship was touchingly evidenced in my personal experience, for his was the very first familiar face that welcomed me, and his was the very first hearty hand-clasp to greet me when I stepped off the train at Hartford, and his was the very last familiar face I saw, and his was the very last handclasp warmly to wish me God-speed when my train pulled out of the Hartford station. I spent three days and nights in his home last September 22nd-25th, almost twice my usual stay, by reason of an intervening Sunday, as if we were being permitted to lengthen our last visit and postpone our final parting, for no more was I to look forward to these happy reunions of kindred souls.

*"What merit lies in age, forsooth,
If but a symbol of the numbered years
Which time hath measured out?
But what more glorious than a ripened age
Which hath inscribed in Time's great register
Of worthy deeds its part."*

Requiescat in pace.

When Bob Paine Sassed the Boss

Robert F. Paine, Eta (Buchtel), '77, gets himself into one of the fall numbers of The American Magazine, which is telling the story of the growth of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, and speaks of Mr. Scripps's founding of The Cleveland Press. The story continues:

E. W. Scripps, the founder, employed young men, made them his partners, and gave them few instructions other than to get the news, tell the truth, and take the side of the under dog. Under no circumstances was any individual to receive consideration in the columns because of his social position or wealth. The paper prospered, and presently Scripps was able to afford a good home, a buggy and a high-stepping horse. One afternoon he was arrested on Euclid Avenue for reckless driving. The opposition newspaper gave the incident plenty of display, which did not surprise Scripps. What did surprise him was to find his arrest chronicled under a big headline on the front page of his own sheet.

He had red hair, and each individual hair was bristling when he strode next morning into the office of the Penny Press. He demanded in words that were both picturesque and emphatic what individual was responsible for playing up his arrest.

"I am the man," said the editor, Bob Paine.

The next remarks of Mr. Scripps occupied several minutes and consisted principally of words which the postal regulations do not permit us to print.

Paine waited until the storm subsided, and then made his reply:

"My instructions from the owner of this paper are to champion the cause of the common people. We are here to protect them against those who abuse wealth and power. You are wealthy and powerful. You choose to drive down Euclid Avenue at a reckless pace, endangering the lives of our readers. You can fire me if you choose; that's your privilege. But, as long as I am editor, any time that you infringe upon the rights of the people you are going to find your name in the headlines on the front page."

Scripps swallowed hard, turned on his heel, and walked out. No further reference was ever made to the incident. But the policy of the Press had been tested and proved.

Mr. Paine is now connected with The San Francisco Daily News. His son, Bob Junior, is a Stanford Delt of the class of '30. Paine Senior had the time of his life at the initiation of Paine Junior a year ago.

With the Emory Singers Abroad

Three Delts, two from Beta Epsilon and one from Alpha, made musical history this summer for Delta Tau Delta with the Emory Glee Club in its tour of England and the Continent.

Dr. Malcom H. Dewey, of Alpha, who is director of the club and head of the Emory Department of Fine Arts, was by all rights and purposes the head man in the show of the Emory boys in Europe. Under his direction the twenty singers and a jazz orchestra, known as the "Emory Glee Club from Georgia, U.S.A." fulfilled their commission as "Georgia's good will ambassadors to Europe."

Julian Dell, of Columbus, Georgia, lent his vocal powers to the second bass section, while Virgil Eady as director of the jazz orchestra entranced the Europeans with his handling of the trumpet and the motif of jazz.

Dimon Woodruff, of Columbus, also of Beta Epsilon, although not a member, made the trip with the club as a tourist. He was with the boys most of the time and even sang as a pinch (note) hitter during an influenza attack in Amsterdam.

The Tiger-Husker Bell

"War clouds at the University!" shouted a Lincoln, Nebraska, newspaper away back in April of 1909. "Two fraternities engage in struggle for famous Seward bell!"

And the story went on:

"War clouds are looming up in certain circles at the University of Nebraska. The peace and serenity of two years have received a jar, and at any time open hostilities are liable to take place. The innocent cause of the eruption is a bell, an old copper bell which for many years graced the steeple of a negro church in Seward. But the bell is sacred, being surrounded with the traditions of two Greek letter organizations. With every crack and dent on the rough surface are associated a thousand happy memories of two Greek letter societies, Phi Delta Theta and Delta Tau Delta.

"For two years the Delta Tau Delta fraternity has zealously guarded the bell, watching over it with a care denoting great reverence and love. Saturday night the big annual banquet of Delta Tau Delta took place at the Lindell Hotel. The chapter house on R Street was deserted.

"About nine P.M. black figures could be seen stealing over the kitchen roof of the Delta Tau Delta house, and almost simultaneously a party was heard in the cellar. People adjoining were alarmed. But the search was not a long one. One kick at a cracker-box on the roof of the house revealed the hiding place of the coveted treasure, and now the bell securely reposes in some secret chamber of the Phi Delta house. The Delt boys declare they will retake the bell before another year has passed."

And then the newspaper goes on to tell the story of the bell. It was taken as a prank from the negro church away back when. Phi Deltas and Delta Taus are credited with being equally guilty. It is more likely that the Phi Deltas did the stealing, and probably the only way the Delta Taus got mixed up with it at all was that they wanted to take the bell away from the Phi Deltas so that it might be returned. That's the kind of fraternity Delta Tau Delta is. But when the Delta Taus did get hold of it they found that it was exceedingly dangerous to try to restore it, and anyway The newspaper continues:

"Whose bell was it? Here is where the Deltas executed what is known as a coup. A larger show of the active chapter were at the train to escort the bell to the Delt house, and the few Phi Deltas near had no objections to offer at the time. But the bell had not been installed in the Delt house many weeks before it disappeared. Some weeks later it was located at the Phi Delt house.

"For ten years raids and counter-raids have been made by the two fraternities until the bell has become interwoven in the history of the two groups. Some laughable incidents have occurred in the fights. One night a member of one of the fraternities was in the attacking party." (Internal evidence shows that this person was unquestionably a Phi Delt.) "Dressed in a new spring suit the admiration of all his friends and associates, he was particularly joyous. In fact, he did not particularly care what he did and incidentally was not aware what he was doing. In fact, he was under the weather. During the course of the search the cellar was visited. A big pile of ashes was in one corner. The party continued to search, and returned upstairs; but the absence of the particular individual was not noticed until nearly a half-hour had elapsed. Down in the cellar trooped the bunch, and there on his knees industriously removing the ashes was the recreant.

"'Fellows,' he said, 'I've shoveled these ashes over three times, and I can't find the bell!'

"The bell has been stolen as often as three times a year, and has been the source of much trouble and fun for the two fraternities."

So much for the 1909 story.

But the end was not yet. Raids and counter-raids persisted; black eyes and torn clothing were offered on the altar. In the spring of 1928 the two chapters staged a lovely hand-to-hand fight at the Lincoln Hotel for possession of the bell, and then two other organizations of the University got an idea. These were the Innocents and the Student Council, as a result of which both Delta Taus and Phi Deltas forever renounced property rights in the ancient bell and solemnly turned it over so that it might become the "Victory Bell," a trophy to be fought for annually by the football teams of Nebraska and Missouri.

The chronicle is brought up to date by The Nebraska Alumnus of last November:

It is the present plan to present the bell to the winning school after the game each year, the bell to remain in that school's possession until two weeks before the game the next year, when it will be sent to the rival school as an aid in stimulating pep for the contest. During the game the bell will be in the possession of the school that won the game the year before.

Henry F. Schulte, head track and cross country coach at Nebraska, and formerly coach at Missouri, deserves credit as one of those who contributed much to establish the bell as a symbol of friendly rivalry between the two institutions. Mr. Schulte's address, broadcast at the stadium while the bell was being presented to Missouri representatives, follows:

"The Missouri-Nebraska bell is about to be presented to you. It is a bell to be owned jointly by the student bodies of those two great sister universities and is to be battled for only by the gridiron warriors of the two schools.

"I knew the Missouri heart during eight years of happy service at Columbia. I believe I know the heart of Nebraska now. We, each of us, glory in the fighting spirit, the deep-down gameness and glorious sportsmanship of the other.

"Upon the base of the bell is the bronze legend: 'Tigers, Huskers who win or lose gloriously.' That is the language as time goes on the bell will always speak to all of us.

"Missouri-Nebraska Bell, may your bronze tongue ever sound the call to greatness of spirit for each player, rooter, and friend.

"Today the two super-great teams face each other. May the best team of the day always win. May there ever be glorious teams and a great heart between Missouri and Nebraska."

Kentucky Campus Goes Dry

Lexington, Ky.,—The men's student council of the University of Kentucky today declared the university campus must go dry.

The council is the most powerful of all university student bodies. Resolutions signed by James R. Hestor, its president, said:

"The constant infraction of the prohibition act by a minority is encroaching upon the social rights of the majority and endangering the future of the reputation of the university and the provision for social life of the students."

The pronouncement was made in The Kentucky Kernel, official organ of the university. The campus leaders' honorary fraternity, Omicron Delta Kappa, advocates and supports the action, Henry Maddox, president of that organization, announced. The Student Council declared it had resolved to "exercise its authority to reprimand or expel such violators." University authorities support the movement in its entirety.

The resolutions declare that a court has been established to try all students charged with violation of the prohibition act, and appeal from ruling of the court may be taken only to the university senate, the faculty governing body. The university has nearly 3,000 students.—The New York Times.

Quite a Delt Affair This

The party at West Point the afternoon the Army played Nebraska was quite a Delt affair, with Governors McMullen, Dern, and Weaver and Captain "Blue" Howell, not to speak of the other Delts on the Nebraska team, on one side, and General Smith, Colonel Wheat, and George Hays, cadet manager of football, on the other.

The press missed a human interest feature when it didn't get this group together for a picture.

Gamma Alpha Cup to Colorado

In 1921 Gamma Alpha Chapter, at Chicago, put up a silver cup for the prep school winner of Stagg's Interscholastic. It had to be won three times to become the permanent possession of any institution.

The cup has now gone for keeps to the Fort Collins, Colorado, High School, which this year took it for the third time.

The winners were: 1921, Kansas City Manual Training; 1922, Washington High of Cedar Rapids; 1923, University High of Chicago; 1924, Washington High of Cedar Rapids; 1925, Fort Collins High; 1926, Fort Collins High; 1927, Northwestern High of Detroit.

Harry Hewitt Elected in Florida

Harry R. Hewitt, Beta Gamma (Wisconsin), '02, one-time President of the Western Division and later Ritualist of the Fraternity, won the office of county judge of Pinellas County, Florida, by a majority of more than 4,000 votes. Mr. Hewitt is a Republican, and succeeded in ousting the former Democratic incumbent.

King and Stalder Honored

Bob King, Stanford high jumper, and Marvin Stalder, of the California crew, are the two men honored this year by having their names engraved upon the Mint Howell Cup.

The decision was reached at the San Francisco alumni banquet this fall, when about a hundred Delts were present. The company first changed the plan of the award of the cup so that each year one man would be chosen by Stanford and another by California, possession of the cup itself alternating between the two chapters.

Both the winners this year were members of the late Olympic team.

INDIANAPOLIS-AUGUST 29·30·31

A Singing Karnea

The Golden Karnea will be a singing Karnea.

This decision was made in response to numerous requests from members of the Arch Chapter, alumni, and undergraduates of the Fraternity.

And what could be more fitting and proper, particularly since George Kadel has consented to assume the role of music master? To Delts around the Middle West this statement needs no amplification. They've heard Kadel's tenor voice in concerts, over the radio, and not infrequently at state Fraternity gatherings.

George is a member of the still-famous team of "Ball and Kadel, Kadel and Ball" which whooped things up at DePauw University some ten-fifteen years ago. Since then George has performed in just about every musical capacity, except that of leader of Sousa's band.

While Kadel is cooking up a supply of choice music, members of the general committee are scurrying thither and yon, getting things into shape for what promises to be a whale of a party. The Golden Karnea Ball is occupying a major part of committee discussion just now. In all probability this affair will be held in the Indiana ballroom, atop the Indiana Theatre.

The Indiana ballroom, finest in the state, stacks up well with any in the country. Its oval floor, laid at an expense of more than $100,000, will accommodate some four thousand dancers. (And from present indications, this area will be pretty well occupied when the orchestra tunes up.) The ballroom trimmings are Spanish Renaissance, but the dance will be 1929 Collegiate.

The five active chapters of the state are showing plenty of enthusiasm as the planning progresses. They are arranging a number of specialties which are labeled "surprises." Mystery, eh, what?

The schedule of the Golden Karnea committee calls for a get-together twice each month. Meetings have been held in Indianapolis, Greencastle, Crawfordville, Lafayette, and Bloomington, with active chapters as hosts for the out-of-Indianapolis meetings.

The work of underwriting the Karnea is progressing rapidly under the direction of Wallie Weatherholt. At the time this is written more than half the fund necessary to handle pre-Karnea expenses has been received by Kleber Hadley, general treasurer of the Golden Karnea.

Yea, verily, it looks like a mighty big time in Indianapolis next August 29th, 30th, and 31st.

Delts in the Elections

Eleven Delts were chosen for high office in the recent elections.

For the second time Nebraska has a Delt Governor, electing Arthur J. Weaver, Beta Tau (Nebraska), '95, to succeed another Delt, Governor Adam McMullen, Beta Tau, '96. This little oddity of a man of the same fraternity succeeding another as state Governor is probably unique.

Utah re-elected Governor George H. Dern, Beta Tau, '97.

Former members of Congress who were sent back are John L. Cable, Chi (Gambier), '06, and Gamma Eta (George Washington), '09, from Ohio; George F. Brumm, Omega (Pennsylvania), '01, from Pennsylvania; and Charles H. Sloan, Gamma Pi (Iowa State), '84, from Nebraska.

A new Congressman is Dewey J. Short,

Gamma Theta (Baker), '19, from Missouri.

Congressman immediately re-elected include L. J. Steele, Beta Epsilon (Emory), '93, from Georgia; W. W. Hastings, Lambda (Vanderbilt), '89, from Oklahoma; Fred S. Purnell, Beta Alpha (Indiana), '03, from Indiana; and Homer Hoch, Gamma Theta (Baker), '02, from Kansas.

Park Trammell, Lambda (Vanderbilt), '00, was re-elected to the Senate from Florida.

Alben W. Barkley, Beta Epsilon (Emory), '00, Senator from Kentucky, is a hold-over.

Dan R. Anthony, Delta (Michigan), '91, because of poor health was not a candidate for re-election to Congress from Kansas.

The roster gives Delta Tau Delta a representation of two United States Senators and eight Representatives.

Mu's Fiftieth Anniversary

By Paul Josephson

This June marks the fiftieth anniversary of the re-establishment of a chapter of the Fraternity on the Ohio Wesleyan campus. The history of the Fraternity on the campus, however, dates back to November 26th, 1866, when the Omicron Chapter was installed. Through the efforts of William Sylvester Eversole of the Beta Chapter, Cyrus Othniel French of the Beta Chapter was delegated to admit into the Fraternity Edwin Augustus Atlee, Lemen Taylor Clark, Charles Layton Clipping, Edward Davis Curtis, and Lawson Marcellus La Petra, as charter members of the Omicron.

Its roll comprising a large proportion of honor men, it soon attained a high rank among the fraternities in the University, and the General Convention of 1869 intrusted it with the duties of the Alpha of Delta Tau Delta. Although strong enough to fear no outside foe, internal dissensions produced by a few began to undermine the organization of the chapter and caused its dissolution by common consent. In 1878 John Henry Grove, an alumnus of the chapter, with the aid of Gilbert Austin sought to re-establish the chapter; and on June 3, 1879, the latter, with Elmer Ellsworth Cheney, Emory Cutler Beach, Charles Edward Jefferson, Thomas William Marchant, and George Andrew Turrill, became the charter members of the Mu Chapter.

By careful and judicious management the chapter succeeded in regaining its old and honored position among the fraternities at the University, and at the General Convention of 1880 Mu was made Grand Chapter of the Second Division.

This is only a brief sketch of the early history of the Fraternity on the Ohio Wesleyan campus. To date 429 men have been initiated by Mu into the mysteries of the Fraternity, and history is being made by these men today.

Among the prominent alumni of Mu are Washington Gardner, Commissioner of Pensions and Commander-in-Chief of the G.A.R.; Charles E. Jefferson, pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle, New York; William P. McLaughlin and Charles W. Drees, also prominent clergymen; Walter A. Draper, president of the Cincinnati Street Railway Company; W. G. Hormell, formerly Dean of Men at Ohio Wesleyan and now Professor of Physics; Edward Davis Curtis, of the class of 1870, who was instrumental in the writing of the Fraternity ritual; Branch Rickey, vice-president of the St. Louis National League Ball Club; Frank Ebbert, official of the Anti-Saloon League and nationally known lawyer; George W. Atkinson, a former Governor of West Virginia and Judge in the Court of Claims; Francis Cummins Lockwood, Dean of Men and Professor at the University of Arizona; George Staten, baseball coach at Ohio Wesleyan; Donald E. Beach, first vice-president of the American Bank and Trust Company, St. Petersburg, Florida; Merrill C. Russell, secretary-treasurer of the Sun Ray Stove Company, Delaware; Edwin H. Hughes, Methodist Minister and a former president of DePauw University; William F. Anderson, Methodist Episcopal bishop; Francis J. McConnell, Methodist Episcopal bishop and a former president of DePauw University.

Such a list as this cannot include all of Mu alumni who have earned or are earning renown in their respective fields, for many have passed on, while others are rapidly earning nation-wide recognition. It is with gratification that we are able to announce that many of the above named men have already signified their intention to be back this June, and are giving their fullest support actually to make this the greatest reunion Mu Chapter has ever had.

At the present time only a tentative program can be given. On Sunday, June 16th, all roads will be leading toward Delaware. Those who arrive Sunday will find that time a good opportunity not only to meet old brothers but also to get acquainted with the members of the active chapter. On Monday noon there will be a very formal luncheon at the Shelter, and at four o'clock "Dad" Pumphrey will have charge of a mock initiation. This will be followed at six o'clock by a banquet in one of the downtown halls. A very interesting program of music, reminiscences, and speeches is being arranged, and the speakers include such men as Emory C. Beach, one of the charter members of Mu, "Doc" Wieland, and Charles M. McConnell. The banquet will be followed by a revival of the old custom, a walk-around, a sing, and a smoker. Tuesday the annual commencement exercises will take place at Gray Chapel.

With the exception of George A. Turrill, deceased, all the charter members of Mu will be back, and some of them are traveling hundreds of miles in order to do so. Added housing facilities have been secured, so that we will have room for every alumnus who comes back. Two hundred strong! is the motto we have adopted for this reunion. Remember, alumni, we are counting on your support; with it we can make this Homecoming the biggest one in our history; without it the reunion will be a failure. Now is the time to make up your mind that you will be back with us for our fiftieth anniversary.

The Northern Division Conference

By Jack Bosch

Athens, Ohio, famed through many generations for its beautiful women and its homely men, will either live up to the tradition or break it on March 15th and 16th, when Beta Chapter will be host to the Northern Division Conference.

Already plans have been formulated by the active chapter and by the Athens Alumni Chapter for a complete program of business and entertainment. The big social event will be the Conference dance on Friday evening; the climax will be the banquet on Saturday evening.

Ohio University, located in Athens, is the oldest college in America west of the Alleghenies and has the added distinction of having been the home of a continuous chapter of Delta Tau Delta longer than any other institution of learning.

Already reports indicate a record-breaking attendance. All six chapters of the state are promising a numerous registration. Mu, at Ohio Wesleyan, threatens to charter a bus and come 100 per cent. Indiana and Michigan will likewise be well represented.

Beta Chapter is planning a monster reunion of its own members as a feature of the festivities.

Delegates will be housed together in the Beta Shelter. Several other Ohio fraternities have offered their houses for the entertainment of Delt visitors, besides which there are ample and adequate hotel facilities.

The dates, March 15th and 16th. The place, Athens, Ohio, and Beta Chapter. We guarantee you a good time.

Delta Epsilon's Mothers' Club

By Mrs. E. M. Oldear

In the month of November, 1927, a number of mothers in Lexington, Kentucky, found in their mail delivery a little envelope inclosing an invitation to the Delta Tau Delta chapter house on the afternoon of November 10th. Now it so happened that each of these mothers cherished as her most prized possession a son who was a member of the Delta Tau Delta Fraternity—hence she forthwith declined all other engagements for that afternoon and at the appointed hour was greeted at the door of the chapter house by a smiling Delt and presented to other smiling Deltas as well as the other mothers who were present.

As each mother sat wondering just the portent of this gathering, Roy Kavanaugh arose and announced that the purpose of this meeting was to organize a Delta Tau Delta Mothers' Club which was to function as an advisory council and general Assistance Committee on all matters confronting the Fraternity which could not be adequately disposed of by the masculine mind. After this speech the boys withdrew from the room and left the mothers to the task of organization, which resulted in the formation of the Delta Tau Delta Mothers' Club, which boasts the proud priority of being the first organization of its kind at Kentucky State University.

Our club is now one year old, and while yet in its infancy we feel that we have accomplished quite a bit in this one year. Among the many ways in which we have tried to add to the comfort and happiness of the boys we note a tea given by the club at the chapter house for the actives and pledges; the decoration of the dining room for the annual dinner preceding the Panhellenic dance; sponsoring a commencement tea at the chapter house in honor of the members of the Fraternity, their parents, and friends; preparing the house for its opening this September as well as fitting it out with new shades and fresh curtains; sponsoring three dinner parties during the rush season; and presenting the house with a complete outfit of linens for their tables, to be used on special occasions. But greater by far than all this, the club has served as a medium for bringing into closer touch the boys and the mothers, as well as forming between the mothers a bond which is much akin to that of the boys themselves.

We meet on the first Monday in each month at the chapter house and always make it a point to leave something in the way of a donation for the boys' table, such as home-made preserves, cake "like mother used to make," cookies, or candy.

At present our membership list includes six out-of-town mothers, and we hope to add many others this year.

Our boys entertained the Mothers' Club (fathers were also invited) at the chapter house last Tuesday with a get-together social evening, and what with sandwiches and coffee made and served by the boys, a chorus of Delt songs, and a poem to mothers recited by Roy Eversole, the evening was indeed a pleasure long to be remembered.

This is only a little history of what our Mothers' Club is: what it hopes to be would fill many a page of THE RAINBOW.

Fraternity Delegates Condemn "Hell Week"

The following digest of the proceedings of the Interfraternity Conference in New York is taken from "The New York Times."

The "rough-house" initiation, as an introduction to college fraternity life, although upheld in debate at the Interfraternity Conference at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday, was generally condemned in the discussions that followed. The conference reaffirmed its position in opposition to the practice and proposed methods to further discourage the so-called "hell week" in American universities.

The affirmative in the debate, "Resolved, That Rough House Initiation Should Be Abolished," was taken by Lewis B. Syester, Ohio Wesleyan senior and member of Phi Kappa Psi. Donald Sherbondy, a junior in the same college and a member of Alpha Sigma Phi, although opposed to rough-house initiations, took the negative for the sake of argument.

Syester asserted that abolition was expedient because rough-house initiations tended to diminish the prestige of the fraternity system. Serious accidents, he said, were bound to occur. For every "black eye" the fraternity gave a freshman, he thought, it received two "black eyes."

"If there were any psychological value of getting the fraternity across by rough methods," he argued, "it would have been incorporated long ago. Rough-house initiation produces no constructive benefits and seriously undermines the basic spirit of fraternities."

Sherbondy contended that the rough-house initiation served to make the ritual service that followed more impressive. He said there was no "wave" of public opposition to the system of rough-house initiation. He thought that everything "indecent" should be abolished and that the initiation should vary to fit the physical condition of the individual. He admitted there were abuses in the practice, but in only a few of the chapters.

Rough initiations created a warring feeling, Syester said, of "getting even with the next man to come through." They served as a license, he added, "to revert to primitive and savage instincts" and were not in accord with the ritual, nor a test of the freshman's mettle.

Harold P. Flint of Lombard, Ill., executive secretary of Tau Kappa Epsilon, characterized the rough-house initiation as "an outburst of sadistic temperament." Some members, he said, received delight out of inflicting punishment.

"The one vulnerable spot in the entire fraternity organization," he said "is the use of the rough-house system, during a period usually described as 'hell week' on the campus. The entire system is inane and of no practical use. It proves that even the so-called cultured college man has not yet learned to control his outbursts."

Mr. Flint thought the practice could not be broken "on the spur of the moment." It would be far better, he said, for fraternities to stop the rough practices than wait for the colleges to abolish them.

The conference accepted an invitation to co-operate with a committee appointed by Dr. H. W. Chase, president of the University of North Carolina, to study college fraternities with a view toward encouraging college administrators to make more use of fraternities as necessary adjuncts to the administration of colleges. Chancellor E. H. Lindley of the University of Kansas is chairman of the committee.

Harold Riegelman, chairman of the conference, presided at the meeting. In the annual election of officers Clifford M. Swan of New York (Delta Upsilon) was chosen as the new chairman; William L. Phillips of Richmond, Va., (Sigma Phi Epsilon) was re-elected vice chairman; Dr. Charles W. Gerstenberg of New York (Delta Chi) was elected secretary, and Alvan E. Duerr (Delta Tau Delta), treasurer. George H. Bruce, Oswald C. Hering (Delta Kappa Epsilon), and Louis Rouillon (Delta Chi) were elected members of the 1930 class on the executive committee of the Conference.

Purdue Lays Cornerstone

The day following Homecoming, Sunday, October 21st, the cornerstone of the new house of Gamma Lambda, now in the course of construction at the corner of Fowler Avenue, Northwestern Avenue, and Grant Street, West Lafayette, was laid. More than one hundred members of Gamma Lambda were present to take part in the ceremony.

Captain Theodore Haley, Beta Omega, '16, acted as master of ceremonies. Dean M. L. Fisher offered the invocation, and O. W. Eusey, president of the active chapter, welcomed the alumni and guests. W. C. Immel, '08, then welcomed the guests on behalf of the alumni. I. J. Reuter, '07, president of Oldsmobile Motor Car Company, gave a review of the early history of the chapter from the days of the Coterie Club until the installation of Gamma Lambda on April 22, 1907.

The cornerstone was then laid by H. B. Hoss, '05, of Indianapolis, the first president of the Coterie Club. Among the records sealed in the cornerstone were the charter roll of the chapter, the names of the present active members, pictures of Dr. Edward C. Elliott, president of Purdue, and the late Morris Winfield Phillips, Beta Psi, founder of Gamma Lambda, a copy of The Lafayette Journal & Courier containing an account of his death July 15, 1928, and a copy of The Purdue Exponent.

Dr. Elliott made the principal address, emphasizing the fact that the fraternity was an integral part of the university life; that its existence was mythical, as in the university, for the men who pass through its portals and take their place in the world of affairs of after life really become Purdue University and the fraternity. They are the ones who do the great work that turn the minds of the people back to Purdue. During the exercises songs were sung by the members of the active chapter.

Following the cornerstone laying a reception was held at the chapter house and a buffet luncheon was served.

The Sigma Phi Epsilon Plan

While we are worrying about scholarship, here is what Sigma Phi Epsilon does to head off the worries or to remedy them as soon as they occur:

It is recommended that freshman pledging be restricted to those who were in the upper half of their respective high or preparatory schools.

Initiation is deferred at least one term. A scholastic average for the term equal at least to the all-men average of the institution is required for initiation.

If a pledge does not qualify for initiation within one calendar year from the date of pledging, his pledge expires ipso facto, and he may not be repledged until his grades for one term qualify him for initiation.

Any member who fails to maintain an average scholarship grade equal to that required for graduation shall, in the absence of mitigating circumstances, for the first offense be placed on probation, and the penalty shall be forfeiture of such social privileges as may be prescribed by the chapter. For such failure in a second successive term the member shall be automatically suspended from the chapter, and the penalty shall be loss of house privileges and the right to wear the insignia of Sigma Phi Epsilon. A member so suspended may not be reinstated as an active until his average grade for at least one term shall be equal to the all-men average of the institution.

In case the average scholarship grade of a chapter falls below the all-men average of the institution, the chapter shall ipso facto be on probation, and shall be deprived of all social activities until the chapter average for a term equals or exceeds the all-men average.

Shall we propose similar legislation at the Indianapolis Karnea?

The Loyalty Fund Again

By A. E. Buchanan, Jr.

Circumstances seem to have made an orphan out of the Delta Tau Delta Loyalty Fund recently. At least, it has been laid on my doorstep without any directions as to how and when it should be fed and cared for. Perhaps it was assumed that I should know all about the care of such children, having helped to raise several of my own in my regular job. At any rate, the only information accompanying the foundling is that its name is "The Loyalty Fund."

Now at first glance I didn't like that name. The word "Fund" has come somehow to connote, to me at least, committees, pledge cards, gorgeous sales pamphlets, quotas, all-together-boys-let's-put-it-over-the-top speeches, bigger-and-better something-or-others, and all the overworked concomitants of Liberty Loan days. So the "fund" part of this child's name slapped me right in the face, and I had a lurking suspicion that the "Loyalty" part came with it just to take some of the sting out of the slap. However, after examining the youngster and getting a bit acquainted, it dawned on me that the name isn't so bad, after all, because the object of the whole project is to raise a fund, not of money, primarily, but of loyalty. It is the Delta Tau Delta Fund of Loyalty that we are trying to collect and invest to yield rich dividends.

What our Fraternity needs, gentlemen, is ourselves, not our money. We have in Delta Tau Delta a vast potential influence for good in some 20,000 individual lives and in the American system of higher education. But this power can do no useful work until it is harnessed. Like a great waterfall, it is beautiful but wasteful until means are devised to apply its energy—a feat which can be accomplished without detriment to its scenic splendor, incidentally.

In our Fraternity we have some 20,000 men, most of them cherishing a very real affection for Delta Tau Delta, its associations, and the principles it represents. Every man is conscious of his "life-long allegiance," and would gladly demonstrate his loyalty by constructive effort, if the opportunity were presented. But the vast majority of Delta alumni find no opportunity to participate actively in the work of the Fraternity, to translate their lifelong allegiance into "practical everyday service," with the result that for many of us older men Delta Tau Delta is but a precious memory, an inspiration to be cherished within us. The fact is that the Fraternity needs the influence of its alumni; the present actives and the officers need the inspiration, the help, and the advice of the thousands of good Deltas who have made the Fraternity what it is. How can we blame an active chapter for having the attitude that their "chapter house is simply a boarding house for four years" unless we older Deltas show them that a Delta Shelter means more than that to us? How can the Fraternity inculcate ideals in college men unless we, who were taught that same idealism years ago, demonstrate by our continued participation in the work of the Fraternity that we hold those ideals worthy of our lifelong support?

To provide the mechanism which will give an outlet to this vast reserve of alumni interest is the prime object of the Loyalty Fund. We propose to organize ourselves so as to become articulate in our relations to Delta Tau Delta; so as to provide expression for the attachment to an ideal that is within us. We have decided that the first thing for us to do is to assess ourselves for annual dues. This decision is based on two sound reasons: first, we realize that our interest in a project increases as soon as we have financial stake in it; secondly, we are convinced that funds will be needed to conduct this great organization in the sound, businesslike way that must characterize the functioning of the Fraternity's operation if it is to command our continued respect and co-operation.

It will be a fine thing for Delta Tau Delta to have a fund (of dollars) that will enable her to say to a boy, "The fact that you are poor won't prevent you from being a Delt. You are the kind of man we want in the Fraternity, and because we are a fraternity in fact as well as in name, your elder brothers will remove the financial barrier from your path." It will be a fine thing to be able to say to a chapter, "You are overburdened by mortgages and debts, and your members are carrying too heavy a load. Let us help you carry it with the strength supplied by Deltas who have gone before you."

But it will be a very much finer thing to demonstrate to the world that the Delt relationship endures for life. It will be much finer to know that the actives of today are being made better men by the inspiration and example of active Delt alumni. It will be infinitely finer to reanimate 20,000 hearts with the burning zeal of unselfish idealism that is Delta Tau Delta.

Therefore, brothers, if you will raise with me your glasses, I give you—"The Loyalty Fund: may it be measured in dollars; immeasurable in Delt devotion."

THE DELTA FIELD

To start where Ralph left off is a very, very difficult job for one so devoid of any real ability as I am. My mind fails to function properly when I attempt to burden it with the duty of a written display of English. But as our Editor has served due notice on me, I feel bound to do my best to give you readers something worth while. I have almost achieved the position of an experienced traveler, and with most of the Western Division behind me I am beginning to feel like an old-timer. But there are many of the Delt world that I have not met, and to those I wish to say hello and hope that I will meet them in the near future. We are starting out on a year full of promise. It is the 70th year of our Fraternity, a landmark in her progress. It is up to each chapter to contribute its share to make this year an outstanding year. When the Golden Karnea rolls around, let's each have something to feel proud about. That depends on each chapter and on each individual. How you and I do our work will be reflected in that Karnea and in Delta Tau Delta's success.

* * * *

After a month of hot New York and the continuous burden of trying to get Tom Wilson, a true Southerner, to work on time, I started my travels. A few days' stop at Cleveland for the Arch Chapter meeting, and then I headed for the Golden Gate and Beta Omega. Beta Omega's beautiful home certainly was a welcome sight after the plains of Wyoming, Utah, and Nevada. The care of a gardener has reaped its reward, and the flowers and grounds were at their best. With that home and with a lot of rework on the part of the chapter and the alumni, Beta Omega had secured a fine group of pledgees. Journalists, athletes, students, and social leaders were evident in the selection. The chapter was still rejoicing over California's great success in the Olympics. It was a crew captained by a Delt, "Moco" Dressler, that had won, and in the bow had been another, "Curly" Stalder, head of the house last year. To show their appreciation the chapter presented the two with a trophy to add to their supply of medals and watches. This year in the chapter we found the senior crew manager, a junior crew manager, and several men out to fill the places left open by the two men in the house. Beach Dean, the head of the house, was looking forward to a season of competition on California's basketball team. Beta Omega is full of promise.

With that home and with the men working she is making herself a power.

To Nate Fitts, chapter adviser at Delta Iota, I want to take off my hat. He has been working with our chapter there to make it one that we could be proud to call a real power in our Fraternity. With the co-operation of the men themselves results have been more than gratifying. Some real effort the last two years has placed Delta Iota in the front at U.C.L.A. With men like Tom Cunningham of last year, and C. Badger, business manager of The Delta, and Jack Callahan, this year's president and basketball manager; Al Jack, president and senior honorary; John Clark, president and junior honorary and class; and "Spud" Moore, yell leader, the chapter is making a record that shows what work will do. And then with men like that in the chapter of course they had the success they wanted in pledging men able to carry on the work. The prospects for the chapter brighten when he takes a trip out to the new campus. Money seems a matter of minor importance. Out on the edge of Los Angeles the new campus is nearing completion. The school has secured 350 acres of land and is just finishing the construction of four huge buildings. School will open in these buildings the first of next school year. In a few years the campus should rival any in the United States for facilities and beauty. In view of the prospects ahead Delta Iota has secured a lot on the top of one of the hills in the most desirable spot in the section allotted fraternities. In a few years we should find them housed in one of the best homes on the campus. The men who worked so hard to secure a charter for the chapter.

Stanford and Beta Iota were proud of their famous Delt track aggregation. Bob King, that admirable and likable fellow, had not only won the coveted crown of the world champion high jumper, but he had also won the admiration of the members of the Olympic team. Those of you who were in New York after the Olympics will remember the pictures and the articles that were ever recurring on the sport pages of the leading city papers about Bob. I believe he received as much publicity as any man on the team, and he deserved every bit of it. Then Bud Spencer, with three other men, helped raise the American flag to the top of the center mast with victory in the 1600 meter relay. From all reports Bud did more than his share in gaining that victory. Then the third member of that famous trio, after setting a world record in the trials and falling in the final race, determined that he was going to make the trip to Amsterdam regardless of what the Olympic committee decided. So Ross Nichols turned stowaway and made the trip. He was finally drafted into service as a seaman and was on one of the American yachts that won a fourth in the finals. Sherman Crary, a nephew of Jud Crary, who has been one of Stanford's most loyal alumni, has taken over the reins of Beta Rho. Sherm made a great record as treasurer last year, and if he does as well as president Beta Rho certainly will prosper. School had not started when I was at the chapter, but I did get to see Stanford's famous coached football team play. Crary and "Spud" Lewis are holding down positions on the squad. From recent reports Spud has been helping to make football history for Stanford.

After a trip through California's and Oregon's forest-covered mountains I found a pleasant surprise at the University of Oregon. Gamma Rho had talked of building a house. Plans had been drawn up, but that is all I had expected to find. Instead I found a new forty-thousand-dollar home situated on a low hill just west of the stadium. They were getting settled after a week of successful rushing, and with this new home Oregon was looking forward to the future with great enthusiasm. The house is a two story building of English style. On the first floor is a cozy room with a large fireplace, just the room for those cold winter evenings and real sessions at which we learn to know each other so well. There of course is a big front room and another fireplace, a library, a guest suite, and the house manager's room. Then in the rear of the house you go down a few steps to the dining room, with its oval-shaped table that will take care of forty men. Off the dining room is a butler's pantry and a modern kitchen that would make any cook jealous. All the furniture is new, and all the rugs are orientals, a gift of the mothers in Portland. Upstairs we find rooms for thirty-five men. Four small dorms that each take care of about ten men are a feature. In the basement are the chapter hall, store rooms, and rooms for the help. Gamma Rho has a home to be proud of. The men responsible for the house are to be congratulated and thanked. Orval Blair, treasurer several years ago, has done more than his share and is watching to see that the chapter prosper in the new home. Merrill Hagan, one of Oregon's famous webfoot footballers, is head of the house, and the financial destinies are in the hands of one of Oregon's baseball men, Carl Nelson. With such a successful start Oregon and Delta Tau will soon be hearing of the wonders of Gamma Rho.

* * * *

Gamma Mu at Seattle is in the process of a big change. She had lost most of her older men last year, and now there are only two seniors left in the chapter. Much of the job of carrying on the work had fallen to the sophomores and juniors. And what more, they were attacking the situation with plenty of the right methods. The chapter is out to gain recognition on the campus, and next year and the last of this year should show results. Her two seniors should be elected to Phi Beta Kappa, an excellent record considering the fact that Brown was last year's annual business manager and that Williams has been on the basketball squad and is now circulation manager of the daily. The president, Wilson Gaw, was one of Washington's baseball men and a prospective basketball man. Several men out for crew, a junior basketball manager, and a group of busy sophomores are helping to do their bit toward success. In Ed Jones, their new chapter officer, they have a man that is going to mean much to Gamma Mu. He has already illustrated what he can do in helping build the Seattle alumni chapter into a live organization.

* * * *

Back in Colorado I found that Beta Kappa, Colorado's oldest fraternity, was still upholding the Colorado end of the Delt world. I felt very much out of place at first. Here was the chapter of my predecessor, and how were they going to treat me when they had been used to dealing with one that they knew so much better and was one of their own chapter? But I found out that, although Colorado missed Ralph greatly, they allowed me to fill his place even if I could not play the piano or compose sweetheart songs. I found out where Ralph must have received some of his inspiration for his music. Colorado's beautiful campus snuggled up against those snow-covered Rockies is an inspiring place. It was just taking on the first tints of fall, and the snow was gathering on some of the lower peaks.

But to get back to more material things. The chapter received another honor while I was there. Perry Bartlett, already vice-president of the Interfraternity Council, was elected president of the junior class. The chapter seems to have established a tradition that every three years they should have the business manager of the annual. Harold Ford is the present manager. A Phi Beta Kappa and last year's manager of The Silver and Gold, the school paper, along with a Tau Beta Pi and a member of the tumbling team, were making a name for the chapter in scholarship. Jerry Paul, a dignified lawyer, was ably filling the rôle of president.

* * * *

Now comes the opportunity to put poor little Beta Tau at Nebraska on the map. What, you haven't heard of Beta Tau Chapter? Well, it certainly is not their fault. Look in that list of major distinctions in last RAINBOW. Well, that ain't all. At least it was a rest to get back to one's own chapter and to find it still existing without one's effort and appearing to be getting along in even better condition. In case you haven't read the major distinctions, they have the following: football co-captain, "Blue" Howell; business manager of the daily, "Boly" McGrew; president of the Student Council, "Bub" Larson; head cheerleader, "Chick" Dox; business manager engineering publication and vice-president of the senior honorary, Carl Olson; and business manager of the Kosmet Club, "Austy" Sturtevant. A class of fine freshmen were pledged, and prospects of the continued success of the chapter are bright. The plans for the Western Division conference are under way. The chapter was jubilant over the fact that the Delt governor Adam J. McMullen is turning over his office to another of Beta Tau's charter members, A. J. Weaver. Geo. Dern, the third Beta Tau governor, and another charter member, was re-elected Governor of Utah.

* * * *

Gamma Chi was certainly a rest for a weary traveler. Kansas weather was acting badly, and my only glimpse of the Kansas State campus was through a mist of falling rain or snow. But at Manhattan one has little case to journey elsewhere than the campus, and one does not mind the rain. Then the chapter has so much real fellowship that one needs to go nowhere for pleasure. Even as an old local the chapter was strong. During the last nine years as a chapter of Delta Tau Delta they have remained strong. In all branches of campus life one can find a Delt prominent or the recent marks of a member of the chapter. Except for a bad record last year, 1927-28, the chapter has always stood among the leaders in scholarship. This year they were in the first five. This year's basketball team will be captained by Ed Skradski. The president of the student body is Charles, another Delt. Last year the chapter won its second intramural all year trophy. Another example of a hard working chapter.

At the University of Kansas high up on a hill is the home of Gamma Tau. A truly beautiful location and a wonderful home. The chapter is justifying the faith that the alumni have put in it. It was very active last year and was second in scholarship. The chapter has certainly come to the front, and is making a record. They lost a fine group of seniors last year, but are still almost as active. Their homecoming was dampened by a rain and snowstorm, but I had the chance to meet some of the alumni that have helped secure that wonderful home for the chapter. The president, Whitmer, has a job filling the shoes of Griener, last year's president, but is doing an admirable job. The chapter has men in the honorary scholastic fraternities Beta Gamma Sigma and Tau Beta Pi, and their prospects for scholarship are strong. They have two outstanding men in Voran and Hillmer. The first is editor of The Daily Kansan and the latter secretary of the Student Council.

* * * *

When Allen Beck went to school, Baker University was then a school of traditions. Baker is the oldest school in the state of Kansas, and Gamma Theta chapter is the oldest national on the campus. It was back in 1880 that the local, which later became Gamma Theta chapter, was founded. Continually we have read of Gamma Theta alumni who have made a record in the world. Down there in Kansas in a sleepy little town is a small but strong university. Delta Tau Delta has had her ups and downs and has mostly been in the ups. The chapter at present is just starting to come into one of those stronger periods. They are talking of remodeling their home, of future prospects in activities, in scholarship, and the quality of their freshmen class. They are hard workers and are doing their share to uphold those traditions and ideals in Gamma Theta that have turned out so many strong Delts.

Gamma Kappa decided that they needed some improvements on their home; so they spent twenty-five thousand and now have a house that will vie with any in completeness. They decided that their housemother needed new quarters; so they completed a suite of rooms for her just off of the main room. They remodeled the dining room, closed in the front porch, and made a long airy sunroom of it, and redecorated throughout. The contractor had not completed the work when school started, and the chapter were forced to rush under very unsatisfactory conditions. With a hardworking captain they surmounted the obstacles and succeeded in landing a group of likely looking freshmen. The president, Herb Records, is taking his job seriously and should get results. Then I want to mention Walt Ritchie, the chapter adviser, who is doing a lot for Gamma Kappa. Columbia was in the midst of a beautiful fall, and the weather was perfect during my few days. Columbia has a touch of the South both in its weather and its appearance.

When a chapter becomes as strong as Beta Upsilon did a few years ago, anything is likely to happen. The campus won't stand for it, and too much prosperity is bound to make a chapter lazy. A combination of things resulted in Beta Upsilon's drop in activities. But a chapter won't stay down long when it has a reputation to keep up such as Beta Upsilon has. So I look for a reverse in the next year. Beta Upsilon will be back where she belongs before long. In Frank Wardecker the chapter has a president who is a real worker. He is bound to get results. Already he has made progress in a financial way, and I expect to see the chapter rise in activities and in scholarship. Several things have already begun to break. Several star athletes are returning to school, the freshmen are getting started on the ground floor, and it looks that it won't be long before Illinois will have another Delt year like 1926-27.

* * * *

Those of you who have never been fortunate enough to attend one of Dr. Wieland's freshmen dinners have missed a page in your Delt life. I had the privilege to visit my first one on November 17th. It was an inspiration to see and to hear those hundred and fifty pledges that were there. Oklahoma, Florida, Kansas, etc., and of course the Chicago chapter's en masse. Dr. Wieland is an example of real interest in Delta Tau Delta. His interest does not stop there, but goes still further with a real interest in all fraternities. This last dinner, his twenty-seventh freshman dinner, was a landmark in his service to our Fraternity.

* * * *

A year ago it appeared that Gamma Alpha was breathing her last few years of existence. The alumni were determined that she should continue, and so were the majority of that little group of actives that survived. The big job fell to Franklin Wheeler, Hud Moore, and the rest of the loyal alumni. They straightened out the finances and reorganized the chapter. Then an active member came along and took over the office of president. This man, Fred Hack, Jr., set to work. He got results, mostly by his own hard work. This summer with Bill Sullivan's help he organized a rushing campaign. The results are evident in a group of nine fine pledges. The chapter is slowly getting back on its feet. If the actives continue to work, the chapter will soon be back where it should be. The faith the alumni had in the group will be justified. Where once the future looked more than dark, the future now begins to take on a bright hue.

* * * *

It is with a sigh of relief that I come to the close of my first bit in the Delta Field. I must now submit this to our Editor for his final check. My first few months in the harness have been pleasant months. Each chapter visitation has been a joy. Different types, different conditions everywhere, but essentially the problems center around a few things scholarship, activities, finances, co-operation, and rushing are things for each chapter to work on. If these are right, other things will also be right. It depends on each one of you, and it falls to each true Delt to do his share in the work of his chapter.

ROBERT C. DAVENPORT

AROUND THE FIREPLACE

The Fraternity welcomes most heartily its new chapter, Delta Kappa, at Duke University, which was installed on December 8th by President Norman MacLeod, assisted by other members of the Arch Chapter, an initiation team from Gamma Omega at North Carolina, and a throng of enthusiastic alumni from neighboring states. May Delta Kappa live long and prosper!

We had hoped to carry in this number a story of the installation, and everything possible had been done to ensure the immediate arrival of this account. With the passage of a week, however, since the installation and with no story having arrived, we are compelled reluctantly to go to press without it.

* * * *

You'd never guess what it is we've discovered that makes us know—not think, mind you, but know—that old Delta Tau is coming into her own.

It's a half dozen or so paragraphs, hidden away here and there in as many alumni chapter letters.

Want to know what they are? Read:

Several members went over to Columbia on November 24th. The active chapter welcomed us with real Delt spirit.—St. Louis Alumni Chapter.

More than forty-five actives and rushees participated in a theatre party.—Denver Alumni Chapter.

The Karnea Executive Committee has met at DePauw, Wabash, Butler, and Purdue, and some time in December will meet at Indiana.—Indianapolis Alumni Chapter.

The dinner is an effort to assemble the members of Beta Delta, Gamma Psi, and Beta Epsilon, and the Atlanta alumni.—Atlanta Alumni Chapter.

There were nine actives from Tau, down for the Pitt-Penn game.—Pittsburgh Alumni Chapter.

There were thirty-five men from Gamma Mu present and some forty odd alumni....Our regular monthly dinners are held at the chapter house.—Seattle Alumni Chapter.

A motion was passed to visit each of the active chapters in the state at least once during the fall term.—Topeka Alumni Chapter.

Do you see what all that means?

It is the crystalizing of the thing that makes a fraternity a fraternity—the first fruits of the beginning of a condition that goes with a certain Prophecy.

* * * *

And these are only little sentences here and there.

They do not tell the whole story.

They contain no references to the active-alumni association that exists in Los Angeles, in New Orleans, in Philadelphia, in Chicago, in Boston, in Cleveland, in Detroit, in San Francisco, in Toronto—elsewhere.

They make no mention of the renascence of Delt spirit that is being fostered through the Loyalty Fund.

What an awakening it is becoming!

* * * *

Two thoughts come to us as we contemplate all this.

The first is of the joy of the man who rediscovers his youth—for that's what it amounts to.

We are genuinely sorry for these alumni organizations of any fraternity that, moved by a sort of pale sense of duty or a wistful hope that in some mysterious way may be recaptured the first, fine careless rapture of younger days, try to meet now and then, lunch on thin soup, dabs of cold salmon garnished with anaemic lemon, indifferent filet mignon, a dubious salad, flat apple pie, and uninteresting coffee, and then wonder why the damned thing was so dull.

Of course it was dull. Of course it always will be dull. These men were trying to pull themselves up by their own bootstraps, and nobody's ever been able to do that.

But the other fellows—those whose horizon suddenly has broadened, who have found a new interest in living, a new happiness, because they have stepped out of themselves and their business affairs, because they have taken upon themselves new interests, new concerns, new affections, who by association with youth have been re-surcharged with the spirit of youth, and have felt the old thrill come back again—these are the men who have found, some of them for the first time, the miracle that lies in the fraternal bond.

* * * *

The second?

It's more serious, that is. It makes us wince a little.

It's the thought of the responsibility these men have taken upon themselves.

God help them, fellows, if they lead you wrong—for that's always a possibility. No one of us thinks straight all the time. And you know, when a man discovers, perhaps all in a flash, that he can be a boy again—!

You see, we still remember a certain youngster whose plea was that he had always been decent until at a fraternity gathering, he saw—well, he saw enough to make him think that it wasn't necessary to be decent. And he was not talking about other youngsters still in college.

We can't forget that story, because the boy had it on us, you know—not on you and on us, perhaps, but on that body of the Fraternity which we also represent, of which we are a part.

And we think of the grim warning from the Great Book—that perhaps it must needs be that offences come, but as for that man who causes one of these little ones to perish, better it were for him that a millstone were hung about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depths of the sea.

* * * *

And that leads again, naturally, to this whole question of liquor.

Speaking for ourselves, personally, if you'll pardon it, a good many of you have thought our own position on this matter at Karneas and Conferences somewhat quixotic—extreme. But that's why.

No man can accept the pin without accepting the responsibility it imposes. We let up a little once, in order to try to be a bit more friendly—and we've regretted it ever since.

You see, Delta Tau Delta is only an aggregation of human beings, and when you get a crowd like that together, you know, and everybody knows, that in it there'll always be one, two, six—some people who, if given the least encouragement, are entirely ready to make temporary damned fools of themselves, not to say asses and sots.

That's why we can't see liquor for ourselves at such gatherings or on such occasions.

Understand, we're not telling you how far your responsibility goes. We're only reaffirming our own, as we see it—and we don't mind adding that the more we see of the liquor situation within our Fraternity, the clearer that conviction becomes.

* * * *

The works of Mr. Volstead have less than nothing to do with it.

We consider the whole Volstead business as an impertinent and unwarrantable intrusion upon personal liberty as guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States. We're not sure that the fact of its having been written into the law of the land amounts to much. The Legislature of Tennessee once enacted a law forbidding tipping. Not even a certain clerical friend of ours, who takes off his hat to the Volstead Act because it is an Act, paid any attention to that Tennessee enactment. He characterized it as silly, as it was.

But we had this whole thing to wrestle with long before we were cursed with Mr. Volstead, and our present anti-liquor regulations were framed long before anybody ever heard of Mr. Volstead.

Nor do we recognize any real analogy between the law of the land and the law of the Fraternity.

We still do not believe that any man has the moral right to identify his ribaldry, his gambling, his libertinism, his smutty stories, or his liquor drinking with his fraternity.

He doesn't identify those things with the girl he loves.

He doesn't identify them with his mother.

He loves his girl and he loves his mother, and he keeps the other side of himself away from them.

And there is an analogy.

That's all we are saying: keep these things out of our official gatherings; keep them out of our chapter houses.

* * * *

Which leads, again, to the chapter house.

We are wondering whether Delta Tau Delta hasn't about come to the place to swing the axe.

Has a crowd of men the right to drink in their own house if they like?

Perhaps they have. But, unless we say so, they have no right to drink in your house and in our house, because it is the Shelter of all of us, too, as long as that group of men lives under the aegis of Delta Tau Delta, maintains our Altar beneath its roof-tree, and administers our oath to its members.

And, by the way, that oath pledges the honor—honor, fine word that—of every man to a true and conscientious obedience to the official orders of Delta Tau Delta—which either means something or means nothing, but is perhaps worthy of consideration.

* * * *

So there are our own feelings.

We do believe that every Delt has a clear-cut responsibility which no amount of sophistry can lighten.

We do believe that any chapter of Delta Tau Delta made up of men who are unwilling to keep liquor out of the house and off the premises ought to surrender their charter, and the quicker the better.

We should be stronger fraternity, and a better fraternity, and a bigger fraternity with forty chapters made up of real Delts than with seventy-four, thirty odd made up of men who prefer to ignore, and deliberately, the wishes of their brothers.

We didn't mean to become and to remain so serious. But it's hard to keep a smile on your face when something hurts down in your heart.

Guess we'll go to town and get out the blue Chrysler.

You know, we smashed the convertible. Coming back from seeing Andy Buchanan at Bethlehem.

Twenty feet down a bank. Oh, boy! Every time we start home from Bethlehem something untoward happens to us.

Yes, there's a lot in influence.

Rally around, fellows. There's maybe going to be a call for some man stuff.

Yours, until we meet again—perhaps at Philippi.

Alpha—Allegheny

Mid-first semester 1928-29, 2nd of 8 national fraternities.

At last we are all back in the old Delta Shelter and all set for a big year. The plan whereby we moved around to the different fraternity houses proved to be a wonderful success, but just the same we are all more than glad to be back.

As a fitting climax to a great football season Ronnie McKay was elected football captain for next year. The success of the past season of the Big Gold Team was in no small manner due to Ronnie, and with the help of Knapp and Pledges Smith and Stirling we can not help having a successful season next year.

Frank Johnstone was elected junior manager of the team.

Several weeks ago Bert McGill won the annual extemporaneous contest of Delta Sigma Rho—just another cup for Alpha.

Yesterday basketball practice began, and of course Henry Lane and George Johnstone, both last year letter men, were there to help get things started.

ELVIN BATCHELOR.

Beta—Ohio

Year 1927-28, 3rd of 11 national fraternities.

Initiates: Kenneth Query, Wilksburg, Pennsylvania; Jack Jones, New Straitsville, Ohio; Charles Englefried, Clyde Newall, Cleveland.

The chapter sent three men to the Dr. Wieland dinner, and again the old traditional horseshoe vest of Beta Chapter made its appearance.

Jack Bosch, president of the Interfraternity Conference, will be in New York over Thanksgiving attending the National Interfraternity Conference as a representative of Ohio University.

The football season is over now, and Richard Goos is sporting his prized "O" sweater, while "OAA" sweaters have been given to Jack Jones and Charles Englefried.

The house cross country team won the intramural championship run, the entire field of 56 runners being led to the tape by Pledge Williams. Other members of the team were Clyde Newall, Walter Williams, Ernest Wilson, Stewart Roach. Our two teams entered in the indoor baseball leagues finished second in each league, losing the championship by one run.

Timms and Newall are representing the house on the varsity basketball team, while Evans, DuBois, Beckwith, Lockman, and Regal are on the freshman squad. Pledge Walter Williams and Clyde Newall made their numerals in freshman football.

Beta's chapter house is being redecorated and refinished for the Northern Division Conference here in the spring. The chapter is looking forward to this, and we really are intending to have a big time for all the delegates and alumni that visit with us over that week end.

Alumni Notes

Madison Humphrey and Edwin Palmer of Ashtabula were our end-of-the-week guests over Thanksgiving.

The Rev. S. W. Brown, of Kingston, Ohio, dropped in one afternoon for his first visit to the chapter in twenty-eight years. He has promised that he will be back again soon.

Henry Eckles and Jim Trone of Portsmouth made their annual pilgrimage to the house to see the boys and promised us they will not fail to be at the Conference.

KENDALL QUERY

Gamma—Washington and Jefferson

Year 1927-28, 3rd of 9 fraternities.

Pledges: R. M. Martin, Follansbee, West Virginia; Harold Fergus, Washington; George Penn, Washington; R. L. Martin, Cadiz, Ohio; Calvin Vollmer, Carrick; Edward Rimer, Clarion; John Gregg, Pittsburgh; Arthur Knickerbocker, Ben Avon; William Updegraph, Carrick; Harry Updegraph, Carrick; Carl Nelson, Carrick; Lawrence Davies, Carrick; Walter Camp, Clarton; Harry McCullough, Pittsburgh; Arthur Rutan, Washington; Samuel McGee, Washington.

The first semester has now well nigh reached its climax, and consequently school activities are in full swing. Our first great care, of course, was with the pledges—i.e., in planning some sort of system as a guide for compulsory study. Fortunately we have succeeded, so that but little doubt remains concerning their ability for work.

Gamma may boast truthfully of her representation along all lines of college activities. With Bob Womsley as student manager of the football team and Jack Snee, Bud Fieger, and Art Rutan as his assistants, we hold full sway of football management on the campus for years to come. Francis Gillen is student manager of the basketball squad; Jerry Harshman is freshman manager. Five brothers also have been accepted by the glee club, of which Ed Kline is director. In connection with dramatics, a general interest is taken among not a few of the boys.

Again we may add that Newby, Irwin, Beeson, and Pollock are included in the famous W. & J. list of varsity football men. The prospects for men on the next year's squad are seen in our worthy pledges, Bill Updegraph and Carl Nelson, who are both making a beautiful showing on the freshman team. As strange as it may seem, we have only one man, Roy McKissock, playing varsity basketball this winter, but since quite a few of our pledges are out for the freshman team, who knows but what our chapter may furnish the first squad varsity in a year or so?

Gamma Chapter wishes you all a very Happy New Year!

Delta—Michigan

Year of 1927-28, 43rd of 49 fraternities; chapter average 70.8; fraternity average 74.13.

Initiates: Roger L. Slater (address not given).

Pledges: Daniel Bulmer, Maynard Morrison, Marvin Higley (addresses not given).

We now have a pledge class of thirteen, and expect to pledge several more at the beginning of the second semester.

In athletics we are again well represented. Mike Geistert, after being promoted to the A team for his excellent work on the B squad, has been awarded his "M" in football; Jack Dobbin won his numerals again this year, this time in sophomore football; and Maynard Morrison starred on the freshman team. Charley Whyte took second place in the all-campus golf tournament. Cliff Murray and Bill Reed are out for track, running the dash and quarter-mile respectively. Boldt and Crothers are out for the swimming team.

Don Vedder is now assistant to the head of the Department of Dramatic Art.

The opening of the Michigan Opera will find six Deltas in the cast, and we are led to believe that the Opera is something particularly good this year.

We have had two parties this semester, the last one a formal, and we are now making preparations for our annual house party to be held the week-end of the J-Hop.

Don Doolittle was unable to return this semester because of an attack of appendicitis. We hope to have him with us in February.

We have been fortunate in having a large number of alumni visit the house during the football season.

ALEX FORBES

Epsilon—Albion

2nd semester 1927-28, 1st of 6 national fraternities.

Initiates: William Marsh, Detroit; Robert Jefferson, Flint; Floy Johnson, Wayne.

Pledges: Sherwood Wilkes, Chicago; Richard Pekham, Detroit; Stanley Kane, Saginaw; Frederick Hemerick, Gagetown; Harry Fitch, Adelbert Huff, William Denman, Richard Stark, Ferndale; Gordon Miller, Reed City; Edwin Griffith, Albion; Harley Hagen, St. Ignace; Sidney Blair, Kenneth Young, Redford; John Barron, Marysville; Wayne Richard, Grand Ledge; Clarence Bessert, Detroit; Don Davis, Detroit; Richard Judd, St. Johns.

Within the first month of school Epsilon stepped out and took the two best of the three cups awarded in fall competition. High honors in scholarship, attained with a point average of 2.824, brought the interfraternity scholarship cup to the Shelter this year, and we are trying to make the Delt house its permanent home.

The chapter's sixth annual Homecoming celebration on October 19-20 witnessed the triumph of Epsilon in winning the House Decorations award. More than 75 alumni returned for the week end to participate in the varied entertainments, which were climaxed with our annual alumni banquet.

Eighteen freshman are wearing the crossed Deltas as a result of the work of the rushing committee, headed by Ralph Pelton. Most of them have already entered into campus activities, and there is not a one that won't make a good Delt. Four won numerals on the frosh grid team, and others are inclining towards basketball, debating, dramatics, and all towards scholarship. Dick Stark was elected treasurer of the freshman class. Six of these pledge men were fortunate enough to be able to attend the annual Wieland freshman banquet in Chicago.

The closing of the football season finds John Vallance's name at right tackle on the mythical all-M.I.A.A. eleven, and the big boy is only a sophomore. He also hurls for the diamond outfit in the spring. Marsh and Johnson also represent Epsilon on the football team.

Bailey functions as an editor of the school paper, The Pleiad; Wilkes is a gleester, track man, and editor of the student directory; Guile supports himself from the top of a bamboo pole as vaulter on the thinclad outfit; Koether heads the Senior Prom committee; Pelton runs the bookstore; Carlson is captain of the cage squad this year and has been coaching the yearlings; and McCulloch is a varsity debater.

SANFORD L. COOPER

Year 1927-28, 2nd of 11 national fraternities.

Initiate: William Hodgeson, Lakewood

Reserve's team has just finished one of the most successful seasons in her football history. Mike Marcia and Al Fisher represented the chapter on the squad, Marcia making a varsity letter. This is Mike's sophomore year, and he has two more football seasons yet to go. Prospects for next year are exceedingly bright, for the freshman class contains the best material to come here in years.

Zeta has inaugurated a new policy in respect to the Delt alumni living in Cleveland. The first Monday in each month has been designated as Alumni Night, and a special program of entertainment is provided at the house by the active chapter. It is hoped that by this method we can reclaim some of the men who have lost their contact with the Fraternity, and also provide an opportunity for those Deltas to meet who are unable to attend the regular Friday luncheons. If there are any Deltas who are living in Cleveland and are not receiving notices of these smokers, they can get them by writing or phoning the house.

Dave Edwards was elected president of M-11 sophomore honorary. This is the second year in succession that the chapter has had a man in this office. John Hursh has been selected for Corpse-Coffin, junior honorary. Jack Roesch and Hursh were chosen for the Warians, another campus organization.

Pat Moran served as chairman on the Reserve-Oberlin dance committee, and was one of the big factors in the success of that function. John Hursh played one of the leading roles in "It Pays To Advertise," a campus production. Bob Hienle has been awarded the sophomore scholarship. Jack Roesch has been pledged to Phi Delta Phi at Law School. Gordon Harkins and John Carroll have been pledged Nu Sigma Nu at Medical School.

R. D. COWEN

Kappa—Hillsdale

Year 1927-28, 2nd of 3 fraternities.

The scholarship of the active chapter has been raised to an appreciative point with no flunks during the first six weeks of school. If this is kept up there is no reason why Kappa should not walk off with the scholarship cup in February. We are worried more about the pledges now; so it's "hop-to" for them.

Football season faded into the background, and Kappa kept up its prestige with six men on the squad finishing and making their "H", which is no bad record. McClean, Eilber, Knight, Davis, and Wager got their letters, and Jones got his numeral. The freshmen numeral winners are Crisman and Born.

Basketball steps to the foreground and claims as slaves Davis, Howe, Johnson, Knight, Hall, and Wager. Howe, Johnson, and Wager are the letter men back from last year's squad. Hillsdale has every chance of sponsoring a championship basketball team this year, losing only two men from last year's squad.

Kappa celebrated her sixty-first birthday along with Homecoming this year. Decorations were splendid and alumni were plentiful, making the occasion happy and delightful.

The Tri-Delt convention will soon be rolling around for the Michigan chapters, and Kappa is planning a real blow-out for the boys from Epsilon and Delta. Everything but solemnity will be in order.

Hugh Shields is expected in any moment now; so the house is being kept in spick and span condition—until he leaves. Hope he doesn't come on Monday; that's always a bad day to catch a fellow awake. We always appreciate Hugh's visits, he is so helpful to us.

The Kappa Chapter Alumni Association have a field secretary now. Larry Hewett, '28, has been appointed to that capacity and is now on tour throughout Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana, keeping Kappa's alumni awake and moving. Larry's the boy for the job, all right.

Paul N. Berner, who lives way out East, in Snyder, New York, has been elected president of the Delt Alumni Association in that vicinity. Paul is a rising young lawyer out that way, so they say.

M. ARNOLD WAGER

Lambda—Vanderbilt

Year 1927-28, 15th of 16 fraternities.

What pleases Lambda most just now is the election of "Bull" Brown as Vanderbilt's football captain for 1929. Brown has played a great game for the Commodores this season, and has won mention on several all-American selections.

Another varsity football man was McNamara, and in addition Faust and Armstrong have made good on the freshman squad. Lambda also has three men on the Glee Club.

We are now making big plans for the entertainment of the Southern Conference in February, and it looks like a record breaking attendance. Delta Delta, at Tennessee, has promised to send forty delegates of her own.

EUGENE ELLISON

Omicron—Iowa

2nd semester 1927-28, 9th of 25 national fraternities.

December finds Omicron pursuing her natural course, more or less engrossed in scholarship and activities. We have had a very interesting and varied fall term, numerous events such as Homecoming and Dad's Day being of special interest. Just now we are all looking forward to the two-week sojourn over the holidays, and then the high-pressure time just previous to exams.

Homecoming will go down in the history of Omicron as being one of our most successful. We really believe that there were more alumni, more men from visiting chapters, than at any other time in the history of the chapter. Alumni almost mobbed the chapter house from Friday noon until Sunday evening; they all enjoyed our tea dance after the game; and they enjoyed meeting the fellows as much as we enjoyed seeing them again.

Dad's Day was a great source of inspiration. At one time there were about fifteen dads about the house. They all appeared to enjoy themselves; and although we lost the game, it would seem as though the day were highly appreciated by them. Visiting alumni and men from Wisconsin added to the fun of the occasion.

At the present Omicron is rather interested in intramural athletics. Having won the cup last year, we are interested in keeping it upon the mantel for another year or so. At present we are leading in the contest, having won the swimming meet and gone to the finals of fall baseball. With basketball coming on, interest will soon be at its peak.

This year our pledges are taking a healthy interest in affairs of the school. We have four or five out for freshman basketball, one on the freshman wrestling team, one for freshman debate, and several who are making a real try for University Players. In addition, these men are maintaining a rather creditable standing scholastically.

This week-end we have had the pleasure of having Bob Davenport, field secretary, visit us. We have all enjoyed meeting Bob, and the interchange of ideas has been profitable. We have enjoyed hearing the more intimate news of neighboring chapters, and we hope to have him with us again.

News of alumni is rather scarce. We are planning, however, to launch a campaign to get in touch with all those possible. We are going to start a newspaper in an effort to keep better connections with former actives.

BAILEY C. WEBBER

Pi—Mississippi

Year 1927-28, 4th of 17 fraternities; chapter average 82.59.

Initiates: James Stribling, W. J. Caldwell, Jr. (addresses not given).

Pledges: William Hollingsworth, Jackson; Tilman Langham, Duncan, Oklahoma; Hays McCauley, Joseph McCauley, Henry Hester, Philadelphia; Stephen Beach, West Point; Herbert Slay, Purvis; John D. Hawkins, Vaiden; Burrus Powell, Dudley Collins, Yazoo City; William Nelson, Corinth.

The pledges have entered activities with much interest. Hollingsworth is connected with the art staff of the annual; Collins is freshman football manager; Nelson is a reporter for The Mississippian; Hawkins bids fair as an exceptional grade maker; both McCauleys are in the band as well as the best jazz orchestra on the campus; Langham, Powell, and Collins are members of the Engineering Club; Langham is also a basketball; and Nelson is out for boxing.

As for the activities of the older men, Cary Stovall has the honor of having more honors than any three-year man on the campus. He is a member of Delta Sigma Pi, Tau Kappa Alpha, Alpha Phi Epsilon, president of Phi Sigma Literary Society, president of first year Law class, member of Ole Miss and Mississippian staffs, manager of track, assistant cheer leader, and member of the University debating team. He also has a list of past honors. Jim Stribling is a member of the Cardinal Club. Bill Caldwell is a member of Delta Sigma Pi and Phi Sigma.

Some several of the alumni were back for Homecoming Day, and all seemed proud of the work accomplished this year. T. Fitzhugh Wilson has paid the chapter two visits this year and was liked by all the boys.

Plans for initiation are on foot, and it is probable that it will be held in Jackson, followed by a Delt banquet and then a dance. With this in view the pledges are making doubly sure that the necessary grades are made. Caldwell and Hollingsworth made a visit to Beta Xi at Tulane and reported that they could not have been treated nicer. The whole chapter seemed full of the Delt spirit.

Much work was done this summer in regard to rushing, and the results proved good. A big dance was given in Jackson by alumni and the actives and was pronounced by many the best given during the entire summer.

W. J. CALDWELL, JR.

Rho—Stevens

Year 1927-28, 4th of 9 fraternities.

Rho had a very successful rushing season this year and pledged six men. J. Edward Brister, of Summit, New Jersey, brother of our chapter president, has been showing up well at basketball practice. He was captain of the freshman football team which tied the sophomores for the class championship. John Lewis Buckley, of Tenafly, New Jersey, played on the football team with "Ned." Chester A. Burnett comes to us from Kansas City, Missouri. "Chet" has been doing quite a good deal of lacrosse work this fall. John P. Moore comes from Dover, New Jersey, where he learned a lot about lacrosse. Orlando Reimold, who comes from Yonkers, completes our freshman lacrosse trio. Harold Austin Zimmermann, of Rutherford, New Jersey, captured the eyes of his classmates soon after the opening of college and was elected class president. "Jimmy" is quite a singer also and is out for the glee club.

It was indeed a happy day for Rho when Brister was elected president of Gear & Triangle, and we were doubly glad when "Gordy" Bowen and Eibe Deck were tapped by Gear & Triangle.

Deck has been chosen as a delegate from the Interfraternity Council to the National Interfraternity Conference in New York.

On November 23rd Dr. Harvey Nathaniel Davis was inaugurated president of Stevens. The ceremonies began the night before with a banquet at the Hotel Astor, at which more than 1100 alumni and delegates were present. On the morning of the 23rd a scientific meeting was held in the auditorium of the college, at which time papers were presented by Dr. Robert A. Milliken, president of the California Institute of Technology, and Dr. Johnston of the United States Steel Corporation. Following the papers a bronze tablet was presented to the college by the class of '81 in honor of their classmate, the late Alexander Crombie Humphreys, Rho, '81, who was president of Stevens for twenty-five years.

Rho entertained twenty alumni at luncheon and in the evening entertained Professor and Mrs. Freygang and "Duke" Stevens, Rho, '05, at dinner. Shortly after luncheon the inaugural procession formed at the historic Castle Stevens, whence it marched by the athletic field, where the replica of the John Stevens locomotive of 1825 was running on a wooden track similar to the original one and not far from the spot where it was set up. Representatives from more than 125 colleges and universities, among whom were forty college presidents, took part in the procession.

The entire chapter acted as guides, aids, and ushers throughout the day, which was perhaps the biggest day for Stevens in many years. No less than five motion picture photographers recorded all the mechanical and emotional idiosyncrasies of the ancient locomotive with her noisy and eager crowd of passengers.

ALFRED T. GREGORY

Tau—Penn State

2nd semester 1927-28, 8th of 35 fraternities.

Pledges: Arthur H. Masters, William H. Boyce, William S. Townsend, W. G. Simpson, D. G. Keeble, Wendal H. McClurg, Pittsburgh; Lewis E. Smyser, George Goodling, York; Calvin M. Runkle, Jay K. Osler, Allen Rothermal, William J. Gusick, Shamokin; John Gwynn, C. R. Chronister, E. O. Whitely, R. G. Ferguson, Philadelphia; R. K. Offerle, Warren; James G. Thompson, Lemont; Charles R. Groetzinger, Leetsdale; J. E. Simonin, Charleroi; D. D. Munroe, Ben Avon; James W. Cleary, Delmar, Delaware.

Rushing has been the center of all existence for Tau Chapter since school opened. For years the chapter has been small, not more than twenty-five men, for the old house held only a few more than twenty. The fourteen men who returned were confronted with the job of filling a house that holds thirty-five and that needs all of that number to finance chapter expenses. An organized rushing period yielded some results, but the pledging has been continued up to the Thanksgiving vacation. The opening of school early in December will see every place in the new house occupied.

Alumni Day, October 20th, brought more visitors than have ever before returned to Tau Chapter. Alumni and parents crowded the house from Friday until Sunday. Norman MacLeod, Hugh Shields, and Darrell Moore, President, and M. M. Grubbs, Vice-President, of the Eastern Division, gave the party an official flavor. After the football game with Syracuse, which ended in a 6-6 tie, the new chapter hall was dedicated with the formal initiation of William Leith. After the dinner, the alumni meeting and its speeches were held in the club room.

Dad's Day on October 13th and the fall house party in November helped fill the social calendar. The house party was a dandy, music, girls, and all making it the best ever. In spite of the fact that the house party dance was closed there were a number of visitors.

The house opening dance, to which are invited representatives of the other fraternities, is to be held on December 8th. On that same afternoon the wives of the Delt alumni who live in town are acting as hostesses at a tea which the chapter is giving to the faculty and town women. More than three hundred invitations are being sent out.

We are mighty glad to have had the chance to entertain Hugh Shields during the last week and to get the benefit of his advice on finances and rushing. We needed him, for Wilson Creal, our president, has been forced to withdraw from school on account of illness. We hope that both Creal and Shields will be back soon.

Two big jobs confront us now: first, to hit the books, and after that to line up activities. The scholarship slipped a little during the spring semester, though we are still in the upper half of the group. Activities are coming along, too. Bunting is treasurer of the senior class; Leith is working hard as an assistant manager of football; Masters is playing on the freshman football team; and Williams is on the varsity cross country squad and helped to win a dual meet with Pittsburgh. The freshmen are getting into things in fine shape, not the least of which is an active interest in the operation of the house and chapter. We cannot but feel optimistic.

T. CHESTER LARK

Upsilon—Rennselaer

No scholarship report available.

Initiates: Garrett Buchanan, Gerald Degen D. Degen, Fred Amon, Robert F. McClure (addresses not given).

Jerry Degen is a member of the sophomore soiree committee, and Charlie Franklin is chairman of junior prom committee.

An old clothes dance, or Bum's Ball, or what have you, was held the week end after Halloween; and it was the best since the Christmas formal last year. Maybe it was the orchestra or maybe the invitations, or maybe the crowd; anyhow more power to the entertainment committee. Their invitations were a work of genius, printed in every conceivable form of type—they looked hoboish, not in the least collegiate.

If the Christmas formal on the 14th is as good we can be proud of our entertainment committee.

The first issue of The Deltech went over big; at least several of the alumni wrote, praising it. Now we ask you, isn't that encouraging?

But that is only the half—Al Ludlum's trip interviewing alumni concerning a new house ended with a telegram from Buffalo saying words to the effect that they would back us in every move. This made us feel pretty good—in fact, we were delighted.

Interfraternity swimming begins soon, and prospects are quite bright for the house. We have several fishes in the freshman class to aid our veteran natators.

JACK COWLES

Phi—Washington & Lee

Year of 1927-28, 8th of 19 national fraternities.

Initiates: James Baxter Ellis, Helena, Arkansas; George Henry Jenkins, Fayetteville, North Carolina.

Pledges: E. C. Tonsmeire, Biloxi, Mississippi; D. M. Price, Williamston, North Carolina; E. C. Geismer, Birmingham, Alabama; R. E. Edgar de Montluzin, Jr., New Orleans; R. T. Adams, Washington; J. W. Clopton, Helena, Arkansas; J. W. McLaurin, Helena, Arkansas; L. L. Rupert, Pittsburgh; H. G. Dollahite, Jr., Amory, Mississippi; C. B. Mayo, Jr., Greenville, North Carolina.

Phi opened the session badly crippled, lacking veterans, but greatly heartened with the new Shelter.

Rushing, under Watson as pilot, was carried through to what bids to be the most productive the chapter has experienced in some years. To date ten new men have been pledged. "Goat Culture" is at present the chief fraternal text the chapter is studying.

Tonsmeire and McLaurin earned their numerals in football. Clopton, Price, and Adams are trying out for the editorial staff of the university bi-weekly. Geismer and Mayo are out for freshman fall track. Dollahite and Adams are connected with the Troubadours, dramatic organization, the former being in the dramatic section, the latter with the business end. Both are out for cross country, and both hold executive offices in the freshman class. Clopton is in the glee club and is struggling against heavy competition for the place as banjoist on the famed Southern Collegians. Rupert, fresh from Culver, is working on his iron shots with a view to the spring golf tryouts. He will also be one of the three men out for basketball. Two pledges are working steadily in the tank. De Montluzin is on the business staff of the annual and plays intramural basketball.

As for the actives, practically all are hard at it in activities. Harrington is president of "13," honorary social, and on the executive committee. Watson is vice-president of the senior academic and is the chapter's representative on the Interfraternity Council. He will resume his gymnastics after Christmas. Berry is on the editorial staff of The Ring-Tum Phi, school paper, and with the publicity end of the Troubadours. He will test his skill with the gloves as the winter season sets in. Graves is the chapter's light toward which we point pledges as to scholarship. He has, further, been initiated into practically every honorary scholarship fraternity on the campus and exhibits a likely stride on the cinder path. He and Berry also write for The Southern Collegian, literary medium of the University. Ashworth is also on the editorial staff of The Ring-Tum Phi and plays in the band. He and Berry will be charter members in Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic, which will be installed early in the new year. Glasgow is our freshman lawyer, and Banks is the Fraternity's goat in "13."

The sophomores show marked managerial aspirations, for, besides Nichols, who is just winding up the season as a football tryout, Ellis and O. Geismer have started with basketball. Jenkins is on the freshman council and is preparing for baseball. He made his numeral last year and has played quite a bit as a non-professional during the summers. Douglas is out for swimming and spurs his classmates, by example and word, toward scholarship. Jenkins and Ellis are the chapter's goats in the two sophomore ribbon societies, representing White Friar and Pan, respectively. O. Geismer and Nichols were recently taken in the Cotillion Club.

Dr. Farrar, chapter adviser, still retains his position as president of the Interfraternity Council.

Phi recently enjoyed a visit from Tom Wilson and is busy with his recommendations.

Several alumni dropped in on Homecoming Day. The chapter is planning sending out invitations to all the older brothers in range, to the several social functions.

Chi—Kenyon

Initiates: Robert Atkinson Baltzell, Mt. Vernon; William Robert Webb, Sharon, Pennsylvania.

Pledges: Thomas J. Hall, Ft. Thomas, Kentucky; William McIlwain, Cuyahoga Falls; Thomas F. Betts, Findlay; Donald Barrick, Harold Burris, Canton; Constant Southworth, Indianapolis; Earl A. Nelson, Wilmette, Illinois; Carl R. Swanson, Mt. Vernon.

At the close of a most successful rushing season Chi Chapter had pinned the ribbons on eight freshmen. Six of the eight—Hall, Barrick, Swanson, McIlwain, Burris, and Southworth—were on the freshman squad, and all found positions on the first two teams. This is an especially good showing in a squad as good as the freshman squad is this year.

Of the active chapter, Brown and McElroy are sure to receive varsity football letters, and there are possibilities for one or two others. Douglas, who was junior manager this year, is virtually sure of getting the managership for next year.

Under the new system of intramural sports one large cup is being given instead of small cups for each sport. We are out after that cup, and have started out by winning our first soccer match. The other sports will be played off during the winter and spring.

In basketball, which opens in December, the Delts are sure to furnish a good bit of the material. In addition to having men on the varsity squad, we have several pledges sure to be on the freshman team. Irvine is junior manager.

The initiation ceremonies for our freshman pledges will be held about the middle of February.

Thanksgiving vacation is upon us with all its attendant lethargy, but after Christmas we intend to buckle down and get back the scholarship cup which adorned the parlor so continuously a year or more back. The start looks good—in the last report period Delta Tau Delta stood at the top of the list of the fraternity and non-fraternity men.

JAMES M. IRVINE, JR.

Beta Gamma—Wisconsin

Year 1927-28, 27th of 44 fraternities.

Pledges: Walter Backus, Milwaukee; William Callaway, Chicago; Homer Crowden, Chicago; Hervey Dietrich, Superior; Craig Frost, Rockford, Illinois; Harvey Hallet, Elgin, Illinois; Malcolm Harbridge, Racine; Philip Holliday, Fairmont, Indiana; Irving Johnson, Superior; Harlan Kernan, Superior; Norton Klug, Milwaukee; Niel Miller, Marinette; Victor Rice, Chicago; Joseph Scanlon, Chicago; Robert Schacht, Erie, Pennsylvania; James White, Oak Park, Illinois; Rolla Wolcott, Madison.

Affiliates: William Carney, Beta Beta; George Adgate, Upsilon.

After the mad rush was over, Beta Gamma emerged from the mêlée well content with her seventeen pledges; now we are aiming high in scholarship, so that our whole pledge list may be added to our active list at the end of this semester.

Homer Crowden made his numerals as fullback in frosh football, while Vic Rice is a dash man of no mean ability, and we're expecting Vic to be one of Wisconsin's mainstays on her track team in the next two or three years.

We have just learned that Jack Kind, who up to this year has been Beta Gamma's financial adviser and is at present head of the Department of German at the University of Tennessee, has been appointed chapter adviser of Delta Delta. From our long contact with Jack we feel assured that the boys at Delta Delta are certainly going to profit by having him with them in this official connection.

H. LOUGEE STEDMAN

Beta Delta—Georgia

2nd term 1927-28, 5th of 16 fraternities.

Since the beginning of the year we have made rapid strides, and the chapter is more progressive than it has been in a good many years. We are all pulling together for the good of Beta Delta and Delta Tau Delta, hoping that we can make this a banner year.

Henry Glenn has been initiated into Gridiron, national honorary, and Cormany is our latest addition to the Blackfriar Dramatic Club.

The pledges are doing unusually well in activities as well as scholarship, and all seem sure of passing up their required number of hours for initiation. Pledge King was selected for membership in the Thalian Dramatic Club, and is taking the leading part in the first play. Pledges Morcock and Hedden were two of the four freshmen selected by the Phi Kappa Literary Society to represent it in an impromptu debate. Morcock is also president of the freshmen Y. M. C. A. and is a candidate for the freshmen lacrosse team. Pledge Hoynes has won a regular place in the band and is out for lacrosse. Pledges Tate and King are our charter members of the Freshman Club, interfraternity social club for freshmen. All our pledges out for football are showing up well. Gaston is one of the best halfbacks on the team, and Hedden is doing well in the line. Primm and Horton are also on the team, and their work has been very good.

Homecoming was celebrated October 27th by the return of many alumni to the house. We were also glad to have with us at this time our new field secretary, T. F. Wilson. We feel that we were much benefited by his stay with us.

The sixth annual all-state Delt banquet will take place in Atlanta on December 7th, the day before the Tech-Georgia football game, and Beta Delta will be well represented both by alumni and actives.

JOEL CLOUD, JR.

Beta Epsilon—Emory

No report since 1926-27. Classes probably held, however.

Pledges: Edward Hill, Sylvania; Lamar Greene, West Point; Earl Stokes, Batesville, Arkansas; Ben Sheppard, Savannah, William Jimmerson, Ozark, Alabama; Frank Houser, Scott; Hamilton Havis, Vicksburg, Mississippi; Edward Jones, Charles Forrest, Willie Spann, Clarence Sudderth, Thomas Flake, Max Dorsett, Lyman Helveston, Atlanta.

The pledges this year have started into activities with a rush. Practically all are out for some one of the three publications, and several are seeking various managerships. Ed Hill is working especially hard for Glee Club manager, which is one of the most responsible positions on the campus. Earl Stokes, an all-state football man from Arkansas, distinguished himself in that sport here this fall.

In the active chapter every member is working along some line. Edgar Terry was recently appointed assistant manager of the Glee Club. He is also on the annual staff, secretary of the Student Lecture Association, and a member of the Irumas social club. T. A. Peterson made his class football team. J. D. McLamb took the leading role in this year's initial production of the Dramatic Club and is one of the leaders of that organization. L. O. Benton is on the annual staff, an officer in the R. O. T. C. battalion, and the guiding hand in our House Corporation. Floyd Tabor was recently initiated into Alpha Kappa Psi, commercial.

On December 7th comes the Georgia All-State Delt banquet preceding the annual Georgia Tech-University of Georgia football game. This banquet is an annual affair and never fails to live up to its reputation. Good Delts make it a point never to miss this big party.

A word about the men who left us last year might be in order. W. L. Curtis received an M.D. and is now practising in Sparks. Joe Little also received an M.D. and is now doing interne work in Mobile. A. J. Dornbusch received a B.B.A. and a Law degree, and is now practising law in Vicksburg. Joe Frierson received an M.S. and is now teaching in Virginia. Ellis Jones received a B.B.A. and is now making an extended tour of the West. Carl Sessions received his B.S. last June and is continuing his work in medical school.

T. F. Wilson, the new Southern Division field secretary, recently paid us a short visit and offered many helpful suggestions.

THEODORE B. FAXON

Beta Zeta—Butler

Year 1927-28, 2nd of 7 fraternities.

Beta Zeta has ended a very successful year and is looking forward to an even more successful one, being on our new campus and with the prospect of being installed in our new house before our Golden Karnea convenes in August. All men who are planning on attending are cordially invited to come and see our new house in Fairview and to help us enjoy it.

Our interfraternity football team had a fairly successful season, reaching the semi-finals. Four of the players were named on the all-fraternity teams; two were on the first team, and two on the second.

Beta Zeta had eleven men on the varsity football team, five substitutes and six regulars.

Morris Swain has been elected president of the sophomore class and is leading the class on a hunt for freshmen.

Three of Beta Zeta's number have been chosen for the all-state teams, Robert Schopf, Pledge James Puett, and Pledge Francis Royse.

DONALD YOEUL

Beta Eta—Minnesota

Year 1927-28, 16th of 31 national fraternities.

Pledges: Alfred Strand, Two Harbors; Gordon Bestic, Minneapolis; Everett Eckland, Minneapolis.

Twenty-eight members of Beta Eta returned to school this fall ready to pitch in and make 1928-29 a banner year in Delta history at Minnesota. The chapter holds some very important positions on the campus.

While most other Delt chapters have already completed their rushing, Beta Eta is but on the verge of hers. Rushing at Minnesota begins the first day of the second quarter and is concluded on the eighth day. Through this system we are able to look over our prospective rushees during the first quarter, and, what is equally as important, we get an opportunity to look over their grades. There is some good Delt material this year, and we expect to reap a harvest.

Beta Eta has shown an appreciable gain in scholarship ranking during the past year, rising from twenty-fifth of thirty-one national fraternities to sixteenth. This improvement should prove a stimulus to further advancement.

Minnesota again had one of the most powerful football teams in the country. Despite this fact, the loss of George McKinnon, center, and Len Walsh, end, was keenly felt. McKinnon, who is completing his Law course, assisted Dr. Spears by coaching the centers. Walsh is coaching in Duluth. Ray Champion was the only Delt on the Gopher squad.

Coach Neils Thorpe of the swimming team is expecting great things of Captain Neil Crocker, who is considered as one of the fastest dash men in the conference.

Two Deltas are members of The Minnesota Law Review board. Frank Weck is overseeing much of the work as associate editor, and McKinnon has been proving a valuable asset. Gordon French is president of Beta Gamma Sigma, honorary business, and is also a member of the Student Advisory Council. Maynard Redding is president of the Commerce Club and also heads Delta Sigma Pi, business, in the same capacity. Don McLaughlin has been demonstrating his journalistic abilities on The Minnesota Daily as a special sports writer. Gordon French is concerned in publishing the commerce magazine.

Preceding the Minnesota band this fall, Wallie Benton led the processions as drum major. Three other Deltas are band members.

Frank Bryant reported that Doctor Wieland's banquet was as successful as it has been famed to be.

Two Delt parties were given before Christmas. They were informal, and a number of the alumni were present at each. Of course the best girls on the campus were there.

EDGAR R. CHAMPION

Beta Theta—Sewanee

No report since 1926-27. Like Beta Epsilon.

The final list of the members of the Sewanee Glee Club has been posted, and Beta Theta finds one-fourth of the membership Deltas. This includes Allen, Buzard, Melvin Craig, who is also director of the orchestra, and Tompson, a member of the orchestra, Pledges Gowan and Wilson, and Will Holms as the accompanist for the club.

Clint Brown has been elected to Blue Key.

Melvin Craig has recently been taken into the Scholarship Society, the preliminary step to Phi Beta Kappa.

In the Senior German Club elections Bryant was made vice-president. Tompson is a cheer leader. Burroughs is chairman of the Grievance Committee, being selected by the Order of Gownsmen.

Beta Theta is happy to report a visit from T. F. Wilson, the new field secretary of the Southern Division. He made many good suggestions concerning the welfare of the chapter.

Beta Theta's chapter letter, The Sewanee Delt, is in the making, with Freyer as editor. Pledges Walker and Montague are on the Mountain Goat staff.

We are represented on the basketball court by Bryant, Tompson, and Smith. Pledge Turner is trying for the freshmen squad.

WILLIAM B. CRAIG

Beta Kappa—Colorado

Year 1927-28, chapter average 73.3

Pledge: Louis Quam, Boulder.

Dick Pemberton and Larry Keltz, junior Engineers, have pledged Eta Kappa Nu. Pemberton has been initiated Sigma Tau. Ford, Dutcher, Everett, and Fellows are members of Pi Epsilon Pi, pep organization. Kirkmeyer is chief of the Sophomore Cops. Everett and Bartlett are pledges to Delta Sigma Pi. Walrod is president of Phi Delta Phi.

Bartlett and Swift represent the chapter on the Interfraternity Council. Bartlett is vice-president.

Carroll Gilbert has passed the State Pharmaceutical Board.

George Brown has just been appointed associate editor of the year book, and is first in line for the editorship next year. Carroll Gilbert is advertising manager of the humorous publication. William Sullivan is on the staff of the school paper.

Clancy Keith has reached the finals in the intramural golf tournament. Hud Rathburn is vice-president of Eta Kappa Nu and Tau Beta Pi. Perry Bartlett was elected president of the junior class. Mike Meyers is vice-president of this year's freshman class.

Art Ficht and Orville Suhre have been playing as regular men on the freshman squad. Paul Trutter and Suhre took active parts in the play sponsored by the Women's Club.

The annual pledge dance was held November 5th. Decorations were carried out in black and orange.

Vernon Hinkle, who is now with General Motors, was a visitor at the house November 24th. Heckert has just returned from a musical tour of the Orient. He has some new and interesting theories on the Orient.

K. O. STOWELL

Beta Mu—Tufts

1st semester 1928-29, 2nd of 8 national fraternities.

Pledges: Romaine B. Cole, Newton, Massachusetts; George P. Betts, Portland, Maine; Amos J. Aijala, Fitchburg; Clifford M. Miller, Kingston, New York; Freeman W. Howes, Chatham; Earle F. White, Watertown; Wesley F. Westall, Springfield; Victor E. Knapman, Lynn; James L. Hastings, Delmar, Delaware; Donald E. Martin, Ayer; Stanley F. M. MacLaren, Niagara Falls, Ontario.

With a deferred system of rushing just completed, Beta Mu has a group of pledges who have already made their presence felt in college activities. Five of these men played regularly on Coach Brother Le Cain's freshman football team. Betts, Knapman, and Miller are shaping up well on the freshman basketball team.

Beta Mu now stands second in the scholarship rating among the national fraternities, having jumped up two places over last year's standing.

The largest group of Delt alumni ever to return for an alumni banquet were present at the annual smoker and banquet held after the football game on Homecoming day. It was especially gratifying to welcome back such a large number of older Delts.

Le Cain and Godfrey accompanied the Tufts football team in its trip to battle Butler at Indianapolis. Godfrey, a sophomore, makes his letter this year, while Le Cain shapes up as next year's quarterback.

Fran Ingalls, one of our honor men about the campus, recently won the Moses True Brown prize in oratory.

J. R. HUBBARD

Beta Nu—Massachusetts Institute of Technology

2nd term 1927-28, 21st of 27 fraternities.

Pledge: Ralph E. Wayne, Quincy.

We are starting off well this year in activities. Brig Allen and Bob Nelson are the forwards on the varsity basketball team; Brig is also president of the senior class and of the Walker Club, junior-senior honorary. Bob Poisson is one of the six new men elected to the Walker Club; he has made the swimming team, and swims on the relay and in the dashes. Herb Allbright made his letter on the cross country team. He is also in the Glee Club.

On Field Day Ralph Wayne and Bob Semple were on the freshman relay team. Ralph was the captain. Henry Worcester was their star halfback, and Hugo Kleinhans played end for the sophomores. Jack Osterman is in the Technology Christian Association. Worcester, Osterman, and Wayne are all out for freshman track.

In the annual Voodoo—T. E. N. football game Bryant Kenny, circulation manager for Voodoo, played left halfback. Needless to say, Voodoo won. Bryant and Bob Semple play the saxophones for the Techonians. Paul Davis is assistant sports editor for The Tech. Randolph Braxton is on the freshman debating team.

Bob Hubble is out for the Walker Memorial committee, of which Eric Bianci is the head, and Rod Brown is working for publicity manager of the M.I.T.A.A. Charlie Denny is secretary of the M.I.T.A.A., also captain and manager of the squash team. Allen Prescott and Jack Hallahan have started training for the winter one-mile relay team.

We held a closed dance a few weeks ago. There were just enough of us to make it a good party. We are planning a tea for Sunday, December 8th.

There is a meeting of the Beta Nu alumni at the chapter house December 14th. This is the first one we've had, and we hope to see a good many of the older members.

JOHN T. HALLAHAN

Beta Xi—Tulane

Year 1927-28, 6th of 19 fraternities.

Pledges: Gaines Abernathy, Winston Bradley, Byard Edwards, J. B. Hanover, Jack Cuyler Harding, Harry Glover, Riyce Johnson, John Legier, Joe Lienhard, Arthur Millet, Caffery Pond (addresses not given).

We are enjoying a slight lull in activities. Everyone is using this let up to great advantage, though, and is catching up with work.

Tom Wilson, the new field secretary for the Southern Division, and an old Beta Xi man, paid us a visit some weeks back. He gave us some good advice as to the treatment of pledges and some general hints as to running the chapter. All have come in handy.

We shall be well represented in sports for the coming months, as we have several letter men back and a promising bunch of new men. Pledge Lienhard, who has won several medals in fencing and swimming, will represent us in those lines. Then we have several basketball and track men.

Interfraternity basketball starts soon, and we hope to make our usual good showing.

Our Mothers' Club is functioning wonderfully. They had a meeting a short time ago at which they decided to help us refurnish several parts of the house. They have already presented us with several things that were needed, and they are, in general, making things more comfortable for the men in the house.

HUGH BRISTER

Beta Omicron—Cornell

No scholarship report available.

Affiliate: Art Lewis, Gamma Nu.

With the arrival of the Thanksgiving vacation the first half of our school year has been successfully brought to a close.

On November 12th a freshman smoker was held at the house for the class of 1932. Entertainment on the piano by Parlette and Smith, a talk by Captain Roamer, and the showing of winter scenes at Cornell, by Coddington, all helped to give every one a good time.

Just before Halloween a small but successful dinner party was staged. On the week-end of November 17th, however, a wonderful house party was held. Those alumni who returned for the Dartmouth game were pleasantly surprised, and needless to say they all had a fine time.

The chapter still maintains its diversified interest in campus activities. Wakeman has just finished his second season as tackle on our football team. Parlette played on the squad.

Basketball practice is well under way, and Hall is out to retain his position at forward, which he earned last year.

Crew has started work on the machines. Todd, Dorn, Vernez, and Eyerman are spending their time there.

Track finds Vallee, Stewart, and McJunkin getting daily workouts.

As for managers, we have our share: Littlewood is leader of the Cornell Band; Crum is manager of hockey; Smith is manager and treasurer of the Rifle team; Rodman is assistant manager of the freshman crew; Hale is assistant manager of tennis. The Glee Club lists Moreton, Shear, and Garnsey; in the R. O. T. C. we have Dodge, major, Crum, captain, and Kerr, 1st lieutenant; in Sphinx Head, Crum, Hall, Littlewood, and Todd; in Aleph Samach, Wakeman; in Red Key, Dorn and Hale.

Wakeman is a member of the Student Council, and Crum is vice-president of the Interfraternity Council.

The freshmen, promising as they are, are being started off in their school work, as their experience with that committee will show.

Alumni Note

'23—Bill Hamilton has been married to Miss Elinora Wrightmeyer.

ART RIDDIFORD

Beta Rho—Stanford

Year 1927-28, 12th of 24 national fraternities; chapter average 1.392; university average 1.534.

Initiates: Frank Adams, Piedmont; William Werder, Redwood City; James Howell, El Segundo; Franz Sachse, Pasadena; John Lyons, Los Angeles; James Henry Montclair, New Jersey; D. Power Booth, Jr., Ceres; Charles Gorham, Morris, Illinois.

On October 19th the annual California-Stanford Delt alumni banquet was held in the club rooms of the San Francisco Commercial Club. The Mint Howell Trophy was shared in its award this year by Bob King of Beta Rho and Carol Dressler of Beta Omega. Bob is Beta Rho's rubber-limbed sky-leaper. He proved himself the champion of the world when he won the high jump in the Olympic Games at Amsterdam last summer.

Our California neighbors, Beta Omega, played host to us in a big feed and get-together on November 18th. A belching good time was had by all. The annual Big Game was held at California this fall. When the smoke of the battle had cleared away, one of the hardest fought and most exciting games of football played by the two institutions resulted in a 13-13 tie. Lawrence "Spud" Lewis, Sherm Crary, backfield men, and Cal Snyder on the line are Beta Rho's contributions to the Big Red machine.

In campus activities Beta Rho is well represented. Lawrence "Buck" Beemer is the present editor of The Stanford Quad, our yearbook. Frank Adams is taking no one's dust in his work on the managerial staff. Merle Emery has been working faithfully on The Stanford Daily, and is at present a night editor. Merle, as well as Buck, claims the honor of a membership in Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalistic.

When basketball season rolls around, Sherm Crary and Spud Lewis will be on the squad. Spud has already earned one letter in the casaba sport, and Sherm should make his letter this season.

Track season, although it does not begin until next quarter, will be one of great interest to Beta Rho. Headed by Captain Ross Nichols, Pacific Coast and IC4A high hurdle champion, as well as a member of the U. S. Olympic team, Beta Rho will make a strong bid for track honors. Jack Dales and Dick French are Block "S" men from last season, and there are three freshmen numeral men among our recently initiated members. These are Bill Werder, broad jumper, Jimmie Howell, 440 and relay, and Jack Lyons, distance man. Jack is a transfer from California, having starred in the middle distances while there. It is rumored about that Hunter Lindsay, a pledge whom we hope to initiate next quarter, possesses "spring" in his pedal extremities and may turn out to be a second Bob King.

Jimmie Henry and Franz Sachse, initiates, and Charles "Ears" Eddie were members of the Stanford Reserve football team this fall and did their share in handing the California reserves a beating.

Pod Booth and Chuck Gorham are our polo players, and are working hard to earn their Circle "S" awards, which are given out in the spring.

In intramural football this quarter we are tied for the league leadership, having tied one game and won the rest. Craig Vincent is our manager.

There are two junior managers of major sports in the house, Bob Paine in basketball and Dave Kline in track. Hunter Lindsay is holding down a sophomore manager's position in football.

Our honorable house manager, Otis "Redwing" Williams, is our sole representative on the soccer field.

Pledge Howard Gabbert is a banjo and piano artist of no mean ability. "Gab" has made a name for himself on the campus, having taken part in many musical programs. The way this boy tickles the ivories and picks the little steel strings is remarkable. He has the distinction of having played his way around the world.

We are happy to have with us this fall three Delt from other chapters: Harry Cole of Beta Upsilon, Edgar Stuart of Gamma Delta, and Joseph Macafferty of Gamma Mu.

Much credit is due Merle Emery, who, assisted by Bob Paine, Bill Werder, and Craig Vincent, has put out our new Latchstring.

Year 1927-28, 6th of 38 fraternities.

Beta Tau is now in the full swing of events on the campus at Nebraska. If you don't believe it, here are the facts:

Athletics: Captain Howell is making a name not only for himself, but also for Beta Tau as one of the greatest line-driving backs Nebraska has ever produced. Prucka of Omaha is another boy whom we expect to see wearing a football "N" before long. Pledges Hubka, Hanson, Packer, and Hokuf are Beta Tau's future gridiron heroes.

Interfraternity sports have started, and intramural sports manager Otto Baumann is kept busy arranging schedules. Baumann is, incidentally, junior football manager. At present water-polo, bowling, and basketball are holding the limelight. Beta Tau is represented in these sports by C. Johnson, Laughlin B. Johnson, Whitaker, Snell, Powell, Joynt, Cook, Adair, and Cowdery.

We expect to see Olson holding down a regular berth on the Nebraska basketball team this season.

Sturtevant is working hard to put across the Kosmet Klub. He is its business manager.

Beta Tau is preparing to entertain the Western chapters at the Western Division Conference in Lincoln March 1st and 2nd.

Alumni Notes

Arthur J. Weaver has been elected to succeed Adam McMullen as Governor of Nebraska. Both are charter members of Beta Tau.

'28—Harold Nichols was married to Miss Joyce Adair on October 22nd.

'28—Phil Sidles was married to Miss Jennette Olson November 8th. The brides are Delt sisters.

AUGUST E. HELDT

Beta Upsilon—Illinois

Year 1927-28, 54th of 68 national fraternities; chapter average 3.028.

Pledges: William B. Billmire, Oak Park; A. Courtney Moorshead, Jersey City.

With the fall semester well under way Beta Upsilon is progressing steadily towards a new goal, which should offer improved scholarship and several campus honors.

Sherman has been playing regular end on the reserve football team. He also holds a lieutenant's commission in the R. O. T. C. Wood has been leading the band as drum major. Dean is extremely busy with work connected with the junior baseball managership. He was recently pledged to Band of X, honorary Commerce. Kealey gives his spare time to activities connected with a football managership.

The chapter, as a whole, has been actively engaged in intramural competition.

"Pete" Hesmer, Conference wrestling champion, leaves us the first of the year to become head wrestling coach at the Virginia Military Institute.

Pledges Jamison, Stanford, Chester, and Witherell are still working for positions on the staffs of the several campus publications. Pledges Nickolson and Kepler are out for track, and Pledges Johnson and Harper are reporting regularly for freshman basketball. Pledge Moorshead is a member of the freshman swimming squad.

HENRY C. LUCAS

Beta Phi—Ohio State

No report since 1926-27.

Pledges: Richard Austin, Columbus; Eldon Brown, Granville; Ernest Brownstead, Ironton; Noel Duval, Duval; Searl Dunn, Portsmouth; Wellington Findlay, Columbus; John Hart, Chesterhill; Russell Holcomb, Orwell; Waldo Simpson, Bellevue; Archie Stevenson, Uhrichville; Don Schipper, Hamilton; John Sweeny, Akron; Nelson Raber, Toledo; Charles Parker, Ashtabula; Laurence Walters, Columbus; Charles Martin, Hamilton; Dwight Young, Findlay; Carl Sammet, Columbus; William Gower, Portsmouth; Earl Mack, Toledo; Max Workman, Huntington, West Virginia.

Affiliates: Ted Morlang, Beta; Laurence Baver, Gamma Upsilon; George Hyman, Zeta; Harold Hughes, Mu.

Beta Phi is confident that her twenty-one new pledges are the best that could be found among the incoming freshman class. Each pledge has been assigned an activity and is out to make the most of it. It has been several years since this chapter has had so many men seeking campus offices.

Red Caldwell was elected president of the Polo Club, an athletic activity which has come to the fore in the last two years on this campus. Mike Cline, our treasurer, is confident of retaining his position of guard on the varsity basketball squad; spring will find Mike at third base on the diamond, where he was a regular on last year's team. Scotty Roether won a position for himself on the soccer team his first year out. Marty Baldwin chose Scarlet Mask, Strollers, and the University Symphony for his activities. Chuck Heiser was selected to take one of the leads in the Scarlet Mask production. Mack and Stevenson made the business end of Scarlet Mask, and Williams, Findlay, Heenan, and Brown made the Mask band (incidentally Scarlet Mask is one of the most coveted activities on the campus). Em Walters qualified for Alpha Kappa Psi, commerce. Hughes, Krohn, and three pledges made the glee club. Kimball is varsity junior manager of baseball. Post was made business manager of The Ohio Commerce, commercial monthly magazine. Schipper was chosen production manager of the Strollers Dramatic Society. Pledges Young, Raber, Duval, and Brownstead were on the freshman football team. Other pledges are out for the various managerial and publication activities. Martin was made treasurer of the Interfraternity Pledge Council.

MARTIN BALDWIN

Beta Psi—Wabash

Year 1927-28, 10th of 10 national fraternities.

Following the close of the rushing season, Beta Psi has given a great deal of attention to scholarship and campus activities. The first grade report showed that the chapter had better than a "C" average.

Beta Psi holds numerous positions of honor on the Wabash campus. Winburn R. Pierse is president of the Panhellenic Council. Robert Daly is president of the senior class. Ben Eldridge is president of the sophomore class. Jud Pease, Bill Laser, Bill Caille, and Russell Hankins all won letters in football. Donald Stokes and George Meyers will receive numerals for their ability on the freshmen team. "Tim" Rovenstine answered Coach "Pete" Vaughan's first call for basketball men.

A very successful pledge dance was held at the house on October 6th, and several alumni returned.

Earle Waltz and Richard Schreiber have been appointed as Karnea delegates from this chapter. Waltz was appointed on the Underwriting Committee, and Schreiber is on the Entertainment Committee. The entire chapter is taking a very active interest in the preparations for the Golden Karnea.

Pledges Aalfs and Otto attended Dr. Wieland's banquet in Chicago on November 17th.

RICHARD SCHREIBER

Year 1927-28, 17th of 33 national fraternities.

Pledges: Charles Schmidt, Jack Wieland, Larry Shinn, Edgar Yates, Elmer Grogan, Jack Deneen, Fred Williams, Chicago; Lee Hubbert, San Antonio, Texas; William Grimes, Normal; Newton Todhunter, Newcastle, Australia; William Coleman, Houston, Texas; Peter McEvoy, Seattle, Washington.

The fall quarter has found Gamma Alpha in the best of spirits. From the mid-term exams it seems that the chapter will improve its scholastic standing; and although the Chicago football season gave no great cause for celebration, the pledge dance and the various football teas were all pronounced successful.

In campus activities we find President Fred Hack a member of the Junior Class Council, and "Jim" Vaughn president of the Freshmen Law class. Pledges Schmidt and Wieland were awarded numerals in freshmen football, and Schmidt was elected captain of the freshman team. Sullivan and Burns have pledged Phi Delta Phi. Kerr has charge of stage lighting in the Mirror, a campus dramatic organization. Five of the pledges have earned the right to be initiated into the honorary Green Cap Club.

The chapter has had a fairly successful season in intramural sports. Hack and Vaughn have yet the final match to play in the golf tournament. The chapter's touchball team is in the semi-finals.

A new victrola and radio purchased by the actives and pledges has proved helpful in rushing. Since the close of the freshman rushing period the chapter has pledged two or three upperclassmen. Other men are being rushed and considered with hopes that the pledge class will be further augmented. The chapter is very grateful for the help that they have received and are receiving from the alumni for this rushing.

Alumni Notes

Cornelius Osgood is living among the Hareskin Indians in Northern Canada. He is working for his doctor's thesis in Anthropology.

"Bully" Smith has recently become assistant manager of the Studebaker Sales in Detroit.

Paul Hoffman has recently returned from Europe, where he visited the London and Paris automobile shows.

Creighton McGaffey is studying Medicine at the University of Edinburgh.

Gene Rouse is connected with Harper's Bazaar in Detroit.
HARVEY GREENLEAF

1st semester 1927-28, 15th of 26 fraternities.

Initiates: E. Capen Farmer, Rye, New York; John O. Garrison, Dover, New Jersey; Clifford G. Williams, Jr., Oswego, New York; Lawrence Allen, Jr., Andover, Massachusetts; Philip J. Clisby, Wellington, Ohio; William B. Duddy III, Elizabeth, New Jersey; William S. Hayes, Detroit; Alfred E. Jones, Jr., Uniontown, Pennsylvania; Joseph J. Mullan, Jr., Roselle, New Jersey; Francis W. Kent, Newton, Massachusetts; Richard S. Porter, New Britain, Connecticut; Edwin F. Studwell, Port Chester, New York; Robert A. Wallace, Montclair, New Jersey; William J. Walsh, Brooklyn; Buell B. Whitehill, Jr., Uniontown, Pennsylvania; Robert E. Zimmerman, Cleveland.

Gamma Gamma's annual initiation banquet was held on November 24th at the Villa Clara Inn. Dick Brown and Tom Hayes arranged for it and did a good job. "Dinty" Moore managed to get away from Troy for a couple of days to attend, and we were more than glad that he was able to make it, for he gave us an interesting talk on the Fraternity in general. It was a fitting welcome for our sixteen new members, and Gamma Gamma is now ready for another year.

Charlie Gaynor has written the carnival show for this year, and rumor has it that it is even better than last year's success, which was partly his work. Charlie is also editor of The Tower, and was recently elected to Casque & Guantlet, honorary senior society.

Carnival is set for February 7th, 8th, and 9th. Bud Purdy and Tom Hayes have been preparing the way; so we are counting on a successful party. This year we are going in with Sigma Chi, and this will add a new feature.

The pool table has been re-covered, and our cue artists are again getting into form. A plan to revive interest in the library has been started, and it is hoped that the shelves will not be empty much longer. Since the gift of the new radio a few very skillful operators have developed in our midst.

"Wings" Leigh is again out for swimming, and will probably hold down his last year's position of regular diver. Frank Rath and Ed Schuster are preparing to go out for the winter sports team. Carl Buhler has been working out with the basketball squad for the last few weeks.

The Brown game attracted quite a few alumni to Hanover. Among them were Bunny Holden, Heinie and Marc Wright, John Sullivan, Spike MacIntyre, Hank Walker, Sunny Tilton, Harry Fisher, Dick Sagendorph, and Doc Simonds.

Alumni Notes

'27—Tom Anglem is attending Harvard Medical School.
'27—Carl Schuster is resuming his study at Columbia Law School.

'27—Al Bliss spent a few days with us, and is working for an insurance company in Montpelier.

'28—Tom Middleton is working for the Corn Products Company in New Jersey.

J. WATSON SPANGLER

Gamma Delta—West Virginia

Year 1927-28, chapter average 78.257.

The greatest pleasure of the day is in announcing that Robert "Bob" Hawkins, who has for a few months been a patient at Hopemont, is showing great improvement. Bob is one of those few fellows one never ceases to hear of. An old football man and a real Mountaineer, he has made a host of friends both in Morgantown and through the state who will be very glad to hear of his improvement.

The first lap of intramural sports has been run, and Gamma Delta holds fifth place. As we shall be able to put out a crack basketball team, we hope to announce a rise in position shortly. Stanley Simpson has recently been initiated into Fi Bater Capper, honorary. Wylie Garrett and Leland Brown are both plugging hard at the varsity football squad, but the Thanksgiving game will end Garrett's football.

Already old and familiar faces are making their appearances for the final game. The usual custom of holding open house will be observed, and the cooks have been busy several days with preparations to fill any empty wanderers who may grace the old Shelter with their presence.

The old dream of a new home is rapidly materializing. Tentative plans are on display, and construction is to start about May 1st. For many years we have all looked forward to this, and it will certainly be a happy day when we pack the old trunks to move into a new Shelter.

Year 1927-28, 5th of 10 nationals; chapter average, 74.5.

Pledges: Robert Bailey, Mount Holly, New Jersey; Edmund Brown, Forest Hills, New York; Robert Brown, Ames, Iowa; Bertram Couard, White Plains, New York; Richard Bates, Cranford, New Jersey; William Haswell, New Britain; Frederic Hyde, Waterford; Robert Krantz, Paterson, New Jersey; Francis Moser, III, Rutherford, New Jersey; William Riederer, Wilmington, Delaware; Phillip Gray, Mystic.

The fall athletic season ended with Gamma Zeta the gainer by two letter men, in football and soccer. Chick Thomas starred at halfback all through the season and was recognized as a mighty good running back. The showing he made was all the more praiseworthy since this was his first year of college football at Wesleyan, although he is a senior. Ed Barthen, starting with no experience, quickly got a berth as goalie on the soccer team and was instrumental in stopping many a hard boot at the right moment. The freshmen were also active, Fred Hyde making his numerals in cross country, while Freshmen Couard and Krantz were earning theirs in soccer. With the winter season at hand, the house has turned to swimming. Barthen, Thomas, and Davis are out for positions on the varsity squad and at the present time are doing well. The interfraternity basketball season has just opened, and with some new material among the freshmen, prospects are good.

Scholarship is still on the rise after our big jump during the past year. At mid-terms the freshmen delegation turned in the highest average seen in the house in quite a while, and the rest of the chapter is holding up well. A system of senior advisers for each first-year man in the house has been adopted, and the freshmen are encouraged to make use of this help to the fullest extent. A general meeting is also held every so often to discuss scholarship problems.

Fall dances were held this year on October 20th, and what with fine weather and a victory over Rochester in football the week-end was an outstanding success. A goodly number of the younger alumni helped to keep the Gamma Zeta dance tradition up to standard. The annual fall alumni banquet was held on the following week-end, and an exceptionally large group gathered around the festal board. The whole spirit was one of optimism among the alumni, and from all we can gather the initiation banquet to be held on February 22nd will be attended by one of the largest crowds in Gamma Zeta history.

During the autumn the Shelter has taken on a new garb of almost dazzling white, through the efforts of the alumni. The change for the better can hardly be estimated except by one who has seen the more or less dingy white of the house for the past three years. During the winter several alterations are to be made inside the house to bring it more up to date for fraternity purposes.

A new system for developing strong alumni bonds with the chapter has been set in motion this year in the form of an Alumni Cultivation committee. Lomaglion is at the head of this group, aided by Davis and Drummond and Pledge Reiderer. It is their plan to keep the alumni constantly in touch with the chapter by letter and personal meetings, with the aim of furthering rushing plans and of keeping spirit in general as high as possible.

Alumni Notes

'28—Dick Jones has gone to Greece to teach for three years at Athens University.

'28—Jerry Bentley has accepted a position as Assistant in Chemistry at New York University. He is also taking graduate work there.

'18—Oliver Whitney has just assumed a responsible position as vice-president of the V.S. Hammond Piston Ring Company in Irvington, New Jersey.

'11—Leon Maynard returned this fall from a period of study in Europe at the University of Strassburg, Cambridge, and the University of Lyons.

'27—Bob Irwin is now connected with the investment firm of Kidder, Peabody Company in Boston.

EDWARD G. REEVE

Gamma Eta—George Washington

No scholarship report available.

Pledges: William Flemming, Finlay, Ohio; Edward M. Hall, Washington; Thomas Hardy Seay, Washington; Robert Van Ness, Little Falls, New Jersey.

With the fraternity program well under way we are expecting great things this year at Gamma Eta. The pledges are showing real stuff and are breaking into school life as they should.

We might mention that Jack Norris, Charlie Cole, and Dan Eberley have been made members of Gate & Key, an honorary. Pledges Vivian and VanNess are a great help on The Wigg.

Eberley and Christopher finished a good year on the football squad and will be with us again next year. Hall and Swartout after a season on the freshman squad ought to be good material for the varsity next season. Cole is again captain of the golf team.

We have had a larger number of dances at the "Little Green House on K Street" this fall than usual, and have found it very desirable.

Jess McCoy

Gamma Theta—Baker

Initiate: Frank Leslie Lane, Baldwin City.

Pledges: George Beckwith, Los Angeles, California; John Laughlin, Long Beach, California; Virgil Vaughn, Baldwin City; James Paxton Mize, Williamsburg; Harley Vigour Has-kin, Olathe; Dennis Pearce, Olathe; Samuel Hedrick, Gardner; Lester Belas, Baldwin City; Vincent Richley, Herrington; Horace O. Mills, Kansas City, Missouri.

Our pledges of this year have already proven themselves versatile. The main emphasis of the chapter this year will be placed on raising the scholarship average back to its former position of first on the campus. The first grade reports show that our new men are ranking high in this respect.

Gamma Theta is upholding her share of the campus activities. John Schwartz, assistant Chemistry instructor, is also serving this year as president of the German Club and chairman of the Senior Class Committee.

Two men are playing varsity football, William Fisher and Paxton Mize. Baker has an undefeated season thus far and is headed for the championship of the Conference.

Clair Alderson, assistant instructor in Bacteriology, has been elected to the staff of The Wildcat, the annual. He is also a leader in musical activities.

Verle Wagner, last year's letter man in track, has been appointed business manager of the Baker a capella choir and is managing the male quartet.

Our chapter has an unusually large representation in the band, orchestra, glee club, and other musical activities. Four men have been playing football, and our prospects for spring track look bright with Beckwith, Laughlin, and Beals among the new men who have good chances to make letters.

The annual Pledge Frolic was held last month, the pledges putting on a good line of entertainment. Gamma Theta held a turkey dinner on the evening of Thanksgiving, and plans are being made for a New Year's party.

Alumni Notes

'19—Dewey Short was elected to the U. S. House of Representatives from the 14th Congressional district of Missouri. He is but thirty years of age.

'91—Henry J. Allen, ex-Governor of Kansas, is now chairman of the Republican National Committee.

'28—John Spencer is with the J. C. Penny Company, of Salina.

'28—John Bowden is taking charge of the Bacteriology Department at the University of Colorado.

'28—J. Frank Barnett is employed by the Benson Lumber Company, Pleasant Hill, Missouri.

'28—John McKenzie is with the Columbia National Bank of Kansas City, Missouri.

'28—Joe Rogers is engaged in the clothing business in Herrington, Kansas.

(Unsigned)

Gamma Iota—Texas

Pledges: Walter Pope; Walter Christie; Adolph Jocksuch; Carl Jocksuch; Elisha S. Hudson; T. E. Taylor; Edward Cowan; Jack McCombs; James B. Stubbs; Judge Gambill; George Hogan; Luther Guillian; Oscar Rucker (addresses not given).

On the conclusion of a successful rush week, attended by many of her alumni, Gamma Iota with her crew of forty men set sail on the stormy sea of learning. Through some unforeseen circumstances, this chapter fell low scholastically last spring, but every effort is being made to remedy the situation; consequently, a study hall and honor study system have been inaugurated for both actives and pledges.

With the Southwestern Conference championship but one game away, we are proud to say that "Dusty" Rhoades and "Pinky" Higgins, brother of the famous "Ox," have been two of the most outstanding players on the team.

Thanksgiving day will be a big one in Austin at the Delt house, for we expect all our alumni to accept our invitations to the first Homecoming we have had in two years. This will give us all a chance to renew old friendships and make new ones.

The entire chapter, including the pledges, has renewed its interest in activities and intramural sports, with Stuart Godwin of Galveston starting things moving by winning the golf championship. Stuart Nash of Kaufman, our brilliant young journalist and editorial writer for The Daily Texan, is very much in demand as a theme corrector, and Archie Wood from Athens is doing his best to coach the boys into a winning basketball team.

We are happy to have with us this year Jimmie Miller from Bloomington, Indiana, and John Herring from Boulder, Colorado. Judd Stiff of Washington & Lee is back in town, but not in school, while Aldridge George of Vanderbilt is continuing his preparation to become a barrister.

The Texas Delts wish all other Delts a very merry Christmas and a happy and successful New Year. We send greetings especially to Charlie Jackson in Washington, D. C., and wish he were back with us.

WILLIAM ABBOTT

Gamma Kappa—Missouri

Year 1927-28, 17th of 25 fraternities; average 201.53.

The chapter is just getting organized after about a two weeks interruption caused by Homecoming and Thanksgiving occurring on two successive week-ends. This year it was a Kansas Homecoming, and the victory over our traditional rivals certainly helped to make the annual return of the old grads one that will long be remembered by those who were down in Columbia for the celebration. The Saturday night following the game the chapter gave a banquet in our practically new home. The affair was truly representative of Delt spirit. A large number of the boys from Gamma Tau joined in with the old grads and actives to round out a very entertaining evening. The house was decorated in fine shape. About two hundred men were back with us.

Green has been devoting almost all of his time to perfecting the arrangements for the convention of the National Student Federation of America, which meets here about the middle of December. Livingstone has assisted Green with the publicity for this event, which will be the biggest gathering here this year.

Hohn was elected vice-president of the junior class. Owen and Green were elected to membership in the Razzers, the student pep organization. Pledge Kimes was elected captain of the freshman football squad. Hohn and Pledge Slack are on the staff of The Missouri Student. Hohn is also a pledge to Sigma Delta Chi. Pledge Taylor is president of the Musketters, marksmanship honorary; Vavra is treasurer. Gans was elected as house manager to succeed Gentry. Bisco was recently appointed representative of the United Press for this region. He is a senior in the Journalism school. Diemer was chairman of Homecoming arrangements.

WYMAN WICKERSHAM

Gamma Lambda—Purdue

2nd semester 1927-28, 27th of 35 fraternities.

Initiates: Hugh Chasey, Marion; Walter Hallstein, Indianapolis; Wayne Mosier, Lagoootee.

Pledges: Gates Clansey, Chicago, Max Morris, Chalmers; Harry Richards, Niles, Michigan; Mercer Sullivan, Peru; Walter Williams, Cleveland, Ohio.

Gamma Lambda is well represented on the campus. With the finish of a very successful year in football, Hal Chasey, Greicus, Mackle, and Miller were awarded the major letters. Fadley played one of the leads in All Men's Review production, "Mary Ann." Manlove, Mosher, Traylor, and Pledges Baker, Harry Hallstein, and Richards were in the chorus of the Review.

Murphy has been pledged by the Gimlet Club, the booster club for organized men. Burch, Murphy, and Overman are out for "Piggy" Lambert's basketball squad.

The pledges have been working on activities. Henley has won his numeral in track. Sullivan won a second place in the freshman oratorical contest. Kenney is out for football manager.

Gamma Lambda is represented on The Purdue Exponent staffs by Sargent and Pledges Hancock, Lawther, Smoot, and Sullivan.

Hollingsworth is managing the Men's Glee Club. Brannock, Hugh Chasey, and Salmon are singing with the club. Eusey is working out with the gym team, and Traylor is on the varsity debate team.

A large number of our alumni returned to the Shelter for the Homecoming game with Wisconsin and to be present at the laying of the cornerstone of our new house.

DWIGHT C. MUIR

Gamma Nu—Maine

Spring semester 1928, 2nd of 17 national fraternities; chapter average 2.217.

Pledge: Walter Nelson Sundstrom, North Berwick.

The Twentieth Anniversary of Gamma Nu was celebrated on November 2nd and 3rd. Many alumni were back to renew memories of the days when they held forth at the Shelter, and the result was a howling success. The only official event on program was the birthday banquet, but nearly everyone took in the Maine Night celebration Friday night and the football game Saturday afternoon. Although the mud oozed almost knee deep, Maine tied Colby 0-0 for the state series title, and there was plenty of enthusiasm manifested.

Saturday evening Bill Hardy served his famous banquet, and more than did credit to himself and to our fond expectations. Harold Metzner, our fire-eating chapter adviser, presided as toastmaster, calling upon our prexy, Firovanti Minuitti, to extend the official welcome of the active chapter to those present. The principal speaker of the evening was Darrell Moore, President of the Eastern Division. President Moore gave a very interesting talk on the ideals and aims of Delta Tau Delta and the position that Gamma Nu holds in the Fraternity. Walter Morse spoke for the alumni; Maynard Hinks for the pledges; Warren Harmon for the Building Association; and Bob Buzzell for the charter members. The event was concluded by the usual Walk-around and by the singing of favorite Delt songs. May Gamma Nu enjoy many more such anniversaries!

All roads led to the Shelter for the annual Pledge Dance. This dance was one of the most successful social affairs ever staged by the chapter. The event was made especially noteworthy by the presence of many out of town girls. The co-eds were few and far between. Frank Shea, our premier sax artist, and his band furnished the music. Warren Lucas, '14, and Mrs. Lucas chaperoned the party.

The next social function of importance is the annual Pre-variation Dance to be held at the chapter house on Friday, December 14th.

Those whose names will adorn the latest Dean's list are F. O. Minuitti, H. G. Bourne, Roland Butler, and Stetson Smith.

Boudy, Baston, and Jarrett are out for varsity basketball. Sundstrom, Humphrey, and Ward are out for the frosh team. Prospects look bright for the intramural championship in the winter, if the boys hold their present form.

Bud Humphrey won his numerals in the shot-put during the fall Pumpkin Meet.

H. G. Bourne is our most recent pledge to Tau Beta Pi, honorary Engineering.

Alumni Notes

The alumni who returned for the Anniversary Reunion were Stacy Lampher, '08; Warren Harmon, '10; Doc Moore, '12; Bob Buzzell, '12; Chick Church, '13; Warren Lucas, '14; C. W. Fenderson, '14; P. F. Merrill, '16; Frank Snell, '17; Oscar Whalen, '19; Kenneth McQuarrie, '20; Hep Pratt, '21; Butch Huston, '22; Karl McKechnie, '24; Harland Ladd, '25; Walter Morse, '26; Kenneth Barker, '26; Fred Harris, '26; Carl Lewis, '27; George Lary, '27; Bill Schruppf, ex '12, '28; George Newhall, ex '29; Steve Colby, ex '30.

Walter Morse makes frequent visits from Houlton, where he is teaching school.

Alumni: If you want to meet any of these fellows, former classmates and roommates, call around at the chapter house next Maine Night. Almost every class was represented this year. Let's make it 100% next year.

ARCHIBALD V. SMITH

Gamma Xi—Cincinnati

2nd semester 1927-28, 7th of 9 fraternities.

With the end of the first half of the first semester now passed Gamma Xi has settled down and is working toward what seems to be a very successful year. In the recent school elections the chapter was victorious in gaining the following offices: Pledge Bill Curry was elected president of the freshman class, an office which was held last year by our Pledge Arata; Johnny Griffiths was elected treasurer of the sophomore class; "Archie" Biggs was elected a representative on the Student Council.

Paul Heckle is business manager and Tom Reed circulation manager of The Co-operative Engineer, the Engineering School publication. Tom Pierson is one of the cheer leaders. Brad Allin is captain of Gamma Xi's water basketball team.

Pledge Reddig of Rock Island, Illinois, has found it necessary to withdraw from school.

Seven of the pledges have formed a very fine dance orchestra, which displayed its merits at the Dad's Party, November 10th.

The traditional pledge dance given in honor of the new pledges was held October 26th at the Hyde Park Country Club. The pledges reciprocated with an informal house dance November 23rd, at which time they livened the evening with a series of stunts.

Out of the nine pledges and one active starting for Dr. Wieland's dinner in Chicago, seven completed the trip. Griffiths and Pledges Allin and Cochrane were hindered from completing the journey by having motor trouble in Lebanon, Indiana. Pledges Atkinson topped the dinner off by making the return trip to Cincinnati in a mail plane.

CALDWELL P. ROBERTSON

Gamma Omicron—Syracuse

Year 1927-28, chapter average 1.058.

Pledges: Carlton Ure, Fulton; Allen Conroy, Jamestown; James Bramrick, Fred Carroll, Jack Deegan, Herman Klotz, Jack Goodrich, Louis Gishler, Syracuse; Robert Johnson, Bloomfield, New Jersey; Floyd Clark, Ilion; Ward Watson, East Orange, New Jersey; Glenn Fish, Cortland; Austin Young, Canisteo.

Bradt is rather busy with trips as manager of Tom Keane's cross country team. Carroll as manager of an undefeated freshman team has good cause to smile. Cornell is business manager of The Orange Peel, the comic magazine. Lynn Wilder has his eye on the managership of The Daily Orange, and Bob Morgan is an associate editor on the same sheet. Curtiss is an associate manager of The Onondagan, the junior year-book, and as such is busy composing the sports section. Boetcher is assistant manager of basketball, and Swartout holds the same position in baseball. Goodrich is scrubbing for football, and Loucks, our only member of the varsity football squad, has turned in some nice work in the backfield. Robinson is scrubbing for soccer and "Doc" Reed for wrestling. Merle Reed, besides being a premier pole vaulter, is burning them up as a cheer leader. Three brethren are senior society men, Carroll, Cornell, and Bradt. Loucks, Boetcher, Jamison, and Swartout are all members of junior societies.

About twenty of the boys made the trip to Penn State for the game. They have a fine new house, but finer still is their hospitality. A chapter such as that at State is going to get somewhere. We wish them well.

A few of the Delts from Ohio Wesleyan came down for the annual battle. We hope they enjoyed being here as much as we enjoyed having them.

The Allen brothers, '26, from Tufts, and Littlehales, '28, from Brown, are employed by the New York Telephone Company here and are much in evidence about the house. William Dyer, president of Gamma Omicron in '20, dropped to see us the other day. He now lives in Mohawk, New York.

Alumni Notes

Colgate Day brought back a number of the boys to the Shelter. We were mighty glad to see them. Their advent was the only bright spot in an otherwise blue day caused by our defeat at the hands of Colgate, our greatest rival. Such loyalty to the Alma Mater and to the chapter as is shown by the return of the alumni on that day is indeed inspiring to the undergraduates. We want to see more of them return each year for this occasion. A buffet lunch was served at the house after the game, and the alumni meeting was held in the chapter hall immediately after. Many of the brothers brought their wives and sisters over to see the house and get together. This is a new wrinkle and met with a great deal of approval.

'14—Captain Hess is now with the R.O.T.C. as an instructor in Military Science.

'26—Bill Coleman is practising law in Buffalo.

'26—Charlie Groewald is working for Led Earle, '18, up north of Quebec in the lumber industry.

'28—Bob Cornell is now at Harvard taking graduate work for a master's degree in Business.

'28—Stan Wilson has accepted a position with the A & P Company at Buffalo.

Plans are now under way for the formation of an alumni chapter here at Syracuse. Forrest H. Witmeyer, '28, is the active head of tentative organization. "Wit" is now employed as the publicity manager for the Excelsior Fire Insurance Co.

'28—Jim Ahearn is now employed by the New England Telephone Company at Hartford.

D. M. LASHER

Gamma Pi—Iowa State

Year 1927-28, 1st of 28 national fraternities.

Initiates: John Rhinehart, Dallas Center; Leo Fickes, Ames; Robert Janda, Cedar Rapids; Forrest Bennett, Marshall, Oklahoma.

Pledges: Albert Henderson, Des Moines; George Booth, Harlan; John Peters, Wellsburg.

Great things were planned for the Homecoming of Gamma Pi's alumni November 3rd. Because of a blizzard the night before only about a dozen old Delts were present for our annual banquet. Our 13-0 defeat of Oklahoma made up for our disappointment at the poor turnout, however.

The annual grid battle between Iowa State and its ancient enemy, Drake, ended disastrously for old Ames, 18-0. Bennett and Wilcox showed up exceptionally well in the game. We expect letters from both.

MacDuff, Blankenship, and Fraser are leaders on the freshman tank squad, and Tuttle and Wes Wilcox represent us on the prep grid teams. We expect freshman numerals from several of these boys.

Max Smith and Cliff Ebert are members of the Glee Club, while Todd, Knopp, and Eason are playing in band and orchestra.

Bob Fickes has his fingers in several pies this fall. He had charge of the Junior Trot, the fall formal, which showed the Delt influence, as it was acclaimed the best dance in years. Fickes also had the lead in "Seven Keys to Baldpate," Dramatic Club presentation.

We plan to have our fall issue of the Gamma Pi publication ready for circulation soon.

Bob Davenport paid us a three days visit late in November.

Alumni Notes

'07—C. Q. Adamson returned from Shanghai on a short furlough, and visited the chapter recently.

'28—Jim McGlade plans to start soon on a round the world tour, working his way. During the summer he has been in the government forestry service near Seattle.

CLIFFORD EBERT

Gamma Rho—Oregon

Last figures available, 11th of 17 fraternities.

Pledges: Bob Homes, John Hawkes, Bob Rankin, Desmond Anderson, Ed Astney, and Bill Greaper, Portland; Charles Graves, Orville Garrett, Grants Pass; Gordon Jason, Trebor Shawcross, San Francisco; Joe Hughes, Astoria; Vern Shoemaker, La Grande; Tom Leake, Walla Walla, Washington.

After years of waiting the Delts of Gamma Rho have experienced the thrill that comes with moving into a new home. Regardless of our efforts not to become too boastful, we are claiming our chapter house as one of the very best fraternity houses on the Oregon campus. Planting of shrubs and preparing of the lawn of our home have furnished one of the pastimes which occupied much of our time during the fall. To make our home even a greater joy, the entire lower floor has been newly furnished. The Delta Tau Delta Mothers' Club of Portland, under the leadership of Mrs. McMath, has helped us greatly in obtaining our new furnishings.

Certain members of Gamma Rho have aided the Oregon football teams through a very successful season. Merrill Hagan has been named as one of the outstanding guards of the Pacific Coast conference. Bob Keeney has been playing a guard position on the varsity. Pledges Ed Anstey and Desmond Anderson succeeded in earning their numerals on the frosh team.

Thus far we can almost say that the Oregon Delts have received more than their share of activity appointments. Desmond Anderson was general chairman of the frosh bonfire, which is one of the big events of Homecoming. Carl Nelson was chairman of the Homecoming dance. Merrill Hagan was recently elected to Friars, senior honorary. Mark Gill and Bill East have been kept very busy as managers of varsity football. Gordon Jason went through the fall tennis tournament without meeting defeat, and as a result is the singles tennis champion of the school.

Alumni Notes

'20—Fred Packwood wandered into the house shortly after the O.A.C. game. He was quite satisfied with the results of the game.

'24—Art Larson found time during the past summer to be married.

'17—Austin Brownell was another alum who was well satisfied with the O.A.C. game.

'17—Lynn Parr is superintendent of the Marshfield, Oregon, schools.

'25—Mason Dillard, like a few other alums, was married during the summer.

'26—Charley Jost has taken up the coaching profession. He is assistant coach of basketball at Oregon.

'22—Vern Blue is teaching History courses at the University of Oregon.

'17—Tubby Ogle is gaining fame as one of southern Oregon's most successful physicians. He is practicing at Grants Pass.

'26—Steele Winterer is expected to pay the chapter a visit soon.

GERALD R. WOODRUFF

Gamma Sigma—Pittsburgh

No scholarship report since 1926-27.

On the night of November 10th the chapter house fairly rang with the many greetings that passed here and there—"Hello, Harry!"—"Hello, Dick!"—"Hello, Tom!" It was the annual alumni Homecoming that preceded the Pitt-W. & J. football game. Not only Gamma Sigma's alumni, but Deltas from California, Minnesota, Brown, Michigan, Washington and Jefferson, Allegheny, and ex-Bethany came for the occasion. President MacLeod welcomed them and elucidated on the progress of the Fraternity.

It is fitting to announce at this time that the much sought for renovations in bathing facilities have at last been authorized. Many thanks are due the alumni and friends for this fine Christmas present to the chapter.

During the summer a thorough analysis was made of the chapter scholarship, and it was decided to follow Allen Beck's advice about "weak sisters." Consequently three men were suspended for various lengths of time. It is hoped that such procedure will remove all negative fluctuations in scholarship standing.

Names of rushing candidates are now being solicited in preparation for the coming season. There abounds on the campus a wealth of excellent freshman material, from which we hope to pledge a goodly number.

Chapter President Dinsmoor, who is also chairman of the Interfraternity Council, was appointed undergraduate representative to the Interfraternity Council Conference, held at New York in December.

Ray Montgomery and Charlie Edwards, famous Delt "pig-skin tossers," brought to the house another cup for winning the first interfraternity horseshoe pitching contest.

W. S. ANDREWS

Gamma Tau—Kansas

Year 1927-28, 2nd of 17 national fraternities.

Pledges: Gordon Leonard, Kansas City, Missouri; Hallie Cooper, Winfield; Raymond Armstead, Kansas City; Max Ontjes, Lyons; Ralph Ludwick, Glasco; John Noble, Pratt; Marvin Songer; Eldorado; William Danenbarger, Concordia; Theodore Ferrier, Emporia; Philip Ehly, Mankado; William Carroll, Waterville, Ohio; Everett Anderson, Abilene; Armin Hillmer, Sylvan Grove; Wilson Reitz, Kansas City.

Our Homecoming banquet, on November 2nd, was a great success if the comments of the alumni can be believed. Ernest Turner acted as toastmaster. Speeches were given by Charles Whitmer, Roscoe C. Groves, and Dr. Harry Lee Verdin.

McCormick has made his first and Cooper has made his second letter in football this year.

Bob Davenport was with us for several days. We hope he enjoyed his stay as much as we did.

Sewall Voran received the annual award given the junior in the School of Journalism having the highest scholastic standing combined with outstanding activities. He has also been pledged to Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalistic.

The Limehouse Brawl is scheduled for the night of February 9th. The Rainbow Formal will be held on Friday, March 15th.

We have established a senior council to hold freshman court.

We went to the semifinals in intramural baseball and won a cup.

Alumni Notes

'26—Donald Gilbreath was married to Miss Helen Dana of Kansas City, Missouri, on November 4th.

'27—Jack Kincaid is working for Capper Publications in Topeka.

ROBERT HAIG

Gamma Phi—Amherst

Initiates: Fred Edward Atiyeh, Brooklyn; Richard Walsh Fitch, Jr., Springdale, Connecticut; Donald Morrison Harris, South Orange, New Jersey; Stanley Heck, Burlington, Iowa; Olof Gunnar Johnson, Pittsfield; Alfred Thomas Magnell, Hartford, Connecticut; Alfred Frederick Melzig, Roselle, New Jersey; Arnaud Edmond Pausser, Jr., Rydal, Pennsylvania; Herbert King Salmon, Jr., Stanhope, New Jersey; Irving Richard Stafford, Beacon, New York; Carlton Elmer Turkington, Palmer; James Michael Weldon, Mahoney City, Pennsylvania. Every man pledged at the beginning of the college year was initiated.

Among the freshmen Turkington and Pausser received their numerals in freshman football, Turkington playing end in every game and Pausser alternating with DePasqua at quarterback. Salmon is going out for freshman basketball. Atiyeh is competing for a place on The Lord Jeff business board, while Melzig is working hard on The Ohio business board competition. Weldon is secretary to the freshman dean.

The house dance was a grand success under the supervision of Whitbread, Munson, and Reid. There were about fifty couples and thirty-five stags, which was almost more than the Delt house could hold. Berkhill's Spencerians supplied the music for the dance, which lasted from four o'clock until eleven. After the Smith and Mount Holyoke girls had departed, there was a short sing for the benefit of the out of town guests.

Mountain Day was celebrated by a basket lunch at Whately Glen. In the afternoon the annual football game was played. This was followed by a banquet at the Hotel Warren in South Deerfield.

Interfraternity athletics have started off auspiciously. The touch football team is the winner of League B and will play Alpha Delt for the championship December 4th. A victory will put Gamma Phi in first place in fall sports. Morris won the Whitcomb Cross Country Interfraternity Meet, though the team as a whole did not rank very high, Fitch, Heck, and Coey being new to the cross country grind. Bowditch won the college singles title and with his partner, Richardson, was runner-up in doubles. The house basketball team is fast rounding into shape.

Stahr received his letter in varsity soccer, having played in every game this year and having been a consistent high scorer. Pratt, Hicks, Trevethan, and Stahr are all trying out for varsity basketball. Freddy Allen, now recovered from his operation of last year, is contending for a place on the swimming team. Sam Bryant is also a likely prospect. Hanson will go to Lake Placid with the hockey team during the Christmas holidays. Chuck plays goalie.

The Masquers are producing "Arms and the Man" with Jack Shaw playing the major role of Saranoff. McGoun, '27, is technical director; Matterson, stage manager; Derge, assistant stage manager; Coey and Reid, sophomore competitors. Radford is leading the business board competition in number of tickets sold. John Munson is in charge of the art work. John is also editor of Lord Jeff and is now working on the Christmas issue. Hanson is advertising manager.

In recent college elections Freddy Allen was elected chairman of soph hop and Johnny Munson of senior hop. Not a bad record. Elliott Reid, Brennecke, and Fox were all members of the college band, and Radford was a cheer leader. The House octet with Brennecke as leader is planning to win the interfraternity sing to be held soon. Elliott is competing for baseball manager and manager of The Student. Pabst is working hard to win the Musical Clubs managership and is putting out the next Freshman Bible in his spare time.

The initiation banquet was particularly successful this year, due to the larger number of alumni back. J. C. Wight, '10, was toastmaster. George Leary, '09, lawyer of Springfield; Tom Sawyer, '11, purser on the Barbara; Rev. A. P. White, '16; H. S. Boyd, '17; W. W. Northrop, '23; R. C. McGoun, '27, chapter adviser; E. R. True, '27; Skinner, Worden, Bursk, Holtham, Jed Ward, John Rieg, Colton, S. R. Packard, '15, were among those present. After an excellent meal and some terrible jokes a good old fashioned Walk-Around was indulged in at the house. Rensselaer, Dartmouth, and Wesleyan sent delegates. All in all it was a very good initiation week-end despite the defeat of Amherst by Williams in football.

In the Corporation meeting Saturday morning the new house situation was threshed out, with the result that the trustees are authorized to sell the present house at an instant's notice, provided they can guarantee a new house within a year of the sale of the old one.

ROBERT BOWDITCH

Gamma Chi—Kansas State

2nd semester 1927-28, 8th of 22 fraternities.

Initiates: Phil Andrew, Ottawa; Elmo Young, Hutchinson; Vernon Hoyt, Colorado Springs, Colorado; Homer C. Rutan, Pratt; Price Swartz, Everst.

Initiation services were held November 25th. The following alumni were here: Kenneth Graham, Robert Dice, Carl Feldman, Arthur Doolen, M. C. MacBride, Lawrence Brooks, and R. E. Hamler.

James Blackledge and T. J. Charles, Jr., seniors in the Division of Agriculture, have won distinction as honor students.

Four intramural trophies were won by Gamma Chi during 1927-28: two in basketball, one in swimming, and a permanent first place intramural trophy. We also have possession of a three-year cup for this season.

Vernon Hoyt has been acting as cheerleader this year.

Robert Davenport visited us early in November. The chapter is well pleased with our new field secretary and welcomes him to the Shelter any time.

Our annual fall formal dinner dance was held November 3rd. The alumni who attended say it was the best Delt party they ever attended.

Alumni Notes

Arthur Doolen visits us quite often. He is traveling for a Kansas City jewelry company.

The Rev. Harrison Ray Anderson, former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Wichita, accepted the call of the Fourth Presbyterian Church in Chicago and took charge of his new field last October.

EDGAR TEMPLETON

Gamma Psi—Georgia Tech

Pledges: Jack R. Belsinger, Tom N. Daniel, William A. Horne, Jr., Jack M. Preacher, Atlanta; James L. Dawson, Woodstock; Lefty Duke, Senoria; E. McIver Evans, Cheraw, South Carolina; F. Scott Godron, St. Louis; James W. Griffeth, A. Gordon Wells, Savannah; William C. Lamb, Tallahassee, Florida; T. Jarmon McCowan, Fayetteville, Tennessee; William D. Miller, Alton, Illinois; Whitlow B. Wallace, Chattanooga, Tennessee; Sharon H. Williams, Rome; Jerome B. Woods, Perryton, Texas.

Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado has thus far swept aside all opposition. Westbrook and Lumpkin have been mainstays on the team as regular guard and fullback respectively. On the campus Lumpkin made Skull & Key, sophomore honorary, and Westbrook has recently been initiated into Bull Dog, junior-senior honorary.

Randy Whitfield has been elected president of the sophomore Co-op class. He also won the Briarian freshman scholarship for Co-ops. Hutchinson, McDonald, and Fant made the Cotillion Club. Gibson has been elected president of Alpha Kappa Psi, commercial, and Evans has recently been pledged. Fant made Alpha Delta Sigma, honorary advertising, and Blount has been initiated into Phi Psi, honorary textile. Joe Rahner has been promoted from the rank of lieutenant colonel to cadet colonel in the R.O.T.C.

Among the pledges Williams is president of the freshman class, and was out for freshman football along with McCowan. Dawson, Duke, Griffeth, and McCowan are out for freshman basketball. Belsinger was one of the freshmen football managers. Horne and Daniels are out for The Technique, and Godron has made the Dramatic Club.

The annual All-State Delt banquet was held on December 7th, the night before the Tech-Georgia game, and was a glorious success. "Hi" Moor made an interesting and inspirational talk.

H. I. NEELY, Jr.

Gamma Upsilon—Miami

1st semester 1927-28, 9th of 12 fraternities.

Initiates: Horace D. Rogers, Millersburg; Augustus Toler-ton, Salem.

Pledges: Collin Hart, Cleveland; John Austin, Greenfield; Everett Goodlin, Toronto; Lewis Evans, Cleveland Heights; Wayne Dowell, Fostoria; James Pinnell, Osborn; Harold Bonham, Findlay; James Booher, Oakwood; Fred Heinemann, Lake Forest, Illinois; Dean Laughman, Youngstown; Eugene Flory, Eaton; Richard Jacobs, Washington Court House; Edward Kranbuehl, Hamilton; Howard Davis, Dayton; Emerson Arganbright, Kenton; Manning Cooper, Youngstown; Edwin Lewis, Oakwood; David Frechtling, Hamilton; Emmett Stopher, Kenton.

More than one-third of Miami's regular football team this year were Deltas. With only one letter man graduating and promising freshmen coming along, there are good prospects of increasing this percentage. The first of these notables is Paul Glick. Paul has been a varsity man for three years, and although he played the first two at end, he demonstrated his versatility by playing a neat game at quarterback. Next we present a husky pair of guards, McPhillips and Rogers. Pat has safely garnered his second football letter, and now he tells us he is going to be an actor and make "Ye Merrie Players." Rogers is only a sophomore, but may take up a lot of newspaper space 'ere he tucks his cleats away. That brings us to Big George Vossler, whom the sporting editors of the state have named "The Terrible." Vossler succeeded in battering his way right up among the best ball carriers in the state, and when the moguls picks the All-Ohio team—well!

Pledges Dowell, Kranbuehl, and Cooper weathered the storm successfully, and were awarded yearling sweaters in football. Stopher won his numerals in cross country.

Tolerton, Davis, Wertz, O'Brien, and Hertenstein have reported for varsity basketball.

Austin Sprague is president of the chapter, associate editor of The Student, and a university marshal. Burke and Davis are active in the Glee Club. Glick is a member of the Varsity Social Club. Hertenstein is on the Junior Prom committee, and is a university marshal. McPhillips has been elected to the junior honorary, Blue Key. De Wert is sophomore football manager (only two more years, Chuck). Cooper is president of the freshman class. Lewis Evans is treasurer of the freshman class.

Quite a number of the alumni are with us when we have our parties, and Social Chairman Vossler is attempting to get a schedule of affairs made out for some time ahead so that announcements may be sent out in time for all the busy business men to make arrangements to be here.

Alumni Notes

- '28—"Dusty" Dunn is with a printing company in Detroit.
- '28—Bob Miles is teaching chem and physics in Gallipolis.
- '28—"Chick" Gibson is teaching and coaching in Trenton.
- '23—"Ike" Macey is selling specialties for a firm in Louisville, and is engaged to be married.
- Arganbright is with a utilities company in Kenton.
- '22—Dick Riley is district manager for the Willard Battery Company, and is our new chapter adviser.

Year 1927-28, 19th of 37 fraternities.

Initiates: James Chadbourn, Spartanburg, South Carolina; Gilbert Ragan, High Point; James Ferebee, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Pledges: John Miller, Savannah, Georgia; Glenn Mock, Spencer; Willard Manbeck, Cleveland, Ohio; Henry Stultz, Winston-Salem; Charles Rollins, Henderson; Peirson Ricks, Winston-Salem; Hugh Martin, Fairmont, West Virginia; Hege Kapp, Winston-Salem; Henry Rehder, Wilmington.

Gamma Omega finished the most successful rushing season of its history by pledging these nine men. They are rapidly becoming active on the campus. Peirson Ricks and Charlie Rollins are out for publications; Rehder has good prospects of making the Glee Club; Bill Manbeck and Henry Stultz are competing for positions on the football and track teams, respectively; and Hugh Martin will try for baseball in the spring.

George Heinitsh and Vance Rollins, medical students, were initiated into Phi Chi, national medical.

Jimmy Ferebee was elected to the Co-op, interfraternity eating club.

With the initiation of Dr. Earl Runyon Tyler, Gamma Omega has at last initiated all the members of Delta Psi Delta who were instrumental in getting this chapter. Dr. Tyler is a physician of Durham, North Carolina.

Gamma Omega is continually adding to the attractiveness of the house. The last addition is a new living-room set.

The university has just sent out its mid-term reports of the individual scholastic grades, and it appears that we are raising our standing.

KERMIT WHEARY

Delta Alpha—Oklahoma

Year 1927-28, 6th of 22 fraternities; average 2.686.

Initiates: Henry Dent, Oklahoma City; Joe B. Hudson, Los Angeles, California; Morris Shrader, El Reno.

William Hamilton, captaining the 1928 Sooner football squad, will wind up his football career here Thanksgiving. He has played as reliable and consistent game at tackle this year as he has in the past two years.

In freshman football Raymond Stanley and William Morris are in line to receive numerals.

On drill afternoons the Delta Shelter takes on the aspect of an army barracks. We are well represented in the R.O.T.C. unit, having the ranking colonel, three captains, two lieutenants, and a large number of non-coms and privates.

The chapter is still increasing its activities on the campus. Savoie Lottinville is on the governing board of the Union Building; George Copeland is serving his third year on the debate team; Herbert Peters is a member of Alpha Chi Sigma; Scabbard & Blade pledges are Clyde Watts and Earl Fricke; J. Wiley Taylor, of Gamma Iota, has pledged Alpha Kappa Psi.

Rothwell Stephens and Savoie Lottinville have been selected by the University as its representatives for the Rhodes Scholarship. Although several in the past have been candidates, this is the first time two members of the chapter have been contestants at the same time. Stephens is a candidate for the second time, having competed in 1926. Both men have a wide range of activities.

Our Homecoming dance was quite a success. A large number of alumni were here to enjoy both the game and the dance.

Tom Wilson, traveling secretary, has visited us this fall and left some ideas by which the chapter has benefited.

HAROLD C. NAYLOR

Year 1927-28, 3rd of 7 national fraternities; average 83.47.

Initiates: James Toy Van Dyke, Sioux City, Iowa; Conrad H. Skaro, Sioux Falls.

Pledges: Harvey Anderson, Hudson; Robert Byrne, Sioux City, Iowa; Donald Wolf, Watertown; Walter Greene, Sioux Falls; Robert Greene, Vermillion; Walton Herman, Sioux City, Iowa; Howard Crandall, Hetland; Cletus Hart, Flandreau; William Looby, Nunda; Glen Barnett, Merrill, Iowa; Harold Nelson, Vermillion; Walter Sarlette, Salem; Paul Barker, Ipswitch; Milton Sturgis, Arlington.

We are very sorry to have spoiled our record by missing the first chapter letter, but due to a misunderstanding the letter was mailed too late for publication.

We were very disappointed, on returning to school this fall, that we had missed winning the scholarship cup by less than two-tenths of a point. We are still after it, however. May better luck attend us for the present year.

The chapter is indebted to Louis Tollefson, Donald Cadwell, alumni, and Roger Wilke, Beta Eta, for the valuable assistance they gave us in securing our splendid group of pledges.

The new $300,000 gymnasium and armory which is being erected on the campus will be ready for use by the first of the year. The new basketball court will do away with the quaint old custom of going to the gym at three o'clock in the afternoon in order to secure a seat for a game scheduled to be played at eight o'clock that evening. The new firing range when completed will be the second best in the United States, and the swimming pool will do much to add interest in that sport.

The football season closed on November 17th, when the Red Shirts defeated the North Dakota Aggies 26-7. The season this year was rather a failure in regard to games won and lost, but a success as to spirit and fight. H. Ebsen, W. Emerson, and J. Cable were awarded letters, and with only Cable graduating the Delts should be well represented next year.

The frosh season, although brief, was a success, as they defeated their traditional rival, Morningside, and tied State. Robert Byrne and Walter Greene played at fullback and halfback respectively for the Green Shirts, and were awarded numerals.

In basketball we are anticipating an all-Delt team, as Captain Cable and the Paterson brothers are regulars from last year and Skaro and Ericsson are numeral winners with splendid chances of becoming first team men. Ulyot is also out for a position.

The basketball trophy, which we won last year, still rests on the mantel, and with the freshmen material coming in we stand a good chance to repeat our victory in intramural basketball. Robert Byrne, R. Greene, H. Crandall, W. Sarlette, H. Anderson, and P. Barker are all out for the frosh team.

Thomas Hart and Walton Herman were guests of Dr. Wieland at the annual pledge dinner at the Sherman Hotel, Chicago. Their enthusiastic accounts of the trip made the rest of us envious.

It was very gratifying to have such a large number of alumni back for Dakota Day, and we hope it will be possible for all of them to make us further visits.

Pledge William Looby was selected for the Mask and Wig, local dramatic fraternity, and has one of the leading parts in the play "Trelawney of the Wells," to be presented soon.

In recent Glee Club tryouts Ray Gilby, Clinton Tompkins, and Arthur Frieberg again won places, and will make a two-week trip to the Black Hills.

Clinton Tompkins was elected business manager of The Blue Print, student publication of the College of Engineering.

Alumni Notes

Dana Eckenbeck and Roger Wilke, Beta Eta; Donald Cadwell, Clinton Samson, Leland S. Hopkins, Donald Baer, Fred Grams, Irl Wade, and T. A. Barnhart have made us some very pleasant visits.

Leland S. Hopkins and Carl Ruhlman were married last summer.

John Dunlap, '26, has a position as chemical engineer at Arkansas City, Kansas.

Irl Wade is principal of city schools in Flandreau.

Donald Cadwell is superintendent at Mission Hill.

MARVIN DICKEY

Delta Delta—Tennessee

Year 1927-28, 4th of 12 nationals.

Initiate: Ralph Brown, Knoxville.

Pledges: John Lambert, Washington, D. C.; Robert Patton, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Field Secretary T. Fitzhugh Wilson and President Thomas I. Miller of the Southern Division paid the chapter a visit on November 9th and stayed until November 14th. We profited materially. Mr. Miller addressed the active chapter and also spoke to the pledge group. He also attended a banquet in honor of Dr. Charles H. Gordon, who resigned last year as chapter adviser. Dr. Gordon and Mrs. Gordon were the honor guests. Dr. John L. Kind, new chapter adviser, was also honored in the program. A life-size portrait of Dr. Gordon was hung in the library with pictures of other Delta Delta notables. Representatives of the alumni chapter were present and paid tribute to Dr. Gordon, calling him the "Daddy of Delta Delta Chapter."

For the first time in the history of the University a fraternity formal was presented Thanksgiving evening by Delta Tau Delta when the Dean of Men made an exception in our case due to a misunderstanding regarding the Thanksgiving tea dance date. The dance was in honor of Delta Epsilon Chapter. The University of Tennessee Vols and the Kentucky Wildcats had engaged in the annual "beer keg" struggle that afternoon. The dance was given following a banquet at Whittle Springs Hotel for James McNutt, a brother whose engagement to Miss Dorothy Stair, a Zeta Tau Alpha of Knoxville, had just been announced.

Twenty-eight men from Delta Delta descended on Lambda Chapter on November 16-17-18 to see the annual Vanderbilt-Tennessee game at Nashville. The Lambda chapter most cordially welcomed us and moved out into town, turning their house over to the visiting Delts for the week-end.

N. Ray Carroll, Vice-President of the Fraternity, visited the chapter for a few minutes while on his way to his winter home in Florida. He promised to return and make a longer visit after Christmas.

A house dance and buffet supper was given December 8th for several Delts who were on the Florida team and others who came with the team to see the Tennessee-Florida game.

Charles McGehee, at this writing, has almost garnered his varsity "T" as fullback. It was expected that in the two games to be played he would have been in enough quarters to make his letter.

Bob Patton, star freshman athlete, has finally been shifted to guard on the yearling eleven and will hold down that position with the Vols next year.

Among the visitors at the house from other chapters this fall have been Jimmie Atkins, Lambda; A. J. Wardrep, Lambda; John Onstott, Lambda and Delta Zeta; Vann Norred, Lambda; Joe Allen, Beta Theta; three other Sewanee Delts; "Red" Bailey, Lambda.

Pledge Walter Johnson has been elected to Pershing Rifles.

Foutch has been promoted to the position of copy manager on The Orange and White, university newspaper. Thomason has been recommended for managing editor effective after January 15th.

MIMS THOMASON

Delta Epsilon—Kentucky

2nd semester 1927-28, 2nd of 17 fraternities.

Initiates: Brady Knight, Huntington, West Virginia; Stewart L. Pomeroy, Wilmette, Illinois; W. H. Schimmerl, Fairmont, West Virginia.

Pledge: Russel Lukes, Danville.

Delta Epsilon is still under two mighty good influences. One is the fine spirit displayed by our new Southern field secretary, Thomas Wilson, who stayed with us several days and gave the chapter several things to think about. His talk to the freshmen was fine and included many points that were certainly inspiring to Delts. The other influence, which is by no means second, was the welcome and entertainment on the part of Delta Delta of Tennessee. There were thirteen Delts from Kentucky who took advantage of Delta Delta's invitation to a banquet at the Whittels Hotel and a big dance following that was held in Delta Delta's big Shelter. Delta Epsilon certainly had a wonderful time, and, boys, if you are ever invited to Tennessee, accept, as you will be shown a royal time.

John Benson has been pledged Tau Beta Pi, Engineering honorary.

H. Davis, Chapman, Kavanaugh, and Baker are to be pledged O.D.K., senior honorary for campus leaders.

Walter Vest has been pledged Delta Sigma Pi, Commercial. Pledges Welling and Davisson attended the Wieland banquet in Chicago and gave the chapter a mighty good report.

Several of our alumni have been back this year; we are glad to see them stop. Cornell, Price, Brush, Kittinger, and Daly were back for the Homecoming game.

Williams of Albion stopped in to stay with us, as all Delts should do when in Lexington.

January 12th is the date for our house dance. Come back, Alumni; we will give you all a good time.

GEORGE L. BOLARD

Delta Zeta—Florida

Initiates: Burwell Jordan, Tampa; Braxton Leddy, Miami; Thomas Quinlan, Wichita, Kansas.

Pledges: Joseph Arango, John Fisher, Tampa; Archie Garrison, Richard Hourihan, Robert Knight, Thurman Whiteside, George Rice, Marion McCune, Miami; Rudolph Graham, Marion Graham, Joseph McGrath, Daytona Beach; Lowell Lotspeich, Walter Lotspeich, Coconut Gove; Frank Brownnett, Norton Davis, Jacksonville; Joseph Sargeant, Lakeland; Arthur Nichols, Palatka; James Carney, Vernon Clark, Brandenton; Winton Aiken, Toledo, Ohio; Frank Harris, Charlie Vickery, Panama City; Elmer Austin, Umatilla.

Chapter officers for this year are Willard Fifield, president; Ed Beardsley, vice-president; Clark Dopson, treasurer; Jimmie Curtin and Mac Boales secretaries.

We are well represented in all activities. Goodbread and Crabtree have been playing regularly on the varsity football team. They both have an excellent chance of making the All-Southern team. Vickery, Carney, Clark, R. Graham, and M. Graham all made the freshman squad. From this assortment it seems that at least two numerals are forthcoming. Owen is varsity basketball manager; he also has charge of our intramural activities. Bob Smith and Tom Quinlan are assistant track managers. Davis is out for tennis manager, with little competition.

On The Blue Gator staff we have Frank Harris for business manager. Owen is assistant business manager. Norton Davis, Lotty Lotspeich, Jimmie Curtin, and Paul Shafer are on the editorial staff. Owen and Curtin are on The Alligator staff.

Leddy and Nichols have been pledged L'Apache. Knight and R. Graham were pledged to Bacchus, of which Graham is chairman of the dance committee. Archie Garrison and Whitie Whiteside made Gaucho, and Whiteside was elected president. Beardsley has recently been pledged Alpha Kappa Psi. He is a member of Scabbard & Blade. Fifield is a member of Alpha Zeta and is president of the Ag. Club. Nichols belongs to the Gargoyle Club. Harris is one of the Fourth Estate. Lybass is on the debating council. Jordan is working hard for the Y and is out for debating.

In the recent intramural swimming meet Delta Zeta placed fourth. We are already working hard on fraternity baseball, in which we won second last year. We have won our way to the semifinals in horseshoe pitching.

Lotty Lotspeich, our freshman representative to Dr. Wieland's dinner in Chicago, won the prize for having traveled the longest distance.

Whitie Whiteside was elected vice-president of the freshman class.

Through the excellent work of Chairman Clyde Crabtree and his efficient rushing team Delta Zeta pledged a fine group. Tom Wilson was with us during rush week, and with his help and the wonderful co-operation of our alumni we got off to a flying start.

MAC BOALES

Delta Theta—Toronto

Scholastic reports not issued.

Initiates: Bruce Alexander, Karl Moeser, Sutherland Malcolmson, Mason Jones, Gordon MacNamara, Toronto.

Pledges: Kenneth MacKenzie, Barrie; Jack Burwich, Grand Valley; Carl Warren, Carl Britnell, Kirkwood Howe, Harry Clark, Toronto.

Mel Scriven has fully recovered now and is making fine progress building the chapter to the largest number it has yet been.

On the opening of the term the quiet state of the house became all at once a scene of unprecedented liveliness; piles of trunks, another order of beds, dressers, and other equipment arrived, and the house was soon full up with more than twenty men.

The activities of the fall included three tea dances after the main rugby games, and a dance at Fred Saxby's on October 24th. These occasions were mainly rushing parties and proved very successful as parties and in obtaining some very fine new men, although we might have done better in getting more out-of-town fellows.

The initiation took place November 5th. It was preceded on Sunday by a party at the house; a great deal of enjoyment attended when the prospective members called for their lady friends in a Victoria cab plus a white Dobbin, pledge-cabby wearing a purple, white, and gold sweater and a top hat. The idea proved too popular with those present, at the expense of Dobbin, as everyone insisted in trying out the luxurious mode of travel of a former age. The initiation was followed by a banquet at the Walker House.

We are still looking for a new house; meanwhile we have summer warmth in spite of the cold without. Tat Hastings, '15, has had a blower attached to the furnace, and we now must open the windows when Russ Zinkann comes in.

Delta Theta is making a very good showing in campus activities.

Charlie Rudell has been in the limelight all fall as star quarterback and vice-captain of the senior O.R.F.U. champions and East Canada finalists. John Stewart, one of our varsity letter men, was out with the Intercollegiates, but was injured. Mason Jones, another quarterback, played for the Junior School, as did Hardy and Moeser. Jones is now preparing for wrestling laurels. Pledge Britnell played quarter for the varsity Juniors; Pledge Burwick was also seen in uniform. P. Ballachey represents us in field sports.

Jack Wright is president of the Engineering undergraduate body, is president of the Students' Court, has his faculty letter, varsity second letter, gets honor standing every year, and is quoted in The Varsity every day. Hugh Dell is U. C. representative on The Torontonensis staff, manager of basketball, is on the Athletic Board, passed first in his year, and is a Rhodes candidate. Hilliard and Irwin are on Hart House committees. Hilliard is participating in the snooker tournaments to retain his title as "snooker king," and is also working out every night at wrestling, as he is the 118-lb. champion. MacNamara and Pledge Clark are our dramatists, and the latter is on The Varsity staff.

The Eastern Division Conference is to be held at Toronto on February 22nd and 23rd. We are eagerly looking forward to giving a real reception to all brothers who can come from across the line to the first Delt conference in Canada. We are to have the Arch Chapter en masse to celebrate the occasion and see that everyone behaves including Stuart Maclean. (How do you get that way! Ed.)

Alumni Notes

'27—Alex. Ballachey has been out at Premier, B. C., since spring, digging for precious metals.

'28—Fred Leeder, M. D., is on leave of absence from his position with the Saskatchewan Board of Health to pursue a D.P.H. degree on a Fellowship which he won in the spring. Fred is one of two in Canada to win these. There seems to be a degree competition on between Fred Leeder and Bill Anderson, B. A., F.A.S., '26.

Since springtime there has been a large number of our recent graduates lured into matrimony. We undergraduates do not approve of this, and the names will be given only on request.

'28—Ralph Westervelt is demonstrator in Thermodynamics. Ralph lives in Clarkson, and we can't figure out which he likes too well to leave—the city or the University.

'28—Max Stewart is taking his graduate course in Fisher bodies at the General Motors in Oshawa.

LARRY IRWIN

Delta Iota—California at Los Angeles

Year 1927-28, 5th of 27 fraternities; chapter average 1.29.

The chapter has thrown itself whole heartedly into the work of the fall semester and the recent scarcity of "cinch" notices was ample proof of its scholastic ability.

"Gene" Noble has been working out for the coming wrestling season after receiving another Big "C" as guard on the varsity. "K.O." is, incidentally, Pacific Coast intercollegiate heavy weight champion in wrestling.

Basketball practice has started with "Mushy" Callahan as senior manager. Under him are "Pug" Rose and John White as junior managers and John MacMillan as sophomore manager. Pledge Jim Long is trying out for the freshman team.

Water polo has attracted Pledge Whitney to the pool. "Lew" learned to breathe under water while at the San Diego Military Academy.

Fall track finds George Badger and "Dick" Cuthbert returning to their events on the varsity. They made their "C's" last year in the 440 and discus respectively. "Don" Clow hopes to better his records in the javelin and high jump.

Leonard Rose is on the Bruin staff as an ad-getter. He believes that advertising is socially valuable and necessary.

Eugene Anderson was chosen to Phi Phi, senior men's honorary. "Wes" Barrett and John Anson were elected to Scabbard & Blade. Alpha Kappa Psi, commerce, pledged Albert Day, George Badger, and Eugene Noble.

A very representative gathering of Deltas attended the 1928 Interfraternity Ball at the Biltmore Hotel. Someone counted twenty-seven members present.

Alumni Notes

'27—Waldo Lockwood is instructor in military science at the Pacific Military Academy.

'27—"Arch" Wedemeyer is now teaching art at the Pasadena Junior College.

'27—Emmett Bishop is traveling representative for the Rail Joint Company of Buffalo, N. Y.

'28—Raymond Walker is buying for the Pacific Southwest Finance Corporation of this city.

'28—William Ball is in the Army School at March Field. "Bill" flew over to see us the other day.

WALTER S. FUNK

Delta Kappa—Duke

Pledges: Blair Stevens, Goldsboro; Joe Webb, Decatur, Georgia; Charles Fisher, Asheville; Hubert Elders, Columbia, South Carolina; Robert Pate, Durham; Milton Clark, Goldsboro; William Snow, Lima, Ohio; Nicholas Orem, Hyattsville, Maryland; Richard H. Coover, New Cumberland, Pennsylvania.

This letter being the first that Delta Kappa has submitted marks a turning point in the history of the local organization. We are, as baby Deltas, more than gratified at the efforts of Gamma Omega in helping us to get our charter and further at their wonderful installation work.

On looking over the chapter we find John Woodward outstanding. He is the undefeated cross country champion in Dixie. He has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa, is vice-president of the Duke chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa, and has been elected to Kappa Delta Pi.

George King has been making high enough grades to be the second highest man in his class scholastically, and is therefore qualified for Phi Beta Kappa next year. He is also doing good work in tennis.

Paul Veasey is advertising manager of The Chanticleer, and Irvin Morgan is coming along nicely with his editorial work in The Archive.

Robert Russel is on the Y.M.C.A. Council, and Joe Mann is on the business staff of The Chronicle, our weekly.

Jamie Exum is manager of boxing, assisted by Peck Fair. Horace Wise is the boy who made both the freshman boxing and wrestling teams last year, and he looks to make the varsity this year. He is also doing some good work on the swimming and tennis teams.

Alton Sadler is on the diving team and is also manager. He is circulation manager of The Chronicle.

Our pledges are well represented in most of the activities on the park and are scheduled to give a pledge tea dance for the pledges of the other fraternities next week.

A number of Delt alumni from other chapters have visited us in the past few days. W. C. Jackson, from Gamma Lambda, stayed with us for several days, and Tom Wilson is with us for a week or so getting us straightened out. The others are too numerous to mention, except for the fact that we appreciated their visit and wish that as many Deltas as possible will come around to see us whenever they get in our part of Carolina.

C. LA MAR FAIR

THE DELTA ALUMNI

Indianapolis Alumni Chapter

DEAR DELTS: Here's hoping luck is again with us. Uncle Sam's Air Mail succeeded the last time, and providing no mountains get in the way probably will this.

The air is so full of Karnea it is hard to think of anything but. So far this year the Karnea Executive Committee has held meetings at the following chapter homes: DePauw, Wabash, Butler, and Purdue, and some time in December will meet at Indiana.

The purpose of these meetings is to acquaint the active chapters with the plans for the Karnea and to secure their cooperation. They are responding enthusiastically as follows: Where is the dance to be held? Whose orchestra will play? Will the women be good looking? Et cetera.

The past few months have seen several of our brothers changing positions or acquiring new honors, as follows: Don Mote has been appointed Assistant Attorney General for Indiana (we suspect Don secured this in order to help prosecute Anti-Saloon League Schumaker). Noel Neal was successful in the recent election for Judge of the Appellate Court. Our president, Everett Holloway, has just been elected treasurer of the Indianapolis Real Estate Board, and Paul Rhoadharmer has just been appointed chief deputy prosecutor for Marion County.

On December 13th we hold our annual election of officers at a dinner to be given at the Spink Arms Hotel, and on February 8th we hold our State Dance at the Columbia Club with Hogie Carmichael's orchestra officiating.

DUMONT RANSTEAD

Pittsburgh Alumni Chapter

Having elected a Republican President and settled the mythical football championship of the East at the Friday board, we have only to elect the All-American eleven and bring the Federal Rum probe to a successful conclusion before calling 1928 a year. That will leave us practically full time to discuss the stock market and rough-house initiations, both of which seem to wear a promising air of persistence.

Coincident with the revival of alumni interest in active chapter affairs annually elicited by football, with its flood of associations, comes an announcement from ex-President Jackson to the effect that the alumni will henceforth undertake to have a representative turnout at every chapter function of general interest, and special emphasis will be laid on rushing affairs and initiation banquets.

We were pleasantly surprised to see Mark Grubbs walk in to lunch yesterday, followed by nine very bright looking young men. We were somewhat relieved to learn that these were not younger Grubbses, although we really had suspected as much from the similarity in their ages. They were, in fact, nine actives from Tau, down from the Pitt-Penn State game, and very properly at the Delt luncheon. Their new chapter house, judging from the photographs they carried, must be a splendid addition to Delt homes, and much credit is due Mark, who was largely responsible for the successful financing which made it a reality.

F. B. DOANE

Seattle Alumni Chapter

This letter will be very largely a recitation of our annual alumni banquet, which was held November 10th, and a warning to local alumni of future events.

As we said, the alumni banquet was held on November 10th at the College Club, following the California-Washington game, and with all due modesty it was some banquet. There were approximately thirty-five men from Gamma Mu Chapter present and some forty odd alumni. Under the active guidance of Bill Molstad, who was christened Harold, an excellent dinner was furnished for the gathering and a good time was had by all.

Some of the mainstays of the toast program flew out of town at the eleventh hour, so that the entertainment feature of the affair was revamped at the last moment, but with Judges Adam Beeler and Malcolm Douglas we were not at a loss for speech makers. An unconfirmed suspicion is going around that Malcolm Douglas's speech, which smacked of the spirit of Armistice Day, was merely a rehearsal of the speech he gave before the American Legion at Aberdeen the following day. If this was the case, we are sure the boys at Aberdeen enjoyed it thoroughly. We were fortunate in having with us H. L. Glenn, Omega Prime, of Iowa State College, class of 1878, whose activity and interest in the Fraternity have not been dimmed by the fifty years which have elapsed since he was initiated.

Thinking of our election, on December 3rd, reminds me that at that time we will have the first of our regular monthly dinners which will be held during the winter and spring. These come on the first Monday of each month and are held at the Gamma Mu chapter house, giving the alumni an opportunity to get acquainted with the boys in the active chapter. An earnest invitation is given to all wandering Delts to attend these affairs and also to drop in on our luncheons held on Thursday each week at Blanc's Cafe.

We have a better spirit and a more active bunch in the association this year than we have ever had, and it is certainly hoped that this spirit may be manifested by closer relationship between them and the active chapter during the coming year.

Attention is again called to our annual spring party, which will be held probably in April, and an urgent invitation given to any and all Delts to be with us at that time. Arch Chapter members please note.

ED JONES

Atlanta Alumni Chapter

Events in the Delta field in Atlanta have been happening so rapidly since school began that the interest of the alumni has had no chance to lag. First was the rush to help Beta Epsilon at Emory get a good bunch of freshmen; then came a general field day and barbecue sponsored by the alumni for the two chapters in Atlanta and their prospects. This was held at Black Rock, and there is still some dispute as to the winners in various contests.

Soon after this we were favored with a visit by former Field Secretary Wray. A record number of alumni attended the luncheon in his honor. Among our other visitors at the regular Monday luncheon was Traveling Secretary Wilson, who was on a tour of inspection through the South.

A dance by Gamma Psi, and another proposed in the near future, will about complete the social engagements of the chapters.

The annual All-State dinner at the Atlanta Athletic Club on the eve of the Georgia vs. Georgia-Tech game, December 7th, will prevent quite a few from making the trip to the installation of the new chapter at Duke. This dinner is an effort of the alumni to assemble at the same table the members of Beta Delta, Gamma Psi, Beta Epsilon, and the Atlanta alumni. It is attended by approximately 250 Delts.

The recent election of officers for the Atlanta Alumni Chapter finds us with a new president, Jake Shalor. George Dowman was elected vice-president; Samuel C. Harrison, Jr., was re-elected secretary; and Jerry White again will see service as the watchdog of our finances.

A cordial invitation is issued to all visiting Delts to drop in on our weekly luncheons, or to call the undersigned at West 1690 for any help or information regarding Delta Tau Delta.

SAM C. HARRISON

Louisville Alumni Chapter

The Louisville Alumni Association has received reports indicating that Delta Epsilon Chapter at the University of Kentucky concluded a successful rushing season. The only Louisville boy taken was Ed Barkley.

Election of officers for 1928-29 was accomplished during the July meeting at the Louisville Boat Club. The machine slate was unanimously approved by twenty-two brethren. Donald McWain, Beta Chi, ex '23, assumed the responsibilities of president, and A. W. Kittinger, Delta Epsilon, '27, became secretary. Raymond G. Clark, Beta Omicron, is retiring president, and R. B. Puckett, Beta Theta, former secretary. The retiring president and C. B. Stansbury, Gamma Xi, navigators extraordinary, gave all the students a motorboat ride on the beautiful Ohio in their jointly-owned craft.

George Horschel, Beta Iota and other places, shortly expects to become president or chairman of the board of directors of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company. George was lucky enough to smash a few ribs or something in an L. & N. train wreck in the Memphis yards. Counting mental anguish and time lost by George, the railroad probably can settle more satisfactorily by making him an officer.

Things have been happening for Stansbury. After assuming management of the bond department of Reynolds Brothers, brokers, the company sold out to C. D. Barney Company, and Bert became manager of the Louisville branch of these New York brokers. Bert is a bear at his business, and that is no bull. Outside business hours Bert does guard duty from midnight to 3 A.M. with a young prospective Delt who recently qualified him as a papa.

William Coleman, Lambda, one of our reliables, is doing a world of good in the real estate business. Senator Alben W. Barkley, Beta Epsilon, was in the city several months as manager of the Democratic presidential campaign in Kentucky. By the way, who brought that up?

Lyons Brown, Beta Iota, thought so much of the chapter that he paid his dues at the first meeting. He is with W. L. Lyons & Company. Our third stock broker member is Marion Cardwell, of J. B. Hilliard Company.

Paul Burlingame, Beta Beta, still is garnering national conventions for Louisville in his role as director-general of the Brown Hotel. Incidentally he is a shining light in Republican politics here.

P. B. McBride, Chi, is one of our newer and more active members. He is vice-president and general manager of the Louisville Enameled Products Company. Morgan Royce, Gamma Eta, Gavin Cochran and Millard Cox, both of Beta Iota, are our barristers.

For lunch when in Louisville, Delts all go to the Colonnade, of which L. S. Thompson, Beta Mu, is manager. Our physicians are Dr. Emmett F. Horine and Dr. E. K. McLain, Gamma Tau.

Not to brag, but we even have journalists. Vance Armentrout, Beta Phi, probably is the best informed man in the state, barring none, on Kentucky's government. After spending fifteen years at Frankfort as legislative and political correspondent, he was promoted to associate editor of The Courier-Journal. Mr. Armentrout is one of Kentucky's best known Rotarians, being past president of the Frankfort Rotary Club. C. Poucher Coleman, Beta Psi, is high on the editorial staff of The Courier-Journal.

Our September 28th meeting was at the hostelry named after Otto Seelbach, Beta Gamma. We had fish. Some of the boys swam out. That's all.

The last meeting was November 2nd. A big turnout, a record for all time, is planned for January 4th. We are expecting a respectable attendance from members of Delta Epsilon at Lexington. Attendance figures will be reported in the March RAINBOW, ye editor not barring fabulous figures.

A. W. KITTINGER

St. Louis Alumni Chapter

Our annual fall meeting was held at the Forest Park Hotel on November 16th. It seems as if the steam-roller tactics developed in our national politics is catching, for the officers of last year were re-elected before anyone could voice a protest.

A very good crowd was present, and all seemed to have a most enjoyable time. We decided to have more evening meetings and to let our various wives and what have you come with us.

Several members of the chapter went over to Columbia to see the Tiger eat Jayhawk on November 24th. The active chapter there is a fine bunch of men. We were welcomed with real Delt spirit. Enough said. Their new house is one of the best on the campus.

Our weekly luncheons are held at the American Annex Hotel on Thursday at 12:15. When in St. Louis, be sure to come around.

McConnell to Head Council

FRANCIS J. McCONNELL

Announcing that Bishop Francis J. McConnell has just been elected president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, succeeding Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, The New York Herald-Tribune adds:

"Bishop McConnell was elected president of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Church a fortnight ago at a meeting of that body in this city. He succeeded Bishop Luther B. Wilson, the former resident Methodist bishop of New York, in this office. For the past eight years Bishop McConnell was Bishop of the Pittsburgh Methodist Area. He was transferred to New York last May by the quadrennial General Methodist Conference at its meetings in Kansas City. He succeeded Bishop Wilson as resident bishop of New York.

"Bishop McConnell is 57 years old. He was born in Grinway, Ohio, and was educated in Ohio Wesleyan University and Boston University. Mrs. McConnell formerly was Miss Eva H. Thomas of Delaware, Ohio.

"Bishop McConnell is the third leader of the Methodist denomination to head the council. He will be the sixth president."

A Compliment to Sewell Avery

SEWELL L. AVERY

Sewell L. Avery's biography is virtually a biography of the United States Gypsum Company, of which Mr. Avery has been president for twenty-three years. The company is the largest concern of its kind in the world; it operates either mines, manufactories, or both, at twenty-eight points in North America, and manufactures forty-one different commodities. Shortly after his graduation Mr. Avery entered the employ of the Alabaster Company, a gypsum producing firm, later serving as secretary of the company, a position he held until 1902, when the Alabaster Company became a part of the United States Gypsum Company. In addition to being a director of the Chicago & Great Western Railroad and the United States Gypsum company, Mr. Avery is a director and member of the executive committee of the Northern Trust Company of Chicago and a director of Armour & Company and The Chicago Daily News. He is actively interested in Chicago's civic and charitable projects, and, above all else, in the general improvement of business conditions. He married Hortense Lenore Wisner in 1898 and there are four children. They reside in Evanston, Illinois.—The Michigan Alumnus.

Dean of Atlanta Cathedral

RAIMUNDO DE OVIES

Dr. Raimundo de Ovies, now chaplain of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., and the new dean of St. Philip's cathedral, succeeding the late Dr. Thomsas H. Johnston, is a clergyman of outstanding leadership both in church and civic affairs of the section.

Throughout his entire ministry he has been interested in civic and sociological work. He was one of the three founders of the Children's Hospital, in Birmingham, Ala. He organized, put into operation, and was named chief probation officer of the juvenile court of Clarksville, Tenn. He was cited by the American Red Cross for conspicuous service among influenza victims during the World war.

Dr. de Ovies has taught drawing and cartooning in high school and in college. He is a lover of the arts, greatly interested especially in painting, music, and civic planning. He is a man of wide culture, familiar with the best painting, sculpture, and architecture of Europe and America.—The Atlanta Journal.

At Head of Curtis Advertising

BETA UPSILON, '15

FRED A. HEALY

Fred A. Healy has become the head of the advertising department of the Curtis publications, that group of periodicals comprising The Country Gentleman, The Ladies Home Journal, and The Saturday Evening Post.

Speaking of his advancement, Tide has to say: "Mr. Healy began his Curtis career in 1917 as a solicitor in the Chicago office. Advancing rapidly, Mr. Healy was made Detroit manager in 1925 and in February, 1928, took over his present position as New York manager. Able, Mr. Healy is also not unaffable; commanding, he can be persuasive as well. Whether his appointment as advertising director will result in a humanizing of the Curtis tradition is a debatable question; certainly no word has come from the Curtis office that would indicate any change of policy from its change in personnel. But not many words ever come from the Curtis office on any topic. The date on which Mr. Healy will assume his new position has not been announced; neither has his successor in the Curtis New York office."

Physician Breaks into Print

BETA, '06

CHARLES F. FINSTERWALD

Dr. C. F. Finsterwald, a native of Rome Township and now a practicing surgeon in New York City, has written an article entitled, "The Patient's Ready, Doctor," which appeared in the September issue of McCall's Magazine.

The article is of unusual interest not only to the practicing physician, but to the public as a whole, in which he describes the progress that has recently been made in administering anesthetics.—An Ohio Newspaper.

President of Mercator International

BETA, '20

JOHN W. GALBREATH

Word was received from Detroit, Wednesday, of the election of John W. Galbreath, 2072 Tremont Road, Upper Arlington, as president of Mercator International, at the annual convention being held there.

Galbreath, who is head of the John W. Galbreath Co., realtors and builders, has been active in the Columbus Mercator Club since its organization five years ago. He is believed to be the youngest national president of a national service club. He is thirty-one years old and has been in the contracting and real estate business since 1920.—The Ohio State Journal.

Elected Captain at Vanderbilt

JOHN NEAL BROWN

John Neal ("Bull") Brown, whose fame as a guard has brought him recognition on several All-American selections, and has practically assured him an All-Southern berth, will lead the 1929 Commodores into the grid wars, his teammates decided last night at the annual Commodores' banquet.

John Brown, back in 1926, was probably the South's greatest guard, but failed of All-Southern recognition because of his sophomoric standing. Absent in 1927 because of ill-health and subsequent scholastic handicaps. John returned in 1928 without losing a step in his stride toward national recognition. In the two years John Brown has faced no foe to whom he has been forced to lower his colors in two campaigns. Even in defeat his glory has been brilliant as against Georgia Tech's great guards, Tennessee's touted "Farmer" Johnson, Colgate's Capt. Dumont, and on down the line.

Brown's qualities of leadership are unquestioned. His jovial, mischief-making fun brings him the friendship of the men with whom he is associated, but once the starting whistle is blown, "Bull" Brown becomes the Berserk, the fighter with the "killer instinct" that carried Dempsey to the heights and makes the difference between mere stardom and greatness. It was over "Bull" Brown that the Commodore backs plunged to victory in each battle except the Tech and Tennessee struggles, and it was John Brown that largely enabled Vanderbilt to gain more than three times as much ground as did the Tennessee stars.—The Nashville Banner.

Motors to Make Europe Prosperous

GAMMA ALPHA, '12

PAUL G. HOFFMAN

The rapid motorization of Europe is the key which will unlock prosperity for Europe just as it has for America, in the opinion of Mr. Paul G. Hoffman, vice-president in charge of sales of the Studebaker Corporation of America, who has arrived here to attend the Paris Salon and confer with Studebaker and Erskine dealers and agents in Europe.

At present there is one automobile for every 150 persons in Europe, as compared to the one to every five in America, but the rapid gain on the Continent augurs well for the future, Mr. Hoffman believes.

In America, he finds, the chief instrument of the quickening process has been the motor-car and the motorization of the United States has brought to Americans a measure of prosperity undreamed of a decade ago. Economists, he said, call the automobile the key to American prosperity.

"At first consideration such a statement seems without foundation, for out of America's one hundred and ten millions of population, only three hundred and twenty-four thousand find direct employment in motor-car manufacturing," Mr. Hoffman said. "But the selling and servicing of motor-cars, the manufacture of parts, tires, and supplies, road building created as a direct result of motor-car ownership, and other allied activities, provide employment for an additional three million seven hundred thousand individuals."—Paris Edition, New York Herald.

Humanizing the Machine

BETA ETA, '89

KENDRIC C. BABCOCK

Commenting on the return to his desk of Dean Kendric C. Babcock, The Daily Illini continues:

What is there about a man's work that raises it above the level of mere routine duty, to be completed and forgotten as soon as possible, to the position wherein it forms the bed-rock of his consciousness, a starting point from which all other forms of activity emanate?

What is there in particular about the position of dean of a college which causes a man to forget the fifteen years spent in its service and to regret the shortness of the four years remaining before his retirement?

To Dean Kendric C. Babcock, of the College of Liberal Arts and Science, it is, to use his own phrase, "humanizing the machine." It was this phase of college administration which fascinated him at the outset of his career here in 1913, when his "machine" was undergoing organization; and it is still this phrase which forms the major interest in his work after fifteen years of operation have insured the efficiency of the system.

When Dean Babcock came to the University in 1913 his "machine," the present college of Liberal Arts and Science, was just emerging from its dual aspect as the College of Arts and the College of Science under the older plan of administration here at the University. The problem at that time was to unite these formerly distinct colleges into one large unit, capable of functioning as a whole, yet embodying all the requisites of the individual parts.

As president of the University of Arizona from 1903 until 1910, the dean had not only witnessed but had had a hand in the shaping of a young state university. The enthusiasm of this endeavor carried over to his work on the Illinois campus, and the newly appointed head of the liberal arts college entered into his work of organizing the new division and watching it grow.

Contacts with the human element of the University have provided Dean Babcock with that lasting joy and enthusiasm in constructive endeavor that has characterized his years of administration. It has not been the mechanical aspects of administration that have inspired him but the people with whom he has been associated with during his years as dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences that has raised his position from one of mere routine to one of dominating purpose.

"The constructive feature of my administrative work has always been the most interesting to me," Dean Babcock stated during the course of a recent interview. "It is this interest in building up that substitutes peace for quarrelling and friendship for bickering."

"The fascination," he continued, "has always been in helping to shape the University, but in this process student life and problems have not been neglected. On the contrary they have been of keenest interest to me, and I have watched more intently the work of Dean Clark than the architectural achievements of James White."

Dean Babcock is the type of man to whom friendship, especially that rare type between student and superior, appeals strongly. Hence it is not surprising that in characterizing the University, the head of the largest college of the institution stresses the freedom, general good fellowship, and spirit of the people with whom he works.

"To an old bachelor like me," he contends, "the friendship which disregards dignities, symbols, and gray hairs is one of the durable satisfactions of my life; and the prospect of losing it is the deepest grief in the thought of retiring in four years."

Friends Honor Will Carleton

WILL CARLETON

Hudson, Mich.,—The memory of Will Carleton, Michigan's poet, was honored yesterday in programs in this city and at the Carleton farm east of town. Residents joined with members of his class at Hillsdale College and others in the day's observance. The program included addresses by James Schermerhorn, of Detroit; Judge Chauncey L. Newcomer, of Bryan, Ohio; Prof. Byron A. Finney, of the University of Michigan, and Dr. Joseph Mauck, president emeritus of Hillsdale College, classmates of the late poet.

After a public meeting in the Hudson High School auditorium a pilgrimage was made to Carleton's birthplace, which is marked by an imposing boulder facing the Carleton highway, where the farmhouse and other buildings are kept in their original form. Forty rods to the east stands the white frame schoolhouse where Carleton's education began. A wreath was placed on the memorial boulder by Gardener Blossom and Eveline Sturgis of Hudson, great grand nephew and great grand niece of the poet. Byron A. Finney, in an address at the home-stead, said that Carleton had preserved the spirit of the pioneers and that through his poems he always would be an inspiration to growing youth. Mr. Finney gave a short biographical sketch of the poet.

The fund which is being raised for the perpetual care of the poet's grave in Brooklyn, New York, was increased to $564. The committee reported that a total of $800 is needed. Mr. Finney, writing the Carleton biography, said that it probably would be published within a few months.—The Detroit News.

Singer Attains Distinction

GAMMA EPSILON, '09

BURNET C. TUTHILL

In the chorus of the Cincinnati May Festival Society, which will assist the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra in the presentation of the program under the auspices of the Cincinnati Institute of Fine Arts, in Music Hall, next Saturday evening, there will be one member singing in the Mahler symphony who was also a member of the first chorus in the United States to sing this great work. He is Burnet C. Tuthill, manager of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

The Mahler Symphony was first presented in this country in 1908 by the New York Philharmonic Society, and Gustav Mahler, himself, conducted. A manuscript for piano of the orchestral score was prepared for the rehearsals by Kurt Schind-ler, who accompanied. This manuscript is now in Cincinnati and is in Tuthill's possession.

When J. Herman Thuman, secretary of the May Festival Society, heard that Tuthill had been a member of the original chorus to sing this work under the composer, twenty years ago, he engaged him at once for the production.

Tuthill has been tremendously interested in the rehearsals of the Mahler symphony, since he recalls with such vividness the rehearsals which were held twenty years ago under Mahler himself.—The Cincinnati Times-Star.

Hiking Around the World

JOHN MARSHALL

With $100 to spend, Johnny Marshall of Chicago has travelled 25,000 miles, been in jail once, kept out of jail six times, landed lately in Sydney, Australia, and got himself into The Sydney Telegraph as follows:

Seeing the world in 21 months with $100 is what John Marshall, a twenty-two-year-old philosophy graduate from the University of Chicago, is doing. He is now in Sydney.

Marshall, whose father is a wealthy business man in Chicago, left his university at the beginning of this year. He travelled 6000 miles in America, and it cost him nothing. He employed the art of "lift-hiking." All drivers of vehicles were his victims. He hailed motorists, luggage carriers, vegetable wagons and so "hiked" his way along the 6000 miles of American roadway.

But Marshall wanted to go farther abroad. So, with jaunty step, he walked the gangway of the Malolo, bound for Honolulu. He had no ticket. He was going to stow away, but not in the traditional fashion. He travelled saloon and played an engaging game of hide and seek with the bedroom steward. In this intriguing pastime he was helped by Richard Barthelmess, the movie actor, who was Honolulu-bound for his honeymoon.

This enterprising young American spent a month in the Hawaiian Isles, and then decided that a trip to Yokohama would do him good.

He met the chief steward, and introduced a conversation on the matter of stowaways.

The chief steward struck a jarring note. "They get three years," he said.

Marshall saw a dramatic possibility "Well, I'm one. What are you going to do with me?"

They made him work—deck-washing. He had a few hours' glimpse of Yokohama, and did some more deck-washing on the way back to Honolulu.

Then young Marshall decided to try another form of ocean travel. He paid a third-class fare on the Aorangi, got off at Auckland, and "hiked" his way over 2000 miles of New Zealand country. The North island cost him 4/6, and the south island 2/ less.

Marshall made a further indiscretion of paying a third-class fare from Auckland to Sydney. But no more. He says he has wasted £25 on expenses since the beginning of the year, and there must be no further waste.

He leaves Sydney to-morrow hiking his way to Melbourne.

Some Cheer Leader, This!

BETA TAU, '29

CARL OLSON

Football fans are coming, under the pressure of intelligent sports writers, to recognize the tremendous importance of line play to the game. With the growth of America's intercollegiate football as a great public spectacle, others, still unheralded, are contributing to the pleasure of the gridiron audience.

Such is the work of Carl Olson, senior in the University, who has charge of the cheering section. Quietly going about his way, asking no help, asking no praise, doing his job, seeking no reward, Olson has been performing one of the finest types of service to the institution in which he is but one of 6,000 students.

Laying out the plans for each stunt requires hours of work. Olson has given it regularly and uncomplainingly. But he has not been satisfied with merely doing the routine work. He has developed a wealth of new ideas for stunts with the cards in the cheering section. Each one has meant more work for him. Each has meant more enjoyment for the spectators. And supporting his unsung but significant efforts are the 800 students in the cheering section who, without an opportunity to see the stunts, execute Olson's plans to give pleasure to Nebraska's football audiences.—A Nebraska newspaper.

CLARENCE PUMPHREY

What's in a name?

Very little, if there is a photograph and, particularly, one clipped from The Enquirer.

Such a photograph pasted to cardboard cut the size of a private mailing card, bearing in addition only the written words "to," "Cincinnati, Ohio," and the initials "J. L. C."

was delivered from the Cincinnati postoffice yesterday to Clarence Pumphrey, Associate District Manager of the Aetna Life Insurance Company, Cincinnati.

Mr. Pumphrey called on Postmaster Arthur L. Behymer immediately to congratulate him upon the efficiency of his organization and to compliment him upon the fact that the card was delivered on the very first delivery after its receipt from Lima, Ohio.

The photograph of Mr. Pumphrey appeared in a recent issue of The Enquirer and was clipped therefrom and sent to Mr. Pumphrey by J. L. Cable, Congressman-elect from the Fourth Ohio Congressional District, Lima, Ohio, an old friend.—The Cincinnati Enquirer.

Playing Great Game for Wave

BETA XI, '31

EARL EVANS

Moved from a sub-guard position to a regular center, Carl Evans of the Greenies has been one of the outstanding players in the Tulane line this year.

"Cal" has the finest personality a football player could have. Possessed of a stout heart, this chap literally plays himself out in the game. Whenever Earl is taken out, it's because he's exhausted. He gives everything he has on every play.

His fiery display in the Tulane forward wall has time and again helped stem the tide. Evans, in an Associated Press story printed elsewhere on this page, is listed among the best centers in the South.—The New Orleans Item-Tribune.

THE DELTA AUTHORS

OMEGA, '02

HERBERT ADAMS GIBBONS

The New Map of South America. By Herbert Adams Gibbons. The Century Company, New York.

It is difficult to overestimate the value of this latest volume, in Dr. Gibbons's "New Map" series, to an American's pertinent knowledge of his world. Intellectually, the relation of the average citizen of the United States to the southern continent is peculiar: claiming for his country the right of an exclusive benevolence, sentimentally interested in Pan-Americanism and commercially alert to the need for South American raw materials and the importance of South American markets, vaguely resentful of what he hears of Latin-American resentment against the United States, the "man on the street" in this country has probably a less differentiated knowledge of South America than of any other continent. We probably distinguish much more clearly between the different countries, civilizations, colonial possessions and spheres of influence in Asia and Africa than in that other half of our own hemisphere where we would condemn any European interference as "dangerous to our peace and safety." Instead of a collection of individual countries, each with its own special conditions and problems, we visualize South America as a continent merely.

And this is precisely what, after reading Dr. Gibbons's book, we can never do again.

Taking up each of the nations of South America in a separate chapter, Dr. Gibbons considers its geography, its history, its climate and natural resources, the character of its population; he presents the conditions of life and work, the problems, the political entity and the ambitious and probable future of each country and its relations with its neighbors, with the United States and with the countries of Europe. Writing clearly, vividly, making his picture forceful and dramatic without sensationalism or straining after effect, he fixes the South American nations upon our minds, not all together, but one by one.

Argentina, that strong and rich nation whose diplomats have been "asserting the great-power attitude for more than thirty years," shares with Uruguay and Chile the distinction of an enormous preponderance of pure Caucasian blood. Yet Argentina has a vast European immigration and a real immigration problem, while Chile, a country of such peculiar geography that "its existence as a State, politically and economically, is a miracle," has attracted few recent European settlers and its nationalism has developed along lines that resemble the older nations of Europe far more closely than its neighbors in the New World. Brazil, larger than the United States of America, capable of sustaining a population of 200,000,000, of all the Latin-American States the one most consistently friendly to ourselves, has prospered through the centuries in a series of "booms" due to the exploitation of one natural product after another, from diamonds to coffee; but much of its vast area is at present uninhabitable, and the development of its resources presents challenging problems. Peru, whose very name has captivated the imagination of men, from the followers of Pizarro to the readers of Thornton Wilder, has a population largely Indian and 80 per cent illiterate, and few schools; and yet its standards of education and culture among the upper classes is so high that it has contributed much to the taste and knowledge of the world at large, probably ever since the first institution of higher learning in the Western Hemisphere was established in Peru in 1551. Uruguay, the smallest of the South American republics, is also the only one which has no tropical region, and its civilization has profited out of proportion to its size: it is not only the greatest cattle country in the world, but possesses one of the leading universities in the two western continents.

Naturally, Dr. Gibbons has much to say of our own relations with our southern neighbors, and he writes in the spirit of fairness toward his own country and others, seeing the difficulties, the mistakes, the wrong assumptions, yet seeing, too, where the effort has been righteous and where the result has been good. He has an illuminating chapter on the Monroe Doctrine and another on Pan-Americanism, and he discusses also the Tacna-Arica dispute. But important as the book is in explanation and commentary, it is still more important in its readable presentation of a wealth of basic fact. Every American who reads it will be master of definite information about the countries of South America; that is why it ought to be read by every American.—The New York Herald-Tribune.

BETA CHI,

Spy and Counter-Spy. By Richard Wilmer Rowan. The Viking Press, New York.

Beyond question this is an able history of the intricacies of espionage. . . . This book is not merely a history of espionage systems within our own memory; it covers a wider field. Mr. Rowan is an expert on his subject. He has given us a book that is of more than transitory importance.—The Boston Transcript.

The seamier side of the spy question is exposed in Mr. Rowan's book, and historians will have to revise their histories in the light of this acute study of a neglected phase of war. Historians are not to blame for this neglect since spies love to work in the dark, but the author is certainly to be congratulated for illuminating their devious ways. . . . He displays with cold logic and great industry the evil necessity for spies."—The Outlook and Independent.

This is probably the first book which has told the "whole glorious history of deceit." Mr. Rowan relates without moral prejudice and with slight if any national prejudice the rise of espionage and counter-espionage from the days of Moses. . . . A grand, absorbing and valuable piece of work."—The Los Angeles Record.

The Outline of Secret History. A matter-of-fact exposition which is more absorbing than fiction. . . . the raw material for a dozen thrillers; an essay on the highly organized business of international plotting. . . . A history of secret history, recommended to all hardened souls who think that most detective stories and all peace treaties are just a little silly.—Life.

THE DELTA MAIL BOX

Denver, Colorado

The Editor of THE RAINBOW:

I sat up all night to write this article for you, and I hope it chokes you.

Fraternally,

LYDIA PINKHAM

Lincoln, Nebraska

The Editor of THE RAINBOW:

We are proud to note that we lead the list of picture contributors for last year with Pittsburgh. Sit down and pen a line to Pittsburgh and tell them we intend to lead this year—alone, please.

Would you like a group and write-up of our honor men? How about a set of campus views? How about a write-up of the chapter? How about anything? Let us know what you want or what you will use, and we will fire it to you. We love publicity, and we love to brag.

And, do all traveling secretaries have to come from Beta Kappa Chapter just because Ralph Wray did? See page 52 November RAINBOW, please.

Fraternally,

AUSTIN D. STURTEVANT
President of Beta Tau Chapter

We love this letter. It's the camel's tonsils. What we like most of all is the reference to the mistake in the Directory about Bob Davenport's chapter, and the reason we like that so much is that Frank Hemmick sent that particular copy to the printer. Dear Frank! He must be getting old. And he's the one that called that last number of THE RAINBOW the Fish Number.

United States District Court,
Los Angeles, California

The Editor of THE RAINBOW:

The November number has just reached me, and I'm reading it with a great deal of pleasure and many mingled sentiments.

It gives me peculiar pleasure to know that the next Karnea is to be held in Indianapolis. The first Karnea I ever knew was held at Indianapolis. If my present summer plans do not miscarry, I expect to be present on the occasion of the Karnea next August.

It was a great pleasure to me to note the picture showing Roy West taking the oath of office as Secretary of the Interior. We pointed with great pride to Roy West at the University of Wisconsin when I was a student there because he had been elected City Attorney of Chicago. I have kept in contact with him ever since.

With kindest regards,

EDWARD J. HENNING,
Beta Gamma, '94

Madison, Wisconsin

The Editor of THE RAINBOW:

We of Beta Gamma wish to acknowledge and express our sincere thanks for the issues of THE RAINBOW Pictorial.

As our rushing here at Wisconsin has not yet begun, we are unable to estimate their value. However, after having looked through them ourselves, we know that they are going to be one of the greatest assets we could have in rushing for Delta Tau Delta.

Fraternally,

Beta Gamma of Delta Tau Delta

GAMMA SIGMA, '66

ROBERT H. NEGLEY

Robert Heberton Negley died in January, 1928, at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

BETA PSI, '72

MORRIS W. PHILLIPS

Morris W. Phillips, aged seventy-four, died at Lafayette, Indiana, on July 18, 1928, following an illness of more than two years. He had spent most of his life in newspaper work, and was at the time of his last illness connected with The Lafayette Journal-Courier. In the General Catalogue of 1917 Mr. Phillips's name is the first in the roll of Beta Psi.

BETA PSI

IRVING A. DETCHON

Dr. Irving A. Detchon, another Wabash Delt, and, curiously enough, the second initiate to appear on the Beta Psi rolls, died last summer at St. Vincent's Hospital, Indianapolis, at the age of seventy-five. He practiced medicine for a short time, and then went into the production of medicines as a manufacturing chemist. He was also actively interested in the industrial life of Crawfordsville.

LAMBDA, '96

ABRAM GOODMAN

Major Abram Goodman, aged fifty-seven, for thirty years connected with the Nashville, Tennessee, office of the United States Engineers, died on November 8, 1928, following a heart seizure.

"Major Goodman held a commission in the engineers reserve corps. He was a Mason and a Shriner and a member of the Nashville Army and Navy club, B'nai B'rith, national Jewish organization, the Vanderbilt chapter of Delta Tau Delta, national fraternity.

"He was a native of Nashville and was educated in the public schools here, later graduating in law at Vanderbilt University. For a few years he practiced law here, but soon became connected with the engineer's office in which he spent the greater part of his life. Maj. John M. Conklin, in charge of the local office in which Major Goodman was chief clerk at the time of his death, in paying tribute to Major Goodman, said his long connection with the office here and his devotion to duty had made him a valuable asset."

BETA ALPHA, '06

WORTH BREHM

Worth Brehm, aged forty-four, illustrator of boy's books, died November 28, 1928, at the Norwalk (Connecticut) Hospital, after a short illness. Among his better known works were the illustrations for the Mark Twain edition of "Penrod," by Tarkington.

BETA BETA, '25

GEORGE GRISWOLD BEEMER

George Griswold Beemer, aged twenty-five, of Indianapolis, died on October 29, 1928, at the Putnam County Hospital after an illness of two months with cancer.

Mr. Griswold graduated from DePauw with honors and was much interested in athletics and his fraternity. Following graduation he became a salesman for the Crane Company of Indianapolis and remained with that firm until his death. He was a member of the Masons, the First Christian Church of Greencastle, and Delta Tau Delta.

"Beta Beta has lost one of her most loyal supporters among the younger alumni," says Wallace Weatherholt, chapter adviser. "Rare devotion to his parents, his cheerfulness and thoroughness of work as an undergraduate, his wholesome attitude towards his fellow students, his zest for study and his whole-hearted support of the worth-while things of college life are among the many reasons why we cherish his memory. Manliness and loyalty are among the qualities that endeared him to our members. His influence will long be felt in our home."

EPSILON, '77

GEORGE LYONS JOCELYN

George L. Jocelyn, aged seventy-six, died on October 5, 1928, at Albion, Michigan, from the infirmities of old age. He was a charter member of Epsilon, and his father, the Rev. Robert E. Jocelyn, was for several years president of Albion College.

PI (RAINBOW), '76

JAMES S. SEXTON

James S. Sexton died early in November, 1928, of heart failure. Recounting the story of his death, one of the newspapers said:

"The University of Mississippi sustained a distinct loss in the death of Judge J. S. Sexton, of Hazlehurst, member of the university board of trustees, who fell dead Saturday night in Memphis. This was the sentiment expressed by Chancellor Alfred Hume upon hearing of the death of the Hazlehurst lawyer, whom he characterized as one of the strongest friends possessed by Ole Miss.

"No one was more interested in the welfare of the university than was Judge Sexton," Chancellor Hume said. "He was active in support of every measure which he believed would be of benefit to this institution, and Ole Miss feels that she has suffered a distinct loss in the untimely passing of one whom she had learned to love as a personal friend."

Judge Sexton's connection with the University of Mississippi began nearly sixty years ago when he was a student here.

ERNEST R. MAY

The newspapers of Flint, Michigan, united in expressing the loss to their city incident upon the death of Ernest R. May, who died last June 15th. He had been for two years in charge of the band and orchestra of the Emerson Junior High School of that city.

"Delts of Stanford add the remembrance of a little man," writes Charles J. Crary, "who was our leader almost from freshman days. First he won us as a better-than-ordinary college pianist and house orchestra leader; then he was the house manager who wiped out a debt of many years' standing, and when head of the house started the fund for our present house. In the University he was prominent not only in musical work, but also in dramatic and newspaper lines, being editor of the Quad annual and a member of practically every honor society.

"After college came real life, and here May left music behind to become first a banker and later a successful lumber dealer with yards in Flint and other cities. Then fate intervened. Loss of health sent him to Arizona; then his only son died; and while he was absent seeking health his business went down. But Ernest May was not down. He cleaned up all his obligations, and then in his own words, he owed the business world nothing, and it owed him nothing. So he went back to music, and in this he was again successful. 'Never have I been happier,' he said. Surely a story of come-back and of winning courage!"

Chapter House Burned at Dartmouth

The fact that this page was not filled with early copy enables THE RAINBOW to give the Fraternity the bad news that on January 3rd fire of unknown origin entirely destroyed the Shelter of Chapter Gamma Gamma, at Dartmouth.

Members of the chapter were away on vacation, and the fire had gained great headway before it was discovered.

The house, which was a brick structure erected about five years ago, was one of the newest and finest fraternity houses at Dartmouth.

Although details of what the chapter plans have not come to this office, it is safe to say that a bigger and more beautiful Shelter will shortly adorn the Dartmouth campus, and THE RAINBOW now bespeaks the sympathetic consideration of all the Gamma Gamma alumni.

Sigma Nu includes in its national code of chapter house rules the provision that "The hazing of initiates or their rough or undignified treatment during or in connection with the ceremony of initiation is positively forbidden. Any chapter whose members shall be found guilty of such treatment of initiates shall be subject to such punishment as the High Council shall determine."—The Phi Mu Delta Triangle.

* * * *

Moving to abolish all of the so-called "honorary societies" from the campus, eleven leading fraternities at the University of Nebraska withdrew some forty memberships which were held in these organizations, and refused to accept new memberships tendered them this year. Professional and literary societies were not included in the list—The Pentagon of Phi Omega Pi.

* * * *

The Sigma King is a new college fraternity originating at the University of Georgia. To become a member one must be a colored person of prominent family connections, must be a butler at a recognized Greek letter fraternity house, must never have missed a football game in Athens, Georgia (seat of university), since beoming a fraternity butler, and must wear only college clothes acquired from college men.—The Shield & Diamond of Pi Kappa Alpha.

* * * *

If you're not afraid to face old man Truth, have the pledges write an unsigned letter before initiation telling the good and bad qualities of the brothers, being specific in their references. Read these in chapter meeting and see yourself as others see you. You'll get many tips for improvements—and some flattery, which is relished by the best of men.—The Sigma Phi Sigma Monad.

"DAD"

He may wear a last year's straw hat, his finger-nails may need manicuring; his vest may hang a little loose, and his pants may bag at the knees; his face may show signs of a second day's growth, but don't call him "the old man." He's your father.

For years he has been rushing around to get things together. Never once has he failed to do the right thing by you. He thinks you are the greatest boy on earth, bar none, even though you plaster your hair back, wear smart clothes, smoke cigarettes, and fail to bring home a cent. He is the man who won the love and life partnership of the greatest woman on earth, your mother.

He is "some" man, and not "the old man." If you win as good a wife as he did, you will have to go some, boy—The Hexagon of Alpha Chi Sigma.

Before Commander Richard E. Byrd sailed for the Antarctic and points south, he had been urged, beseeched, and requested to take along some 1,500 emblems, flags, and insignia of orders, civic, social, and fraternal. The astute Mr. Byrd, however, rejected virtually all. Aside from the Stars and Stripes he carried with him only the badge of his fraternity, Kappa Alpha (S), and the flag of the Salvation Army.

* * * *

In every chapter hall of Delta Sigma Pi there hangs an official notice with reference to that fraternity's regulation on violation of the Eighteenth Amendment.—The Palm of Alpha Tau Omega.

* * * *

The tragic accident which occurred recently during such horseplay in the initiation of another fraternity should warn us that the time has come to do away with all this disgusting business which is quite as damaging to those who carry it out as to those upon whom it is done.—The Circle of Zeta Psi.

* * * *

Convention time approaches (reads an editorial in the December, 1926, issue) when brothers from North, East, South and West gather together to receive inspiration and to contribute judgment to the management of Pi Kappa Alpha. The Supreme Council will carry out the policies adopted during the three-day period. It, therefore, behooves the delegates for the sake of our entire fraternity to employ their time to the best advantage. Play was invented to assist work. A good social program is planned for this reason, notwithstanding the adage, "There is no fun like work."

Although the world at large does not manifest as keen an interest in the real work of fraternities, it does not hesitate to broadcast and criticize fraternal social activities especially when the form of play is not in accord with the ideals which fraternity men are supposed to represent.

In the past it had to be an unusually gay party for the newspapers to take notice of it, but nowadays these parties are looked upon as "news," so that the slightest irregularity warrants the use of black type and scare heads. Likewise in the days of old, excessive drinking seldom received attention unless other factors were involved, but now the "drys" want everything brought to light so as to arrest the cause and the "wets" desire a full exposition to illustrate the ineffectiveness of prohibition. Hence, the whole world knows about the party.

Further, there is a big difference between moral and legal offenses. Now that drinking, by virtue of our constitution, falls, in the latter class, a sip of sweet nectar from the cup of Bacchus cannot but help make reporters sharpen their pencils.

Can we, therefore, afford to take a chance and reflect discredit on the Greek letter system by provoking unfortunate publicity? We have much work to do and most of the pre-war stuff, the kind that would not make a fellow see pink elephants or leave him in darkness, is no more.

"Drink to me only with thine eyes" and park your flasks at home.—The Shield & Diamond of Pi Kappa Alpha.

* * * *

The death of a fraternity pledge as a result of hell week activities at the University of Texas this September has directed much unfavorable criticism toward fraternity initiation methods.

The mock initiation, the only means by which outsiders can judge fraternity rites, gives them a picture which is not only distasteful, but for which they can see no justification. And serious-minded Greek letter men are wondering if such practices are justified. They want to know if hell week really accomplishes anything to make the neophyte a better member, and if there is any such result, whether it could not better be accomplished by some other means.

Arizona Alpha chapter of Phi Delta Theta fraternity is one of the leaders in abolishing completely the mock initiation. The reasons for which the Arizona men doomed hell week are that it is in no way in keeping with the spirit of initiation, that it detracts from the high ideals and purposes of the fraternity that the beauty and impressiveness of the ceremony is hampered by crude physical punishments, and that no brother would want a new member to judge the fraternity by the impressions gained during hell week. They decided that the initiation, which takes so much of the actives' time, should use such time to some worth-while end.

Many have advocated a "mild initiation," and most chapters believe that their hell week is mild. But the Arizona chapter decided that there is no half-way ground. In their fight to abolish the practice they found that most of the objection came from the younger men, who said, "I got it and I want to pass it on."

An article in Banta's Greek Exchange declares that hell week not only creates a bad impression of sororities and fraternities, but that it is a relic of barbarism.

President Murlin of De Pauw University said, apropos of hell week, that "the fraternity ideal has fallen to an unfortunate level."

The Ohio State Lantern, in an editorial on the subject, suggests that, if hell week really is a noble test of character and courage, it should be a matter of boasting during rush week, and to parents.

Dr. Alfred Hume, president of the University of Mississippi, states his opinion, "After all, fraternities and sororities were conceived in dignity and conservatism. Why brand this conception with even a suggestion of hell week?"—The Sigma Phi Sigma Monad.

Washington.—Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, of which President Coolidge and his son John are members of the Amherst chapter, will build a $295,000 international headquarters temple on grounds just acquired here, at Sixteenth and U Streets and New Hampshire Avenue.

Harvey Wiley Corbett, a New York City architect, will have charge of the construction. Mr. Corbett, who is an alumnus of the University of California chapter, drew the plans for the George Washington Masonic Memorial at Alexandria and also is architect for the Masonic Temple which will be built on Temple Heights, on Connecticut Avenue.

Mr. Corbett's design calls for a three-story building of Grecian design with Ionian columns rising two stories. George F. Snyder, Washington attorney and international secretary of the fraternity who made the announcement of the project, said that the temple will be constructed either of marble or limestone. On the first floor will be the office of the fraternity. On the second floor will be a museum for memorabilia, which has been collected by the fraternity since its founding in 1848, at what was then Washington College; a library, a board room, and an assembly hall. Filing and archives rooms will be on the third floor.

Ulysses' fame made
at the Olympus club.
Yet all persuasion
The story goes that Penelope one day admired a Balfour badge. That is how Ulysses went Olympian and why, perhaps, they both lived happily ever after.

Eleventh (1927) Edition

BAIRD'S MANUAL
of American College Fraternities

Edited by FRANCIS W. SHEPARDSON

FIRST published in 1879 by William Raimond Baird, the eleventh edition is revised and enlarged so that it is complete and up-to-date.

The page size is larger and the book is in better proportion than previous editions. It contains histories of all of the fraternities, a general story of the Greek letter movement, constitutions of the various interfraternity organizations and many statistics and features of great interest.
