The Delta Creed

- I BELIEVE in Delta Tau Delta for the education of youth and the inspiration of maturity, so that I may better learn and live the truth.
- I BELIEVE in Delta Tau Delta as a shrine of international brotherhood: her cornerstone friendship, her foundation conscience, her columns aspiration, her girders self-restraint, her doorway opportunity, her windows understanding, her buttresses loyalty, her strength the Everlasting Arms.
- I BELIEVE in Delta Tau Delta as an abiding influence to help me do my work, fulfill my obligations, maintain my self-respect, and bring about that happy life wherein I may more truly love my fellow men, serve my country, and obey my God.

One Moment, Please

It would be difficult to find in Delt history a three-month period of greater significance than the one which this number of THE RAINBOW chronicles. The re-establishment of Iota Chapter, the Division Conferences, Founders Day celebrations, The Fischbach Residency Foundation, literally hundreds of college men being initiated into Delta Tau Delta—all are factors which have contributed to the increasing stature of the Fraternity.

The ceremonies at Lansing, Michigan, were unique for their inspiration. Out of this event came several fine Delt speeches, two of which are reproduced in this issue. President McCracken's remarks made at the Iota installation banquet appear on "The President's Page." A graphic account of "The Heritage of Delta Tau Delta" was drawn by Charles T. Boyd. We recommend both of these for your reading pleasure.

Delta Tau Delta and one other fraternity share the distinction of having the most members (five) in the present United States Senate. It will be surprising to some to learn, in addition, that there are seven Delts in the House of Representatives. On Page 133 Earle Chesney gives us an interesting thumbnail sketch of these twelve Delt statesmen.

The "Economic Life" series is resumed herewith. Charles F. Axelson describes with authority the inducements of the life insurance field.

Giving honor to some of the undergraduate Delts who have excelled in scholastic achievement, this issue features photographs of several members in Phi Beta Kappa and Tau Beta Pi. It should be noted here that the response of undergraduate RAINBOW correspondents to requests for copy and photographs has been overwhelming. Although it has been impossible to make use of all material submitted, we have tried to select impartially that which will give the widest coverage and will be of greatest interest to our readers.

Iota Chapter Re-established

MANY CONGRATULATIONS AND OUR BEST WISHES FOR A SUCCESSFUL FUTURE. NICE GOING IOTA.

Scores of such wires poured into East Lansing, Michigan, on February 28 when Iota Chapter was ceremoniously re-established at Michigan State College.

"Congratulations," wired Gamma Nu. "As Maine goes, so goes the nation. . . ."—which is no exaggeration. The three hundred and fifty Delts who gathered at Lansing to witness and participate in the re-establishment of a chapter whose roots reach down three-quarters of a century made the Hotel Olds look like the scene of a national convention.

There were twenty-nine different chapters represented. Kappa (Hillsdale), Epsilon (Albion), and Delta (Michigan) came en masse. Western Reserve, Ohio State, Purdue, and Pittsburgh sent personal representatives. Wabash and DePauw came through with beautiful floral pieces. Detroit, Battle Creek, Cleveland, Lansing, Kansas City, and Toledo alumni chapters forwarded delegates. Even Delts Bob Bolce and Ralph Bosche, of Bowling Green local Kappa Tau, made the trip. Telegrams from every corner of the nation kept the wires hot. The whole Fraternity was looking to Michigan that day.

OLDEST AND NEWEST

It was Delta Tau Delta's first post-war installation. More than that, it meant that Delta Tau Delta became at once the oldest and the newest fraternity on the Michigan State campus. Iota Chapter, pioneer of the Greek-letter system at MSC, began auspiciously in 1872 and continued until 1897. Bridging a gap of fifty years, February's event marked the revival of a chapter whose byword for twenty-five years had been achievement, who produced two Presidents of the Fraternity, a Treasurer, a member of the Distinguished Service Chapter, and scores of loyal alumni.

February 28 was a day packed with excitement. From ten in the morning until five in the afternoon Epsilon, Kappa, and Delta Chapters in turn administered initiation rites to thirty-two members of local Omega Alpha. Another thirty became proud Delt pledges. Dr. Howard P. Fischbach, a Delt who has helped install many chapters, and Edgar B. Lincoln, chapter adviser of Kappa and former Division President, assisted the initiating teams. Delt alumni were obviously impressed by the excellent manner in which these chapters performed the Ritual.

INSTALLATION BANQUET

The celebration reached its peak with the installation banquet in the ballroom of the Hotel Olds. Purple, white, and gold backdrops proclaimed the re-establishment of Iota. Spontaneous singing and informal camaraderie kindled the Delt spirit that is so characteristic of such gatherings. Trios from Iota and Epsilon and Kappa's sextet provided excellent entertainment. Delta's glee club, performing with Fred Waring precision, brought rounds of applause. The golden square never gleamed more brightly.

Honor guests at the speakers' table and just as jubilant as any of the new initiates were three members of the old Iota—Thomas A. Saylor, '87, William G. Merritt, '93, and Harry L. Chamberlain, '96.

Presiding at the banquet, Marvin F. Cotes, executive vice-president of Motor Wheel Corporation and president of the Lansing Alumni Chapter, presented the toastmaster. Norman MacLeod, past President and toastmaster extraordinary, set the program off at a good clip with introductions of distinguished guests—and there were many.

The speakers line-up was loaded with talent. Dr. John A. Hannah, President of Michigan State College, welcomed the new chapter, stating, "We pledge to you every manner of co-operation." "Michigan State is proud of its fraternities," he added; "they play an important and constructive part in our educational plan. . . . Iota will be a continuous credit to Michigan State and Delta Tau Delta."

Welcoming Iota into the Northern Division, William H. Martindill, Nome President, said, "To welcome a new chapter and a new group of brothers into the bonds of Delta Tau Delta is one of the greatest joys of membership. . . . I salute you and give you a hearty

Twelve Delts in Eightieth Congress

By EARLE D. CHESNEY, George Washington, '24

Director, Congressional Liaison Service

Know your Delts in the Eightieth Congress. To single out any one member as being the foremost statesman of the Delt delegation would give rise to a heated debate. In order to curb any uprisings from those chapters whose native sons were not given full recognition, I shall give a thumbnail sketch of each of our brother Delts and let you be the judge.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, Emory, '00 (Democrat), Senate minority leader, formerly Senate majority leader, held the most important position in the U. S. Senate in that of Majority Party (Democratic) Leader. He was elected to the House of Representatives of the United States Congress in 1913, where he remained for thirteen years, and then was elected to the Senate.

Foreseeing the probability of the United States taking part in the war, Senator Barkley in 1940 headed the administration forces which obtained passage of the Selective Service Act for military training. The following year he steered through the Senate the

SENATOR BARKLEY

Lend-Lease Bill to send food and supplies to the Allies. A long list of wartime legislative acts followed under Senator Barkley's leadership.

As Senate majority leader in the months following the war, he had the difficult job of shepherding support for essential administration measures and pushing them through the Senate—a job which requires the able leadership he possesses. He was one of a committee requested by General Eisenhower to go to Europe to investigate the atrocities in the concentration camps in Germany, and was chairman of the Senate Pearl Harbor investigation committee and member of the Finance and Foreign Service Committee.

Senator Harley Martin Kilgore, West Virginia, '14 (Democrat), had a background of public service long before he came to the United States Senate, first, as an officer in World War I and as a judge of the Raleigh Criminal Court. Meting out punishment was to Senator Kilgore less important than rehabilitating the men, women, and children who had violated the law. Many of those brought before the court were young people who found his methods unorthodox but phenomenally successful and made him known all over the state. He was one of the leaders in establishing the famous "Boys State" in West Virginia, promoting industrial trade schools for boys and proving that juvenile delinquency can be wiped out only if it is tackled with wisdom and good will. With this background of experience, he went on to tackle still wider fields of responsibility in Washington, after his election in the U. S. Senate in 1940. In the past six years he has piled up more first-rate achievements than most Senators could boast of if they stayed in office a lifetime.

An unusual honor and opportunity was given to Senator Kilgore when he was a "freshman" Senator. He was appointed to the Senate Committee investigating the Defense Program, then called the "Truman Committee," because its chairman was the man who is now President. This Committee saved the American people countless millions of dollars by exposing waste, inefficiency, and graft in the vast defense construction and armament program which, belatedly, was getting under way before this country was in the war.

This Committee was doing a useful and necessary job by exposing faults and misdeeds after they had happened, but it could not do enough to prevent their happening again. As a first step toward remedying this situation, Senator Kilgore introduced a bill to set up an office of Technical and Scientific Mobilization. Congress was slow to act on this bill and due to the urgency of such legislation, President Roosevelt adopted its main proposals and by "executive order" set up the Office of War Mobilization. Senator Kilgore is a member of the Armed Service and Judicial Committee.

Senator Raymond Earl Baldwin, Wesleyan, '16 (Republican), was for three terms Governor of Connecticut. He is serving his first term in the U. S. Senate, but already has established himself as a leader of the freshman Republicans of the Eightieth Congress and has been prominently mentioned as a Republican dark horse candidate for President. Such an unusual reputation must be deserved; therefore, take a look at his achievements prior to his election to the U. S. Senate.

He was nominated by the Republican Party and was elected Governor of Connecticut in 1938. During his first term as Governor, in 1939 and 1940, he compiled one of the most outstanding records of any Governor in Connecticut history. High lights of that administration include the establishment of the first defense council in the country and the first job training program, which was so successful that the Federal Government adopted the plan and put it into operation throughout the country. Labor received more progressive legislation which included an anti-injunction bill, the redefinition of conspiracy laws, increased benefits under compensation laws, and the first comprehensive pension system for state employees. He established a system of compulsory annual audits of state and town books, reformed the minor court system, providing uniform laws and procedure. He established the State Development Commission and the Aeronautical Development Commission to assist industry, agriculture, labor, and recreation. These two state departments did much to assist Connecticut industry in the change-over from peacetime to defense and war production.

Two and a half years before the United States entered the past war, Senator Baldwin reorganized the state military system, put the National Guard on the alert, and brought it to its full physical strength so that, when it was called into federal service, it was one of the outstanding units in the country. Under his leadership, also, the State Defense Council became recognized as one of the foremost in the country.

He succeeded in balancing the budget in depression years without adding to taxes and planned and sponsored legislation for new bridges at Hartford and New London which have since been built and are regarded as outstanding improvements in the state's transportation system.

After his graduation from Wesleyan University in 1916, Senator Baldwin entered Yale University Law School. He left school during World War I, enlisting as a seaman in the U. S. Navy. Later he was assigned to Officers Training School, commissioned ensign, then assigned to the destroyer USS Talbot. As an officer of the Talbot, he engaged in two active duties in European waters. Following the Armistice, he was assigned to Trieste and Fiume when trouble broke out after the Armistice. This war experience made a deep impression on the Senator, and the early responsibilities proved a great asset in attacking later problems.

Because of his being first alphabetically on the list of new Senators, he was sworn in on the opening day, January 3, ahead of Senator Bilbo. The remaining new Senators could not take their seats until January 5 when Senator Bilbo withdrew. Senator Baldwin is a member of the Senate Armed Services and the Senate Civil Service Committees.

Senator Arthur T. "Tom" Stewart, Emory, '13 (Democrat), enjoyed a distinguished career as a lawyer in the State of Tennessee, having served as attorney general for the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit. He made an outstanding record there before being elected to the U. S. Senate, January 16, 1939, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Senator Nathan L. Backman. He was then re-elected for the full term commencing November 3, 1942, and expiring January 3, 1949. A very genial, soft-spoken gentleman who gets things done in a quiet, efficient manner, he is one of the high ranking minority members. Senator Stewart serves on the Committees of Banking and Currency and Agriculture and Forestry.

Senator William E. Jenner, Indiana, '30 (Republican), lawyer, served in the United States Army Air Corps; released from active duty as Captain for physical disability incurred in line of duty. He was admitted to Indiana Bar in 1932, served as State Senator 1934-42 and served as minority leader 1937-39. He was majority leader until 1941. Re-elected to United States Senate to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Frederick Van Nuys, he served as Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Indiana, February, 1945, to 1946.

Elected to U. S. Senate, January 3, 1947, he is a member of the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare Rules and Administration.

Representative Dewey Short, Baker, '19 (Republican), is one of the few men in the House of Representatives who, when he speaks, draws his fellow members from cloakroom and lobby and packs the galleries. Affectionately called the "Ozark hilly-billy," he was for six years the lone Republican Congressman from Missouri.

Since coming into the national limelight, he has spoken from coast to coast. His scintillating aphorisms and homely metaphors never fail to stir his hearers to high levels of enthusiasm and mirth. This is equally as true in the Congress, on the stump—whenever he speaks.

Representative Short is one of the best educated men in Congress: graduated from Marionville College, 1917; received an A.B. degree from Baker University in 1919; a Frank D. Howard fellow by Boston University, S.T.B., 1922; studied at Harvard and at the Universities of Berlin, Heidelberg, and Oxford from 1922 to 1925. He received the degree of LL.D. from Drury College, Springfield, Missouri, in 1930 and the degree of LL.D. from Boston University in 1941. He was professor of Philosophy and Psychology at Southwestern College, Winfield, Kansas, 1923-24, 1926-28.

REPRESENTATIVE BUCK

REPRESENTATIVE SIMPSON

Mr. Short is ranking minority member of the House Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation. For six years President of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, he is now Chairman of the Board.

In 1939, Mr. Short was an official delegate to the 35th Inter-Parliamentary Conference in Oslo, Norway. He has traveled extensively in Europe, Africa, and Asia as a scholar, and over most of North and South America in an official capacity.

In April, 1945, he was one of the twelve members of Congress to go to Europe at the request of General Eisenhower to inspect German Concentration Camps. Members of this special committee in both parties paid him the tribute of saying he was the keenest observer and gave the most accurate account of what he saw. His friends and his political enemies have respect and admiration for his ability to discover the truth, clearly analyze and convincingly describe it.

He originated the legislation to make it possible for all parties responsible for the catastrophe of Pearl Harbor to be properly prosecuted. He believes those accused should be given the right granted them by our Constitution of an open court-martial or trial and has made it possible for the Congressional Investigation to be advantageous to our country.

REPRESENTATIVE BURKE

Representative James M. Morrison, Tulane, '30 (Democrat), better known to his friends as Jimmy, is one of the most popular, polished gentlemen in Congress. This is perhaps due to the fact that he is a descendant of William the Conqueror and the Marshalls of Virginia and Kentucky. Jimmy left his law practice to run for Congress and was elected to the Seventy-Eighth Congress on November 3, 1942, and since then has been active in promoting legislation resulting in the effective conclusion of the war. His record has been so outstanding that the people of Louisiana are insisting on Jimmy's running for the great office of Governor of their State. As a member of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, he was instrumental in constructive legislation by reporting from that committee affecting the Postal Service and Civil Service of the United States Government.

Representative Richard M. Simpson, Pittsburgh, '23 (Republican), served during World War I in the Tank Corps, was a member of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives for two terms 1935-1937. He was elected to the Seventy-Fifth Congress at a special election held on May 11, 1937, and re-elected to the Seventy-Sixth, Seventy-Seventh, Seventy-Eighth, Seventy-Ninth, and Eightieth Congresses during which time he has been active in legislation resulting in the bringing of the war to a quick termination. He is a member of the powerful Ways and Means Committee which is now considering the tax proposals, and if you think he is not busy, try to see him.

Representative Ellsworth B. Buck, Dartmouth, '14 (Republican), veteran of World War I, having enlisted as a seaman second class, United States Naval Reserve, July, 1917, was commissioned and assigned as instructor in meteorology, Naval Aviation Ground School, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, April, 1918, in charge of meteorological instruments, U. S. Naval Observatory, Washington, D. C. He was Chairman Code Authority under N.R.A., 1934-35, member of Board of Education of the City of New York, 1935-39 and 1940-44, former trustee, Staten Island Hospital, Staten Island Academy, Staten Island Savings Bank, American Museum of Natural History; former director, Staten Island Community Chest, Staten Island Council of Boy Scouts of America, Staten Island National Bank and Trust Co.; director and treasurer, Staten Island Zoological Society. He is a member of the Committee on Education and Labor which is now holding hearings with a view to reporting out a bill that will be far reaching in settling labor troubles that have practically paralyzed the country in the past few years.

Representative Raymond Burke, Chicago, '06 (Republican), was Mayor of Hamilton, 12 years (6 terms), the first mayor under the New Charter Form-Home Rule Government, and concurrently elected Councilman eight terms serving all of fourteen years. He resigned to become a candidate for State Senator. He was chairman Selective Service Board No. 2, Butler County, prior to taking seat in Ohio Senate where he was chairman of Ohio Senate Committee on Agriculture and a member of Senate Committees on Finance, Education, Conservation, and Insurance. During his first term he was member of Anthony Wayne Memorial Joint Legislation Committee, this work culminating in the unveiling of the great painting by Howard Chandler Christy of the Treaty of Greenville now hanging in the State House at Columbus. He is a member of the House Committee of Merchant Marine and Fisheries which includes membership in three sub-committees thereof: (1) ship construction and operation, including Maritime Labor; (2) Panama Canal and Canal Zone; (3) Chairman of Subcommittee on Conservation of Wildlife Resources.

Economic Life XIV: Life Insurance

By CHARLES F. AXELSON, Chicago, '07

In considering the possibilities of a career in the life insurance business it may be well first to take a glance at the development of the industry and its place under present-day social and economic conditions.

Historically, life insurance policies were sold in England as long ago as 1538, but for two centuries the business was full of failures because of unscientific operation. While the industry had its start in England, it is in the United States that it has had its real growth and development. The Presbyterian Ministers' Fund was organized in 1759 and has been in continuous operation ever since. It is the oldest business institution in Philadelphia but has maintained operations within narrow limits. The first two American companies catering to the general public were organized in 1843, followed rapidly by many others, most of which have since been engaged continuously in the business. By 1870 there were 110 life insurance corporations in the United States.

The growth of the business from a statistical standpoint is illuminating. On December 31, 1909, there was in force more than $15,000,000,000 of legal reserve life insurance. Ten years later the volume had jumped to $36,000,000,000 distributed among 266 companies with assets totalling $6,500,000,000. By December 31, 1926, the amount in force had grown to approximately $80,000,000,000 and the assets to $12,850,000,000. Now, twenty years later, at the end of 1946 we find that 73,000,000 policy owners in the United States have $174,000,000,000 of life insurance protection backed by more than $50,000,000,000 of high-grade assets. This is distributed among 509 companies. In addition, there is about eight billion of fraternal insurance in force, and nearly eighty-seven billion of risk is carried by the Federal Government in the form of U. S. Government and National Service life insurance and Social Security benefits. Of the

CHARLES F. AXELSON

A WORD ABOUT THE AUTHOR—

No one is more eminently qualified to speak to Delts about life insurance than Charles F. Axelsson, who has been hanging up records in that field for thirty-seven years. Past president of both the Chicago Association and the Illinois Association of Life Underwriters, he is one of the very few life insurance agents ever to be listed in Who's Who. Mr. Axelsson is also a past president of the Institute of Current World Affairs, former head of the Chicago University alumni association, and since 1923 he has been a trustee of the University.

To Delts at large, our author is known variously as an early member of the Distinguished Service Chapter, President of the Western Division from 1912 to 1918, chairman of the Karneas of 1911 and 1933, both of which broke world records for attendance, and an indefatigable wheelhorse of the Chicago Alumni Chapter.

509 private companies there are seven colossal giants that have one-half of the total business and the seventy-three largest companies do ninety-five per cent of the total. The other 436 are either recent promotions or are small organizations operating in limited territories.

American life insurance companies have enjoyed the confidence of the public for many decades. Their reputation was enhanced almost to the point of perfection during the late economic depression. Out of the billions of dollars of assets the loss to policyholders was less than one-fifth of one per cent, or the equivalent of only the interest earnings for two or three weeks. During the last hundred years the companies have survived three major wars and the same number of serious business panics, not to mention lesser wars and other economic disturbances.

Through many decades the use of life insurance was confined largely to indemnification for the economic loss sustained by the dependents of the insured because of his death. Premiums (annual deposits) were payable either throughout the lifetime of the insured or for a term of years. This form of protection is known as straight, limited pay, or term insurance. Endowment insurance has also had some popularity. This plan is a combination of protection and savings.

Until the turn of the century, payments at the death of the insured were invariably made in a single sum to the beneficiary. Since then there has been developed and extended a system of installment payments extending over a period of years or for a lifetime. This has enormously enhanced the value of the protection to the beneficiaries. Under present-day policies the proceeds may be left at interest with the insurance company until such time as the beneficiary needs the principal in whole, in part, or under a limited or life annuity plan. The policy may provide funds for a child's education as, for instance, monthly payments during college years.

Every working individual has an economic value which means that there is a financial loss in the event of his or her premature death. The primary losers are generally a woman and children who are dependent on the breadwinner in the family for food, shelter, clothing, and education. In most cases no other protection is available and life insurance is almost a necessity even where bare subsistence income is provided by Social Security payments to some classes of employees. Self-employed and many other groups are not even eligible for those meager benefits. In the case of the professional man and the sole proprietor, the need for insurance is very apparent because of the certainty that the income to his family will be reduced, if it does not disappear entirely, upon his death. The man who owes money under a note or mortgage should have life insurance to cover the amount of the indebtedness.

Life insurance is extensively used in business for two purposes. One is to indemnify an organization for the loss by death of a valuable officer or key employee, commonly called "key-man insurance." The other is to provide funds for the liquidation of a deceased's interest in a corporation or partnership.

With the development of our system of federal estate and state inheritance taxation there has arisen a corresponding need for life insurance by people of means to cover a certain charge on an uncertain date. Unless such persons keep the required portion of their estates in government bonds or other stable and readily salable securities with consequent low interest yield, they have but two alternatives: They must face the enforced liquidation of fixed assets for whatever they may bring in a market that is more often unfavorable than favorable, in order to provide cash to meet the tax and other estate charges. Or they may provide life insurance with the knowledge that the cash at one hundred cents on the dollar will be available exactly when it will be needed. The higher earnings from the less marketable assets under personal management will provide most or all of the cost of the insurance.

A corollary of high inheritance and income taxes is the virtual impossibility for the average individual to create an estate large enough so that the income from it will provide for his old age. The man enjoying a $12,000 salary with normal family and social obligations will probably do well to save $1,000 after being subjected to a $2,000 income tax. In thirty years, if he has no losses, he may accumulate $45,000, the interest on which would provide barely $100.00 per month. A sum of $1,000 invested annually for thirty years in a combination insurance and retirement annuity contract would provide from $20,000 to $45,000 for the family in case of death and, if he survived to an age of sixty-five, would then pay him from $250 to $275 monthly for the rest of his life. This tax situation has created a large demand for the use of insurance and annuities for both personal and employee retirement plans, which under many circumstances enjoy distinct tax advantages.

The important part that life insurance plays in modern society is the result of many years of able management at the home offices of the companies and superb salesmanship along the highways and byways of both urban and rural areas. The investment and reinvestment annually of billions of dollars so that they will yield a desirable return without unduly risking principal requires unusual skill and acumen. The medical appraisal of applicants for insurance involves the use of both established techniques and rare judgment. The very nature of the business calls for the services of conservative yet able lawyers and actuaries. Advertising and public relations must be handled by personnel trained in those arts. Thousands of clerical workers perform the multitudinous routine jobs that above everything else require the element of accuracy.

The method of distributing commercial life insurance to the public is unique in that it is done almost entirely by individual salesmen specially trained for the task. Many attempts have been made to sell it by mail or over-the-counter but with very little success. And in the relatively few cases of such buying the purchase is frequently the result of a salesman's previous effort. In the early days of the business the selling was of the simple but emotional "hearse-backed-up-to-the-door" type. But with the ever broadening uses that may be made of life insurance has come the well educated, skilled, and highly trained agent. Today the servicing of the policyholder is an integral part of every conscientious agent's duties. It is a highly competitive industry. The successful salesman needs to be a combination of psychologist, economist, tax and financial expert, attorney, accountant, and frequently a sort of father-confessor. Most companies have excellent training courses for agents and many sorts of sales aids varying from simple literature to well trained travelling representatives. Agents' organizations and company groups have frequent meetings, conventions, and institutes of an educational nature. The American College of Life Underwriters was started just twenty years ago. It grants the professional Certificate of Chartered Life Underwriter to those who complete an extended and intensive course of study and successfully pass a series of comprehensive examinations comparable to those used for admission to the bar or certification as a public accountant.

To the college graduate the life insurance business offers the choice of two lines of opportunity. He may choose the route that starts and ends in the home office. Here most of the work is routine and does not offer much opportunity for the display of ingenuity. Salaries are not high and advancement is slow. Reasonable and accurate performances guarantee job security. And, as in any walk of life, the individual with ability, loyalty, and perseverance will eventually reach the upper rungs of the ladder where his compensation should be, but is not always, commensurate with his responsibilities.

It is in the field of life insurance selling that the college graduate meets a real challenge. If he is honest, clean-cut, and industrious, he can stake out a successful career for himself. If he has been a leader in college activities, he is better equipped than if he has trailed along. This is because he has developed the faculty of getting the other fellow to follow suggestions. Holding down a hard vacation job or two before trying to sell insurance is good experience because

Fischbach Residency Foundation

By HUGH SHIELDS, Indiana, '26

The latest and most substantial contribution to the Delta Tau Delta Educational Fund is the gift of Dr. Howard P. Fischbach, Kenyon, '06, and Mrs. Fischbach, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

In February of this year, Dr. Fischbach donated the cash sum of $15,000 to be administered through the Educational Fund in order to provide scholarships for worthy members of Delta Tau Delta who are doing postgraduate work in surgery or medicine.

This new component part of the Fund is to be known as The Fischbach Residency Foundation. Acting in accordance with the wishes of the donors, the Board of Directors has invested the donation in income-producing United States Treasury Bonds. The income earned on this investment will provide scholarships to assist deserving medical students to complete their postgraduate training.

Selections for scholarships will be made by a special committee composed of three men, all of whom shall be physicians and members of Delta Tau Delta. Besides Dr. Howard Fischbach, his brother, Dr. Victor W. Fischbach, Cincinnati, '16, and Dr. Ernest E. Irons, Chicago, '00, will serve on the first committee. Dr. Victor Fischbach, also a Cincinnati physician, is a member of the medical faculty of Cincinnati University. Dr. Irons, president of the American College of Physicians, has practiced medicine in Chicago since 1903 and is a member of the faculty of Rush Medical College.

Dr. Howard Fischbach, abdominal surgeon and gynecologist, is listed in Who's Who in Medicine. He is a member of the American Medical Association, Ohio State Medical Society, Cincinnati Academy of Medicine, Ohio State Homoeopathic Society, and other similar organizations and is a fellow in the American College of Surgeons.

Annually the committee will select a worthy member or members of the Fraternity who are doing, or are about to do, graduate training beyond internship in a hospital recognized by the American College of Surgeons or by the American Medical Association. The recipient of the award will receive a monthly payment in an amount to be determined by the committee.

Formal announcement of The Fischbach Residency Foundation was made at the Northern Division Conference in Columbus, Ohio, March 8. Explaining the purpose of the project, Dr. Fischbach stated that he felt a great obligation to his Fraternity, which he hoped in some small measure to repay by assisting other Delts, through the Educational Fund, to obtain complete medical training. He said, in addition, that he hoped this new Foundation would suggest to other Delt alumni means by which they could contribute to the Educational Fund, and that The Fischbach Residency Foundation would soon become just one of many similar projects.

Many Delts will remember Dr. Fischbach as a principal speaker at the Fifty-Eighth Karnea. A member of the Distinguished Service Chapter, he has been instrumental in installing chapters at Cincinnati, Miami, and Kentucky. He has two sons who are Delts. He is chairman of the Pumphrey Memorial Committee, a committee which is raising funds to build a model chapter hall dedicated to the memory of Clarence "Dad" Pumphrey, Buchtel, '74. In spite of a demanding medical practice, especially during the war years when physicians were under great pressure, he has found time for his Fraternity. Although he has served Delta Tau Delta in many ways, he has found still another way—through the Educational Fund.

Little more than eight months old, the Delta Tau Delta Educational Fund is rapidly gaining momentum. Its assets already total nearly $75,000. A complete list of contributors will be published in a later issue.

Conceived and developed by Charles T. Boyd and Francis F. Patton, the Fund was unanimously adopted by the Fifty-Eighth Karnea. It embraces in its framework the Scholarship Fund and the Undergraduate Loan Fund, both of which retain their separate identities. In addition, it opens up for members of the Fraternity new vistas and educational opportunities which did not exist heretofore.

Generally speaking, the objective of the Fund is to make Delta Tau Delta a greater force in the development of its members.

Specifically, the purposes of the Fund are:

- (1) To pay the expenses, in whole or in part, of a system of cultural instruction and training for undergraduate and postgraduate members;
- (2) To provide scholarships for members who are undergraduate or postgraduate students to enable them to continue their studies and to participate in the educational work in the undergraduate chapters;

Four Divisions Hold Conferences

Northern

Significant news that stems from the Sixty-Third Northern Division Conference includes the announcement that William H. Martindill, Ohio, '32, has been elected President of the Northern Division and that delegates unanimously accepted the invitation of the Lansing Alumni Chapter and the new Iota Chapter to hold next year's Conference at Lansing, Michigan.

The Conference got under way in Columbus, Ohio, on Thursday, March 6, with a smoker at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel at 9:00 p. m. Delegates from every state in the Division gathered to become acquainted before the business sessions began the next day.

President Martindill started the meeting promptly Friday morning by giving his official report on the Division. Outstanding alumni were introduced, committees were named, and an official welcome was given the group by Charles Flick, president of the Columbus Alumni Chapter, which was official host to the Conference.

The business meetings were marked by numerous informal discussions on such topics as rushing, pledge education, scholarship, chapter organization, chapter finance, and chapter spirit, all of which were led by men experienced in each particular field. Problems facing chapters were discussed, with each chapter's delegates describing the methods used by it to meet these problems.

Representatives of Bowling Green State University and Kent State University were at the Conference, and both gave brief reports on their respective schools as prospective fields of expansion for the Fraternity.

A buffet supper was served Friday evening at the Beta Phi Chapter Shelter of Ohio State University, followed by a dance later in the evening at the Deshler-Wallick.

The Conference elected, in addition to the President, six new vice-presidents. They are: Stuart K. Fox, Wisconsin, '20, of Chicago; W. Edgar West, Ohio Wesleyan, '23, of Columbus; Ernest L. Miller, Indiana, '27, of Indianapolis; Otto A. Silha, Minnesota, '40, of Minneapolis; and Robert L. Hartford, Ohio, '36, of Cleveland.

The Conference was formally closed by the annual Founders Day Banquet Saturday noon. The banquet was attended by many distinguished alumni, including Governor Thomas J. Herbert, President G. Herbert McCracken, Secretary of Alumni A. B. Walling, Supervisor of Scholarship Clemens R. Frank, Executive Vice-President Hugh Shields, Bishop H. Lester Smith, and Dr. Howard P. Fischbach.

Francis M. Hughes, Ohio Wesleyan, '31, Indianapolis attorney, secretary-treasurer of the Division and chief legal counsel of the Fraternity, gave an inspiring speech in which he emphasized the fact that the Fraternity is chiefly a "character building organization."

Eastern

Spring and the delegates to the Fifty-Sixth Eastern Division Conference arrived in Pittsburgh on Friday, March 21. Representatives of nineteen undergraduate chapters were introduced to the Smoky City as the notorious blanket of smog hung over the Hotel Roosevelt, headquarters for the Conference, and the Shelters at the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Institute of Technology, hosts to the visiting Delts.

The Conference ran the conventional gamut of meetings, dinners, and socials climaxed by a banquet at the University Club on Saturday evening. Gamma Sigma of Pitt opened wide the doors of its Bayard Street Shelter on Friday evening to entertain the visiting collegians with dancing and romancing made enticing by Pitt coeds.

President of Delta Tau Delta G. Herbert McCracken, Pittsburgh, '21, gridiron and basketball great, garnered tribute at the Saturday evening banquet. Featured speakers at the testimonial dinner were Dr.

Herbert L. Spencer, Carnegie Tech, '21, President of Bucknell University, and Richard Simpson, Pittsburgh, '23, Representative from the Seventeenth Congressional District. Norman MacLeod, Pittsburgh, '17, past President of Delta Tau Delta and trustee of the University of Pittsburgh, introduced the speakers. The undergraduate chapters from Pitt and Tech furnished vocal music at the banquet.

Joel W. Reynolds, Tufts, '23, who assumed the Eastern Division presidency in 1944, was unanimously elected to that office. The vice-presidents as appointed by Mr. Reynolds are David K. Reeder, Pennsylvania, '12; Thomas G. Meeker, Wesleyan, '41; and A. J. "Bud" Murphy, Penn State, '38.

The spirit of progressive fraternity policy in the postwar era highlighted the business sessions as Mr. Meeker recommended that the undergraduate chapters pledge outstanding foreign students who meet the membership requirements of the Fraternity.

David K. Reeder, leading a discussion of alumni relations, suggested that the chapters adopt a program of three C's—contact, correspondence, cordiality—to establish more congenial relations with graduate Delts.

Western

For the first time in her forty-three years on the University of Texas campus, Gamma Iota this year was host to the Western Division Conference, held March 14-16.

Delegates from eighteen colleges and universities began arriving on Thursday, March 13, for the three-day Conference. Gamma Iota Delts moved out of the Shelter in order to make room for approximately forty delegates and alternates, and when the air had cleared, beds had been provided for all.

Friday morning was taken up with registration and the task of getting everyone settled. This was followed by a business meeting that afternoon at which the principal topics discussed were pledge training and chapter finances. On Friday evening a stag get-together gave the delegates and hosts an opportunity to get to know each other better.

At the business meetings held on Saturday and Sunday many subjects of vital interest to Delt chapters in the Western Division were discussed and chapter reports were presented. Of particular interest to all delegates were the discussions on alumni relations, rushing, and scholarship. The free exchange of ideas and suggestions at the Conference was of inestimable value to all who participated.

The business meetings were climaxed by the election of Daniel W. Ferguson of San Francisco as the new President of the Western Division of Delta Tau Delta. A resolution was passed commending Brother Jepsen, the retiring President, for his long and active service to the Division. Beta Rho Chapter at Stanford University was designated as the host chapter for the next Western Division Conference, to be held in the spring of 1949.

On Saturday evening Gamma Iota held its Annual Founders Day Banquet at the Driskill Hotel. Approximately two hundred Delt's, undergraduates and alumni, attended and listened to short speeches by H. J. Jepsen, Division President, and Walter S. Pope, one of the founders of Gamma Iota Chapter. H. Grady Chandler, Austin attorney, was toastmaster. The Central Office was represented by Garth Slater and Gordon Jones. Entertainment was provided by the Gamma Iota chorus, and Delt songs were sung by all. High point of the banquet was the presentation of an engraved watch to Dean H. T. Parlin in recognition of almost forty years of counsel and assistance to Gamma Iota Chapter.

The Conference was concluded on Sunday, and by that evening most of the delegates had started on their return journey. A final farewell party was held that evening, however, for those who were able to remain until Monday morning. From all indications a good time was enjoyed by all who attended the Conference, and the business meetings were productive of much valuable information which should help every chapter in the Division to keep Delta Tau Delta in the top position among college fraternities.

Southern

This year's Southern Division Conference—the first in five years—held April 11 and 12 in Atlanta, Georgia, was one to be described in superlatives only. The enthusiasm and sincere spirit of fraternal devotion were ever-present at the Conference business sessions and social functions alike.

The Conference was officially called to order by Chairman Gordon Curtiss, Division vice-president, acting in the place of Division President Charles Pearson, Jr., who was required to remain in Nashville because of the telephone crisis.

As business sessions got under way, important discussions on chapter finance, scholarship, internal organization, pledge education, alumni relations, and rushing were held, with the presentation of special ideas and features both from the chair and from the floor. Dean William Tate, of the University of Georgia, talked on campus activities, emphasizing the integral relationship of success in life with success in college activities.

The meeting was adjourned Friday noon for a luncheon at the Georgia Tech Shelter. In the evening Gamma Psi played host by throwing a most enjoyable house dance in honor of the Conference delegates.

Saturday morning the Conference approved a resolution favoring the expansion of the Fraternity in the Southern Division. New Orleans was designated as the scene of the next Conference to be held the second week in April, 1949. The Conference also passed an amendment authorizing in the future the payment of transportation expenses of two delegates from each chapter.

The Conference Committee on Nominations presented Charles Pearson, Jr., for Division President and Gordon W. Curtiss, Jr., William H. Andrews, Arthur D. Gray, and G. Sydney Lenfestey for vice-presidents. A unanimous vote resulted in the election of these candidates. At the conclusion, both Hugh Shields and Gordon Curtiss congratulated the delegates upon completing the most successful Southern Division Conference in history of Delta Tau Delta.

A chartered bus and automobiles from Tech and Emory were on hand following adjournment to transport the delegates to Atlanta's municipal airport for the ceremony of christening a new Delta Air Lines DC-4. This unique stunt was instigated and carried through by the men of the Emory Chapter. Beta Epsilon's "Delt Darling," Carol Giles, officially designated the massive airliner the "Delta Tau Delta Rainbow." Following the ceremony was a brief dedicatory address by Mr. C. E. Woolman, Delta Air Lines president, who extended an invitation to fly over Atlanta in the new "Rainbow." The delegates, sponsors, and prominent Fraternity officials promptly filled the forty-four-seater to capacity for the flight over Atlanta and vicinity.

The Conference met at the Piedmont Hotel Saturday noon, where an excellent turnout of Atlanta alumni greeted them for luncheon. Saturday evening the Beta Epsilon annual spring formal supplied the climax to Conference social events in the Grand Ballroom of the Georgian Terrace Hotel.

On Sunday the men who had contributed their time and enthusiastic spirit to this year's Conference departed by car, bus, and train for their respective Shelters. Although somewhat tired from the rapid sequence of business and pleasure on April 11 and 12, they were certain that their parts had been a singular factor in the success of the 1947 Southern Division Conference—the greatest in Delta Tau Delta's history.

welcome into Delta Tau Delta and the Northern Division. . . ."

Supervisor of Scholarship Clemens R. Frank brought felicitations from Thomas J. Herbert, Governor of Ohio, who, because of state business, was absent. Francis F. Patton, past President, during whose term of office the petitioners were granted their charter and who was to have presented the original Iota charter, was unable to attend. In his stead, Martin B. Dickinson, Secretary of the Fraternity, did the honors, giving the charter first to the three Iota alumni present, who in turn handed it over to Arthur W. Stadelmeyer, Iota's president.

Theodore R. Kennedy, faculty member and chapter adviser, handled the introductions of the new Delts. William G. Merritt presented to Iota certain memorabilia, including the original chair of the presiding officer and a badge which belonged to the first chapter adviser of Iota.

"Mellow after-dinner speakers come from the South," commented Toastmaster MacLeod as he introduced Charles T. Boyd, also a past President, who spoke eloquently on the heritage of Delta Tau Delta. His remarks are reproduced elsewhere in this issue.

G. Herbert McCracken, President of the Fraternity, delivered an outstanding message which earned an enthusiastic ovation. It is also reproduced in this number under "The President's Page."

CHARACTER AND INTEGRITY

Headlining the speaking array, Dr. Herbert L. Spencer, President of Bucknell University, spoke on the benefits to be derived from fraternity membership. America's greatest assets, he said, are the character and integrity of its citizens. The function and the duty of a fraternity are to imbue its members with the proper qualities which will make them more useful members of society. His advice to undergraduates was threefold: (1) make your grades; (2) pay your bills; and (3) be gentlemen.

Delta's glee club rang down the curtain with its rendition of "Delta Shelter," and Howie Ellis, Delta songleader, led the entire assemblage in a final chorus of this traditional melody.

The installation ball, which followed the banquet, was also something to write home about. It was one of the brighter social events for Michigan State, and it was shared by many Delts, for the visiting brothers had been provided dates whose charm convinced everyone that Iota has great possibilities.

The cordiality and hospitality of Michigan State were well demonstrated the following Saturday morning. Deans Crowe and King called for President McCracken and his party in the college limousine, and Dr. Hannah personally conducted them on a tour of the campus. In addition, he entertained his guests at luncheon.

Another member of the former Iota, Frank B. Ainger, '98, who was recovering from a recent illness in a Lansing hospital, received flowers from the Fraternity and was gratified to learn that his chapter had returned. President McCracken and Executive Vice-President Shields visited him Saturday morning to bring greetings from the Fraternity.

There was little doubt that Iota had been given a resounding send-off. Even the local manager of Western Union, who was doubtless becoming a little frayed around the edges, wrote, "You've given us a busy time. Congratulations from me to you."

SPADE-LIFTERS

Successful events such as this, however, do not just happen. They are the fruition of hard work, planning, and careful preparation. The Lansing Alumni Chapter did a splendid piece of work, not only in planning this occasion, but also in helping Iota to its feet. The members of Iota themselves and their adviser, Ted Kennedy, worked faithfully to make things click. Larry Dickinson and Lloyd Knight, recent graduates of Purdue, moved in well in advance to plot and blueprint the techniques of outstanding ritualistic performance, a job which has become a specialty with them. The undergraduates of Kappa, Delta, and Epsilon Chapters are certainly deserving of commendation for their well calculated contributions. Practically "every bloom-in' soul" was in on the teamwork.

Iota once again, after fifty years, takes its place beside the other seventy-three Delt chapters. The Fraternity looks to Iota to represent it well at Michigan State.

admitted to Illinois Bar in 1906 and practiced law in Decatur, Illinois, until election to Congress in 1944. A member of the Decatur, the Illinois, and the American Bar Associations, he was elected June 13, 1944, to fill the unexpired term of William H. Wheat, Nineteenth Illinois District and was re-elected to Seventy-Ninth Congress and Eightieth Congress. During Seventy-Ninth Congress he was member of Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, in the Eightieth Congress, a member of Banking and Currency Committee.

Representative George MacKinnon, Minnesota, '29 (Republican), was an All-America Center and a nine-letter man, weight 160 pounds; a member of the Law Review Board, State Legislature promoting legislation affecting education. In February, 1942, enlisted in the Navy and served in the European theater from which he received a Navy Citation. He has already proved very popular and is a member of the powerful Committee on Education and Labor.

These are your brother Delts and don't let anyone say that the country has gone to the dogs as long as Congress is blessed with such capable members.

Correction

In the February issue of THE RAINBOW, Berley Winton, Kentucky, '22, was erroneously referred to as director of the Michigan State Experiment Station. Actually, Mr. Winton is director of the Regional Poultry Research Laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture, a laboratory established in 1937.

The Heritage of Delta Tau Delta

By CHARLES T. BOYD, North Carolina, '21

The heritage of Delta Tau Delta consists of the permanent accumulations of high vision, earnest purpose, and solid achievement, which, in our fraternal domain, have been handed down to us from the past. Without the contributions of those who have gone before, Delta Tau Delta, today, would be of small consequence; but with these contributions and with the widespread accomplishments of present times, we believe her to be without peer among the college fraternities of America.

What, then, are these inheritances, deposited with us for safe-keeping?

First of all, there is the ideal of the Founders—Alfred, Tarr, Johnson, Earle, Cunningham, Hunt, Lowe, and Bell—eight young men who in 1859, at Bethany College, in West Virginia, gave us Delta Tau Delta. They were motivated by no base or selfish desires, but by high purpose and rugged determination. It was their desire to establish a fraternal organization among college men, based on friendship, and standing for moral, spiritual, social, and intellectual development. They worked to make this ideal a living reality; the Fraternity today is the fruition of their early hopes and aspirations.

Next, there is the inheritance of constant growth, infused with the pioneer spirit. Founded at a time when the academic fraternity system was still in its infancy, our new organization undertook to grow. On the very eve of a heart-rending fratricidal war, our members took the Fraternity's message and purpose into new territories. An examination of the chapter roll during this period shows clearly the steady, constant growth—a new chapter or chapters in each of many successive years. In 1886 we formed a union with the Rainbow Society, thus bringing into the orbit of the Fraternity many high-spirited and ambitious lads from Southern institutions, and thereby adding strength and prestige to the Fraternity.

Many of the institutions to which new chapters were brought were located in partially undeveloped portions of the country, and the spirit of the pioneer was present, a spirit which brought into the life stream of the Fraternity a sturdy independence, a calm self-reliance, a strong individualism, a regard for the eternal verities, and an unselfish patriotism. The growing Fraternity was a part of a growing America, and they grew together. Each section of the country—New England, Middle Atlantic, the South, the Middle West, and the Far West—each contributed something of its own particular genius to what would soon be a truly national Fraternity.

Then there is the inheritance of redemption. Perhaps, for a time, our Fraternity, along with others, misconceived the nature of her calling. Perhaps, more accurately, the college fraternity system of the day had not matured sufficiently to be able to translate its idealism into good, sensible fraternity conduct. At any rate, the system was afflicted with many excesses, so well described by Stuart Maclean in The Good Delt: His Book. The time of reckoning came, as it usually does, and Delta Tau Delta had to purchase her redemption at the price of reform. But the purchase was a fortunate one and our Fraternity, along with others, largely purged herself of the most conspicuous of the fraternity evils—initiation barbarities, down-right snobbishness, conflicts with the colleges, license, and contempt for sound scholarship. Certainly, our inheritance is richer today because of this penitence. It may be taken for granted that no academic fraternity can hope for success unless it subscribes to the new constitution of proper and sensible conduct for fraternity chapters and members.

Next, there is the inheritance of unselfish patriotism and recuperative power. Following the Civil War, during which many men bound to each other by ties of brotherhood found themselves in opposing camps, Delta Tau Delta made her contribution to the Spanish-American War, the First World War, and, but recently, to the Second World War. Indeed, many of our young men have just returned from their service in this, the greatest of all conflicts. Out of 10,246 who served, 310 made the supreme sacrifice and became honored members of the Chapter Eternal. Many of you attended the highly impressive memorial service for these, our fallen comrades, at the Fifty-Eighth Karnea in Chicago last year.

Each of these mighty struggles has had a terrific impact upon the Fraternity. War demands youth, and the call to the colors soon decimates our chapters. But we have never failed to build back. In the First World War, our slogan was "War, Patriotism, and Fraternalism," and the end of the war was followed by the Victory Karnea of 1919. In Chicago last year we exhibited to the fraternity world a great assembly of strength following the disintegration of the war years. Despite the difficulties, the Fraternity carried on during this last trying period, and, very happily, these same difficulties revealed many sources of unknown and unsuspected strength. Truly, we have been able to convert temporary disaster into permanent victory.

Then, there is the inheritance of sound business administration and practice. During the last two decades the Fraternity, with Hugh Shields in charge, has put its business house in order. Loose financial habits have given way to an orderly system of business management in all departments of the Fraternity and the undergraduate chapters. The results have been the marvel of the fraternity world. We have learned that there is no inconsistency between true fraternalism and paying one's debts. This splendid inheritance is one of our newest legacies, but one that brings a sense

Division President

DANIEL W. FERGUSON

The newly elected President of the Western Division, Daniel W. Ferguson, Chicago, 'og, has blazed a trail of sustained Delt activity that is almost without parallel. Successively rush chairman, treasurer, house manager, and president of Gamma Alpha Chapter, he later became president of the house corporation and chapter adviser.

Originator of the Los Angeles Luncheon Club in 1921, he was subsequently elected president of the Los Angeles Alumni Chapter. He was instrumental in establishing Delt chapters at both UCLA and Southern California. In recognition of his loyalty to the Fraternity, Dan was cited to the Distinguished Service Chapter in 1934.

When he isn't busy working for a new chapter or drumming up alumni participation, Dan engages in the insurance business. He has found time for other activities, too, including a period of service as president of the University of Chicago alumni association.

Since 1943 he has been executive secretary of the Los Angeles Alumni Chapter and editor of Delt News, a publication which helps account for the energy and achievement of that alumni group.

THE RAINBOW in 1937 commented that Dan had attended more than 1,000 Delt functions and could call 2,000 Delts by their first names. That was 1937. Today he knows more than 3,000 Delts personally and has an attendance record of more than 2,000 Delt functions!

The undergraduates and alumni of the Western Division will find in Dan Ferguson a live-wire leader whose contagious enthusiasm is an inspiration to every wearer of the Square Badge.

Economic Life

that has instilled the idea that results obtained go hand in hand with efforts expended.

Success in selling life insurance will come to those who are convinced that no proposition encountered is too hard to overcome. Life insurance selling is doubtless the art of salesmanship developed to the highest degree. Most sales appeals are made on the basis of satisfying the desire for gain, comfort, or pleasure; in other words, they appeal to the selfish instincts. Although these appeals are used in the sale of retirement policies and annuities, yet by far the greater percentage of insurance is still bought from purely unselfish motives where the benefits will accrue to someone else. The salesman has to arouse and develop the unselfish instincts. He must convince the prospective buyer that the proposition offered is logical and sensible from a business point of view, but that will not cause him to acquire the needed protection. The salesman must arouse those impulses that center about love for wife and children or interest in the welfare of some future beneficiary. The agent must overcome opposition or objections without arousing antagonism. He must be mentally alert and resourceful.

To the young man who believes in himself and accepts challenges, the selling of life insurance promises great satisfaction, personal freedom, and more than adequate financial return. As the result of his efforts he will see widows living in comfort, fatherless children properly reared and educated, old people enjoying the sunset years of life, business enterprises saved, mortgages canceled, and estates conserved. He will be free to come and go as he pleases, take his vacations when he desires, and be accountable to no one but himself. If he turns out to be an average agent, he will earn an average livelihood and have alternate periods of disappointment and satisfaction. But if he will rise above the average, he can become a leader in the business and in the community where he lives. He can attain financial independence. Nearly every life insurance company has a number of agents whose remuneration exceeds that of any member of its top-executive group.

A quotation from the late George Ade is as applicable to life insurance salesmanship as to any other business: "The main idea is that the bacon is seldom brought home by those who stumble over it. Usually it is acquired by those who have carefully specialized in the art of getting bacon."

(3) To make loans to deserving members who are undergraduate or postgraduate students to enable them to continue their studies;

(4) To pay the expenses, in whole or in part, of a library program for the undergraduate chapters to enhance the educational opportunity of the members; and

(5) To pay the expenses, in whole or in part, of other educational programs and projects, consistent with the general purpose of the Fund.

Donations to the Fund, under an official ruling by the Department of Internal Revenue, are deductible for income tax purposes.

Other Delts, like Dr. Fischbach, have found in the Fund a real opportunity to do something concrete for the cause of education and better citizenship through their Fraternity. As long as Good Delts give such evidence of their faith and unselfishness, Delta Tau Delta will continue "to educate, contributing to the young men within her sphere of influence a moral, spiritual, and social development commensurate with the intellectual training supplied by the colleges and universities."

▼ THE PRESIDENT'S PAGE ▼

One of the most spectacular phenomena of nature is what the scientists call estivation. In the language of the layman, this phenomena of nature is also called suspended animation. And its meaning may well be illustrated by an item which appeared recently in one of our large national weeklies. According to this story, emanating from a laboratory, a species of Nematoda, after having been preserved for approximately fifty years in a state of dormancy during which time all functions such as respiration had been practically suspended, was revived from its state of coma and brought back to active life once more by the simple procedure of removing certain artificial restrictions and the restoration of the species' free and normal environment. This is, you will agree, a most interesting phenomenon of the ways of our world.

Although parallels are sometimes dangerous, we are assembled here tonight to celebrate the revival of the Iota Chapter of Delta Tau Delta to normal active life after its fifty-year period of suspended animation. And much more interesting and spectacular than the revival of the Nematoda is this renewal of the life and functioning of Iota, made up of 32 vital and active young men. The lifeblood of Iota throughout this period has been and still is flowing in the veins of some of the grandest Delts of our 87-year history, several of whom we are honored to have with us this evening to welcome the men of Omega Alpha Fraternity into full membership and fellowship of Delta Tau Delta as its Iota Chapter. . . .

For during these fifty years in which Iota has existed in its state of suspended animation, Delta Tau Delta has grown spectacularly in stature and in favor with succeeding generations of college men. For example, in 1897, when Iota became inactive, Delta Tau Delta consisted of thirty-eight chapters, approximately 470 active members and a total undergraduate and alumni membership of about 5,000. Few if any chapters owned their own houses, a number had club rooms, a few had rented houses. There was no endowment fund of the Fraternity, no Scholarship or Undergraduate Loan Fund, no Central Office, no executive secretary or staff of field secretaries. Today, because of its creative campus program and its forward-looking policies, Delta Tau Delta boasts of seventy-four active chapters, including Iota, located at leading colleges and universities in the United States and at the University of Toronto in Canada, with some 3,600 active members and more than 32,000 alumni members. It boasts of sixty-nine chapters owning their own homes or having substantial investments in lodges, homes, and houses that cost approximately $4,000,000 and having less than $600,000 currently owed on them. There was a time when $2,500,000 was owed on a $3,000,000 cost total. I doubt if any fraternity in the land can match our record of progress and achievement in this respect. Today,

Delta Tau Delta has an endowment fund, known as the Loyalty Fund, of more than half a million dollars, an Undergraduate Loan and Scholarship Fund, known as the Educational Fund, and a Central Office directed by the country's outstanding fraternity executive and staffed by competent office and field secretaries.

In 1897 Beta Chi Chapter at Brown and Omega Chapter at Pennsylvania were admitted to the Fraternity and are celebrating this year their 50th anniversaries. There were 230 Delts initiated during that college year. Now there are about 1,200 initiated every year.

But it is not primarily of the numerical increases of the past fifty years that we are proudest; rather, it is the fact that year after year in this period Delta Tau Delta has been pledging and initiating promising young men into its membership and graduating them as maturer men of high character who have gone out into the world to make their distinctive contributions in their respective fields. . . .

We like to believe that Delta Tau Delta, although its physical properties compare favorably with any other college fraternity in America, is maintained and continues to prosper primarily because of the high quality of manhood it accepts and develops within its fellowship. And I am sure the years that lie ahead offer us our greatest opportunities for moral, spiritual, and social development of our members, with the correspondingly increased responsibilities that accompany such opportunities. To quote Dr. Robert C. Clothier, President of Rutgers University, "We must stop thinking of men as rushees and pledges, of campuses or offices sought and secured, of house parties scheduled. We must try to think instead of academic achievement and of constructive forums within the fraternity house for discussion of significant and important matters, of tutoring plans for the willing but stumbling members, of friendly but firm discipline for the lazy, of methods of preserving a house environment which is one of culture and dignity, of table conversation above the level of the most recent movie and the latest baseball averages, of temperance and moderation, and of the cultivation of the standards and manners of a gentleman." I am sure I speak for all of us when I say this too is the high purpose and constant objective of Delta Tau Delta.

And to our new brothers of Iota, I wish success and happiness in the fellowship of Delta Tau Delta. To all of our actives here this evening I want to repeat a truism which we all recognize—but which we too frequently forget—that the strength of Delta Tau Delta is the strength of each of its chapters, and your chapter's strength is in direct proportion to your personal contribution to it. In the words of Rudyard Kipling, "It is not the work of one man that brings us to the goal; it's the everlastin' teamwork of every bloomin' soul."

Indiana's New Dean

When Indiana University established last year its new division of student personnel to supervise the non-academic activities of its then increasing postwar student body, the administration and board of trustees looked over the national scene and chose as dean of students and head of the new division the University's wartime military commanding officer, Colonel R. L. Shoemaker, Cornell, '18.

Today with the University's student body twice what it was when the selection was made and triple what it was before the war, Indiana administrative officers and trustees are congratulating themselves on having selected the man who in 1942 had been voted by the students as the University's "most popular professor." It is a tough job that Col. Shoemaker was asked to take over, as it involves direction of the office of veterans affairs—and Indiana has more than 6,000 veterans on its Bloomington campus—fraternity and sorority relations, the difficult matter of student housing, and student health, employment, counseling, and government. But the one-time member of the Cornell chapter of Delta Tau Delta is doing it well because he has been accustomed to tough jobs.

Native of Washington, D. C., where he was graduated from Western High School, Dean Shoemaker entered Cornell in 1914. World War I came along, and in 1917 he went into the Army, was selected for the Officers' Training Corps at Fort Myer, Va., and spent nearly thirty years in the Army before retiring to take the deanship at Indiana.

Commissioned a second lieutenant at the end of the ORC course at Fort Myer, the young officer married his high school sweetheart, Miss Edith Combes, of Washington, and was assigned to Camp Lee, Va. Then in succession came assignments to Fort Meade, Md., Office of the Chief of Infantry, Fort Benning, Ga., where he was graduated from the Infantry School, Company Officers' Course, in 1924, Panama, again to the Office of Chief of Infantry, Fort Washington, Md., with the 12th Infantry, the Georgetown University R. O. T. C., Hawaii, and to the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., from which he was graduated in 1939.

After a short period with the New York National Guard, Shoemaker as a major was assigned to Indiana University as assistant professor of military science and tactics. Two years later in 1941 he was appointed professor of military science and tactics, head of the military department, and commandant of R. O. T. C. In this capacity he directed the wartime military activities of World War II at the University which involved training programs on the University's campuses at Bloomington and Indianapolis for approximately 9,100 men composing the second largest collegiate Army training unit in the United States. It was at this time that Indiana students voted him "the most popular professor" award and the University's board of trustees "for exceptional meritorious service" issued to him the only official citation ever given by the institution.

With the campus training program nearing its end, the War Department in 1944 assigned Shoemaker, then a colonel, to the Fifth Service Command, Fort Hayes, Ohio, as director of plans and training. Then came for the popular officer the opportunity he long had sought—to command again troops in the field—and in January, 1945, he was made commanding officer of one of the army's larger middle western posts, Camp Breckinridge, Ky. It was from Camp Breckinridge upon his retirement that he went to Indiana University to become dean of students.

The Shoemaker family is a military one with the two sons each a graduate of the United States Military Academy. The elder son, Lt. Col. R. L. Shoemaker, II, was graduated from the Academy in 1940. The younger son, 1st Lieut. Robert M. Shoemaker, was graduated from the Academy in 1944.

Heritage

of satisfaction and confident assurance to every true Delt.

Lastly, as we look at our inheritances, we realize that there is still another, our most prized possession. It is the Spirit of Delta Tau Delta. Greater than any other of our legacies, it includes them all. Ralph Waldo Emerson, in exploring the outermost reaches of the Soul, found the Over-Soul. The Spirit of the Fraternity is a kind of Over-Spirit, or an all-inclusive Spirit. With us here this evening, it reaches back to the Founders, and in the between times it has blessed every Delt who has loved the Fraternity in his heart.

This Spirit stands for the very best in Delta Tau Delta. It accounts for many things, for devoted service, for leadership, for material gifts, for simple fraternal affection. It is to be found in the statement of our Objective, in the Delta Creed, and in the Prophecy. Without it, there could be no Delt Development Program. It is the basis for our historic desire to excel. It pervades the moral idealism which Bishop Hughes has referred to as the Beacon Light of the Fraternity. Dr. Fischbach described it for us in his magnificent address at the Karnea banquet last year. It is the power and force which conditions us for Delt service, and as such, is truly the author of all our fraternal experience. It is that which constantly brings us back to the altars. It is the heart and soul of Delta Tau Delta. It is Delta Tau Delta.

WITH GOOD DELTS

What the Well-Dressed Delt Should Wear

Joe College is quite a snappy dresser. He's the fashion plate featured in the leading clothiers' magazines from coast to coast. His shoes are "tops" in style, even if they aren't always shined. His socks may knock out your eyes, but they're correct. His slacks, his sport shirts, his sport coat, and slipover sweater are all hot off the griddle. Even when he dons a roughneck outfit just to bum around in for the afternoon, there's still a nonchalant style about him that makes Betty Coed's heart do a tailspin.

And you ought to see him the night old Gamma Tau Doodad slings its annual midwinter Sweetheart Dance! That's the night he really struts his stuff. Whether it's in tuxedo or tails, he's the answer to every haberdasher's dream. He's simply gorgeous.

The Delts are no exceptions when it comes to qualifying as the best dressed men on the campus. From Toronto to Austin and from Maine to California their raiment is gaudy but correct. On many campuses they set the standard in clothes, just as they set the standards in so many other lines.

The well-dressed Delt also wears his pin. And why shouldn't he? It's not every man on the campus who has the honored privilege of wearing the small square badge of Delta Tau Delta over his heart. With many, it becomes a life-long habit.

And that, my brothers, brings me back to the subject of this brief dissertation.

Looking back over more than twenty-five years as a Delt, I can recall a score or more of happy experiences as a result of wearing my pin. These have led me to one conclusion: in or out of college, the well-dressed Delt should wear his pin. I wore it with considerable pride on the campus, and the pride has increased with each passing year.

Shortly after my graduation back in 1920, an errand took me to New York. I was just another lonely Westerner there in the lobby of the Prince George Hotel early one evening when a gentleman sitting next to me spied my pin. Mutual introductions followed. His chapter, he informed me, was Columbia. Since neither of us had anything particular to do that evening, he suggested a jaunt out to the chapter house. It was a long ride by subway and surface car, but we got out there just in time to find the gang right in the midst of a Pig Roast—a stag affair—and we were welcomed with open arms. Incidentally, I found one of the old Delts from my own home chapter there in Columbia studying law and we enjoyed a great old bull session.

Another time, out in China this time, I was making a lonesome trip down the Min River in Fukien Province accompanied only by a Chinese boatman who could speak no English. Parties who were supposed to meet me at the Foochow River front failed to show up because, as I found out later, bandits had cut the telegraph wires the night before and my telegram had failed to reach them. But by means of some fancy sign language I succeeded in making my boatman understand I wanted to get to a place on a high hill where I could see an American flag flying over a small white building. It proved to be the American consulate. Going up the walk across the well-kept lawn, I met a man coming out of the door and knew at once he was either an Englishman or an American. I explained my predicament. He lost no time in putting me in touch with my friends.

"I see you're a Delt," he said, glancing at the pin on my khaki shirt.

I was practically bowled over.

"Yes," I said, "Gamma Theta Chapter, class of 1920. And you?"

"I'm a graduate engineer from the University of Colorado," he said, "and was a Delt there. But I've been out here (in China) for the past fifteen years and you're the first Delt I've seen in all that time."

Well, I saw him a number of times that summer and was entertained in his home several times. I'm sorry I can't recall his name. He had a fine looking son, and I've often wondered if he ever came back to the United States and joined his dad's Fraternity.

Another time, while attending a banquet in Shanghai, I noticed that a man sitting across and several places down from me kept giving me a quizzical smile. After the banquet he came around and introduced himself—George Neumann, from Connecticut Wesleyan. He'd almost forgotten there was such a thing as a Delt until he saw my pin, he confessed, as he had been out of touch with his chapter for years. He was a professor in West China Union University at Chengtu, he told me, and later on an extended trip out into Szechwan Province I was a guest in his home and was entertained most royally. He and his charming little wife were a great pair.

I must confess here that the only time out in China that I did not wear my Delt pin was on that trip out through West China. I left it in a safe in Chungking with a Kappa Sig friend just in the event we were unfortunate enough to run into a gang of bandits. We missed the bandits by one day, learning after our return to Chungking that a huge band of them had held up and robbed a hundred boats the previous day just after our party had come down the Yangtze River through a particularly dangerous stretch of bandit-infested country.

While on the staff of the Associated Press in Atlanta, Georgia, the wearing of my pin was responsible for a number of delightful acquaintances and several enjoyable visits with those princely Georgia Tech and Emory University Delt chapters.

Springtime at Omega

Fifty years ago, January 22, 1897, Omega Chapter was born at the University of Pennsylvania. The infant chapter was indeed fortunate because its members received inspiration from the resident alumni, notably Brothers John A. Bolard and Alvan E. Duerr; from a chapter discipline which included a close observance of the Ritual, and from the songs of the Fraternity, two of which were sung at every chapter meeting. The closing song especially took root in the heart:

Though our homes be far dissevered,
and our lots diversely cast,
Though the cares of earth beset us,
and its storms beat thick and fast,
Yet everywhere and always, we'll maintain as firm as now
The loyalty we cherish for our good old Delta Tau.

It was no wonder, then, that the old-timers of Omega, inspired by Jim Gillinder up in Port Jervis, New York, and heartened by the memories of the old-timers' reunion held in 1940, gathered together at the Engineers Club, Philadelphia, on January 22, 1947, to celebrate the fiftieth birthday of the chapter.

Three of the four surviving charter members—Walter Cornell, '97, Ed Elliot, '99, and Jim Gillinder,

'00—were on hand. Charlie Reeve, '97, was vacationing in Florida. The guests of honor were Fred Doolittle and Alvan Duerr, who helped install the infant chapter. Fred (Kenyon, '94) lives in Philadelphia and regularly attends Delt celebrations. He is the Mr. Chips of Episcopal Academy where he has endeared himself to successive generations of students. A radio commentator recently paid his compliments to him. Alvan (Williams, '93), a national figure in fraternity affairs, and needing no introducing here, came over from New York. Unfortunately for the Omega old-timers, he was the youngest looking fellow in the crowd. But no one was jealous. Two or three tried to learn his secret, but he claims it's just smoking pipe tobacco.

Those present (classes 1897 to 1911), by class seniority, were: Walter Cornell, Ed Elliot, Jim Gillinder, Paul (Pete) O'Neill, Carroll Stewart, Brynie Lang, Morris Pier-sol, Fred Prime, Lloyd Irving, Seth Brumm, Wayne Evans, Theo Hesenbruch, Dave Bolard, Clarence Rodman, Charlie O'Neill, and Pierce Myers. Pierce was a little illegitimate, being only 1912.

Letters, telegrams, and messages were received from Charlie Reeve, Stanley Moore, Charlie Crosby, Al Brunker (whose boy, Bob, is a freshman at Penn, pledged to Omega), Tom Rodman, Clarence (Do) Tolan, Herbert Cornell, Joe Myers, Sewell Corkran, and Bill Steele. During the dinner Cash Watson telephoned from Connecticut, sending greetings. Al Warner, Cornell, '00, sent his best wishes, as did Herbert McCracken, our Fraternity President, and Hugh Shields and his associates at Fraternity headquarters. The management of the Engineers Club contributed some beautiful floral decorations, as a token of appreciation to Ed Elliot, recently president of the Club with a most successful record.

There should be an annual Delta Tau Delta old-timers' dinner in Florida. Pete O'Neill had to leave the dinner early to catch his train for the South. Jim Gillinder followed him a few days later. Ros Spare and Charlie Reeve were already there. This is just a thought for the benefit of the Southern Division.

We were asked to write an account of the reunion. We hope that it will be read by those old boys of Omega now living far from Philadelphia but still remembering the Delt songs sung at Omega in the early years of the century. Letters from them will be appreciated.

I could go on and on. In Chicago, in Kansas City, in several other cities, and even in some of our smaller towns, that Delt pin which I wear constantly has been the means of striking up some fine Delt acquaintances. I even recall a new job I took on a newspaper up in Nebraska. I know I was almost knocked off the Christmas tree, and I don't believe my stock with him went down either, when I discovered that my new boss was a Nebraska Delt.

Just the other afternoon the young aviator brother of one of the men here in our office flew in from Akron, Ohio, bringing another chap with him. Yes, you guessed it, the other chap was a Delt from Miami University at Oxford, Ohio.

It all adds up to this, Brother Delts. Delta Tau Delta is nothing to lay on the shelf when you graduate. Its ideals and its friendships are something to cherish and cultivate through life. Its Creed is something to carry with you. And its pin, the badge of your membership, is something to be worn with pride.

Let the kids on the campuses sport their fancy socks and their loud sweaters. That's their prerogative. But in school and after graduation, the well-dressed Delt should continue to wear the little square badge that marks him a member of the finest college fraternity in the world.

DR. CYRIL O. HOULE

DR. CYRIL O. HOULE, Florida, '34, dean of the University of Chicago's University College, has been named Chicago's outstanding young man of 1946.

The award for distinguished service is made annually by the Chicago Junior Association of Commerce. Dr. Houle was selected because of his outstanding success in adult education. Through his efforts, the "Great Books" course, just three years old, has become a country-wide movement. He has helped also to develop the executive program and the union leaders' program at University College.

Dr. Houle is president of the Illinois Adult Education Association. He is on the board of directors of the New Boston Store and the University of Chicago Settlement. He is a member of several other civic enterprises in Chicago.

He was recently main speaker at the Founders Day Banquet of the Chicago Alumni Chapter of Delta Tau Delta.

ROBERT M. STAUTER, who won his Phi Beta Kappa key this spring in his senior year, has been one of the pillars of chapter Mu and the Ohio Wesleyan student body.

He served in various chapter offices culminating in his election to the presidency during his junior year. He has been active in various campus activities, including theatrical productions and radio work.

Last spring he was elected to the post of secretary-treasurer of the student body, and he has served capably in that position for the past year.

He is a member of Pi Sigma Alpha, political science honorary, Delta Sigma Rho, debate honorary, and Omicron Delta Kappa.

SHERRY ROWLAND was elected to Phi Beta Kappa this spring in his junior year. In addition to his scholastic achievement, Sherry has been active in campus activities, highlighted by his election this spring to the post of president of next year's senior class.

Sherry has been active in varsity athletics at Wesleyan, winning two letters in basketball and one letter in baseball. He served as sports editor of the campus newspaper.

He is a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, journalism honorary, Chi Gamma Nu, chemistry honorary, and Omicron Delta Kappa.

First at Oklahoma

Delta Alpha Chapter topped all other fraternity chapters on the campus in scholarship for the fall semester to walk off with first-place honors at the University of Oklahoma.

Trophy to Be Awarded

Secondary in importance only to Delta Zeta's bid for a high-ranking position in the University of Florida Intramural Fraternity league is the forthcoming selection of the Florida DTD chapter's most outstanding intramural participant. The Guaranty Title and Abstract Corporation of Miami presented a trophy to Delta Zeta last fall to be awarded each year to the man who contributes most to the fraternity's intramural success.

Although at least ten Delts deserve consideration for their efforts, Tommy Taylor and Dan Ruhl of Fort Myers and "Gibby" Henderson of West Palm Beach have carried a lion's share of the intramural burden. Taylor displays one of the most sparkling records in the league by virtue of participation in nine sports. Besides teaming with John Phillips to win the shuffleboard doubles crown, he scored all of DTD's points in the frat track meet with a 20' 6" broad jump good for first place and a third in the high jump. In addition Taylor has taken part in basketball, volleyball, table tennis, touch football, tennis, handball, and softball.

Chapter President Ruhl, one of the best first-basemen ever to play softball for Delta Zeta, has been a mainstay on the volleyball, horseshoes, tennis, and touch football teams as well. His deadly passing in the football tourney won him a berth on the all-campus team. Henderson, who manages the Delt intramural program, has been impressive as a competitor in basketball, volleyball, touch football, tennis, track, handball, and softball. He was the chief target for Ruhl's aerial attempts in football play and piled up one of the highest scoring totals in the league.

Swimmers

Delta Tau Delta was well represented on the swimming team of Western Reserve University this past year. Pat Clark, Dan Griese, and Dick Portman all swam freestyle. Jack Beck and Bruce Haase were backstrokers, and Bob Harris, breast stroke.

The competition throughout the season was very keen and Reserve lost several close meets, however, these men were very consistent and contributed a number of first and second places throughout the season.

West Virginia Delts Chosen

Phi Delta Phi, law honorary, recently initiated twelve men. Three of the twelve men initiated were Gamma Delts. Joe Pettigrew, of Charleston, Tom White, of Clarksburg, and the former president, Jack Beddow, were the men so honored. These men were selected for their scholastic average and outstanding work in Law School.

First in Scholarship

The Delts at Baker led all the other organizations on the campus in scholarship last semester, with an average index of 1.67. Sixteen men out of a chapter of fifty made indexes of 2.00 or better. Top honors went to pledge, now active, Clark "Shorty" Payne, who made an index of 2.79. Frank Leitnaker, Jr., also deserves special recognition. He is the only man in the chapter who is eligible for Alpha Delta Sigma, honorary scholastic fraternity at Baker University. Frank has maintained an average index of 2.30 or better during his entire schooling at Baker.

Cop Intramural Lead

After getting off to a slow start in softball and football at the beginning of the year, the Gamma Theta Delts came back strong enough in basketball to take the lead in intramural competition. After dropping the first game of the season, the Delts came back to win all the rest of the games. Two records were broken at the last game of the season, when we defeated a rival frat by the lopsided score of 61-30, and Brother Don Hardy scored 24 points, the highest individual score for the whole season. "Tall in the Saddle" Jay Morgan who averaged 11.6 points per game was voted the outstanding player of the year.

Gamma Nu Chapter Wins Highest Social Fraternity Scholastic Record at U. of Maine

Delta Tau Delta Fraternity at the University of Maine topped all other social fraternities on Maine campus for the 1946-47 fall semester. In winning the scholastic cup this year, Dean of Men Elton E. Wieman reported that the house achieved 2.77 out of a possible 4.0 average (all A's). Sixteen men of the forty Gamma Nu members achieved the Dean's List. Doug Collins and Eric Hanson led the Delts in winning the much-coveted scholastic cup with all A's. Collins is a sophomore premedical student, while Hanson, a 26th Infantry Division veteran, is a junior majoring in history and government.

Orchid Formal

One of the high lights of the social season on the Iowa State campus was the revival of Gamma Pi Chapter's Orchid Formal. The evening's program included the crowning of the Queen of Delta Tau Delta, who will reign during the coming year. At the same time every Delt's partner was presented an orchid, and Gamma Pi's housemother was honored with a white orchid.

Irick of Gamma Theta

If the Gamma Theta Delts were to select from their midst one of their members to play the role of the "outstanding Delt of the year," the unanimous choice would be Jim Irick. Brother Irick has been outstanding since the first day he set foot on the Baker campus, back in 1941.

During his freshman year, Jim made quite a name for himself in athletics and campus activities. His strong points were football and basketball, and Jim lettered in both of the sports during that year.

Jim's sophomore year was interrupted by the Army, but not before he had piled up honor after honor upon himself and the Fraternity. Jim was selected to both the All-Conference football and basketball teams during that year. His friendly attitude, spirit of co-operativeness, and loyalty were such that it was no surprise to anyone when he was elected Popularity King of the campus, before leaving for the army.

Jim returned to the campus last fall, after spending three years in the army, and everyone wondered if three years of the GI life would dull his prowess in the field of sports. Jim soon calmed any such fears by turning in even finer performances than he had done before. He was chosen captain of the football squad and led his team to a very successful year. He was chosen to the position of end on the first team of the All-Conference league. Basketball was the same story all over, with Jim leading the scorers in the Kansas Conference and again being selected to the All-Star team.

Jim's assets are not only those in the field of sports. From the very beginning he has proven himself, both on and off the campus, as being an all-round Delt. Jim holds a very high position on the Dean's honor roll, and is one of the men responsible for Gamma Theta's high scholarship this year. The members of Gamma Theta salute Jim Irick!

Founders Day at Kansas State

Ten town alumni gathered in the Shelter on Sunday, March 9, to celebrate Founders Day. Gamma Chi's beloved cook, Daisy, prepared another one of her famous dinners.

After dinner President Karl Kramer introduced several speakers among whom were Dr. F. D. Farrell, President emeritus of Kansas State College, and K. W. Phillips, '10, who was a charter member of the local fraternity, Aztex, that later affiliated with Delta Tau Delta.

The local alumni association was strengthened at this time for the purpose of moving toward the construction of a new Shelter.

Fiftieth Anniversary

The celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Omega was held April 12. President G. Herbert McCracken and Alvan E. Duerr were the principal speakers at the banquet. The Lafayette and Lehigh Chapters were invited to participate in the ceremonies, and Omega's pledge class was initiated.

On the week end of the interfraternity ball a cruise party was held at the Shelter. The pledges decorated the house for what turned out to be the most gala soiree since the war. One room, designated as "Davey Jones' Locker," was similar to that seafarers' resting place except for the lack of water. The marine effect was completed by a mermaid resting on the piano and an array of signal flags and ships' wheels.

Clayt Mrohaly and John Van Cott succeeded in winning the university bridge tournament. Due to the latter's graduation at midterm they were unable to travel to Chicago to compete in the national contest.

Bill Schindler, varsity swimming team breast-stroke ace, has recently broken the university breast-stroke record. Bill, who is now a sophomore in the school of electrical engineering, should have a colorful swimming career ahead of him.

Yearbook Editor

Jack Bundy, Beta Beta, '48, has been named editor of the Mirage, DePauw campus yearbook. This is the second successive year the post has gone to a Delt.

Delta Queen at Duke

The members of Delta Kappa are hard at work preparing for the annual Delta Queen Dance, scheduled to be held April 19 in the Crystal Ballroom of the Washington Duke Hotel in downtown Durham. It is planned to make this one of the largest fraternity dances of the season at Duke University, with many of the Fraternity alumni who reside near by and officials of the University on hand. Music will be furnished by "Clancy" Warta (of Delta Kappa) and his band, the "Continents." As yet, the Delt Queen has not been chosen, but the members are searching diligently among the "steadies" and "pin-ups" for the most outstanding girl.

New Chapter Room

The chapter room, long awaited addition to the Beta Xi Shelter, was recently completed amid the joyous huzzahs of Prexy Bill Cady and all others concerned. Formal meetings have become standard procedure, much to everybody's delight. The Tulane alums received cheers from the undergrads for their contributions to the refurnishing of the Shelter. New tiling and plumbing are making their appearance soon.

Klondike Gold Rush

Beta Kappa's winter formal this year was held at the Shelter, with an atmosphere of the Alaskan Klondike. Although the dance was formal, sawdust which covered the floor of the rec room, as well as pine swinging doors, gave one the immediate impression of the days of the Klondike gold rush. Schooners, with names imprinted, were provided as favors for the guests. Approximately four hundred people attended the dance. Certainly the Klondike was a success, and it is said to have been one of the best dances of the season at Colorado.

Chapter Paper Scores

Lehigh Delts have announced the postwar debut of the chapter's publication, the Beta Lambda. Under the able supervision of Stan Lawler and John Attaway, the paper's first issue brought compliments from both undergraduates and alumni.

The issue featured a section devoted to short biographies of the undergraduates who make up Beta Lambda Chapter. This section's aim was to introduce the college men to alumni who have not had the opportunity to visit the Shelter recently. Judging from favorable comments, it hit its mark.

Rho Snowball

One of the outstanding features of the winter social season at Stevens was the annual Delt Formal, though the blizzard that fell on New York turned it into a "Snowball."

The dance was prefaced by a dinner at the Shelter, followed by a trek to New York. The snow, far from dampening spirits, made the soft lights and luxurious accommodations of the Hotel Astor more inviting.

More than five hundred members, pledges, alumni, guests, and their dates enjoyed an evening of smooth dancing and gaiety.

ART BEARD

Outstanding Record

In the winter of 1945, Upsilon Chapter at Rensselaer pledged a boy who, in the next two years of his college life, was to make one of the most outstanding records in the history of the chapter.

Art Beard first started making headlines in the spring of '45 when he won his varsity letter in track. The following fall his outstanding performances at halfback, in scoring six of the season's touchdowns, won him a place in the 1945 National Football Guide. Going from football to indoor track that winter, he ran as anchor man on the RPI relay team which took second place at the NYAC meet in Madison Square Garden.

Scholastically one of the top men in his class, he was elected president of L.C.R., student electrical engineering society, and was elected, also, to Eta Kappa Nu, national honorary electrical engineering society.

In the spring of '46 he won another varsity letter, this time in lacrosse. During the lacrosse season he was tapped by Phalanx, the highest honor a student can receive on the RPI campus. The fall of that same year found Art playing his last season of college football. As captain and season's high scorer, he turned in a brilliant performance, with his unbelievable speed and broken field running accounting for more than one thousand of the total yards gained. At this time, having maintained an "A" average throughout his three years at RPI, he was elected to Tau Beta Pi, national undergraduate engineering honor society. As a fitting climax to his college career, he has just been notified of his nomination to this year's edition of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

As a Delt, however, it is not these scholastic or athletic honors, but rather his modest manner and steadying influence, that have played such an important part in the life of Upsilon Chapter these past three years. And it is his sincere spirit of brotherhood and high ideals of life that have won for him the respect and admiration of his brothers and made him truly "a Good Delt."

Gamma Xi Wheels

Two of the main stalwarts of Delt participation in the campus political and social whirl at Cincinnati are Robert K. (Ken) Guise and Gordon A. Hughmark. Even while playing varsity basketball and being very active in all intramural sports, Ken found time for most of the important activities on campus—student council, engineering tribunal, Sigma Sigma (activities honorary), ODK, and finally Tau Beta Pi.

As if one were not enough, Gordon Hughmark also added laurels galore: president of the student council and Sigma Sigma, member of ODK, and now recently Tau Beta Pi. Both men are chemical engineer seniors, no mean accomplishment in itself, and all in all are two who exemplify Delt spirit to the letter.

Many Honors at Beta Upsilon

The "Shelter" is in full swing again after a tough postwar struggle. Under the leadership of Chuck Urban, chapter president, the men at "302" are working as a team—for old DTD and for the fighting Illini.

Warren Sullivan, senior from Chicago, took the Big Nine fencing championship in the saber division last April, which gave the Delts and the Illini some more coveted honors.

Julie Rykovich, star halfback for the Rose Bowl champions, has played his last gridiron game for Illinois and is now playing on the first string of the baseball squad along with Andy Phillip. Andy, the only basketeer who has ever broken and held all basketball scoring records, finished his college career as captain of the immortal "Whiz Kids." Ralph "Babe" Serpico, another Delt gaining football recognition, has also finished his days for the Illini footballers. The "Babe" was All-America in '44 and captained the team in '45.

Along intramural lines, the chapter is holding first place in total points (all sports) and hopes to see the championship trophy on the mantle come the termination of the semester.

Socially speaking, Beta Upsilon is still holding its own as far as parties, picnics, and dances are concerned. To the tune of the juke-box, the chapter sponsored a very successful dance last April in the combination living room and ball-room. The annual spring formal, a three-day affair, will be held for all Delts on May 8, 9, 10.

Illinois Delts are now awaiting the alumni reunion which will take place on April 18 and 19. The unveiling of a painting of the late "Mike" Tobin, nationally known figure in college sports and past Director of Athletics at the University of Illinois, will be the feature event of the evening.

Beta Upsilon extends a permanent invitation to all Delts and their friends to visit our "home away from home" at 302 East John Street in Champaign.

Dutch Initiate

Gamma Zeta initiated Karel Lodewijk Winkler, the first Dutch

student to be enrolled in Wesleyan University, at recent ceremonies. Karel comes from Berg-Ambracht, Z. H., situated on the Rhine River near Rotterdam. He received a solid, well-rounded education at three different schools in his own country and entered Wesleyan in the junior class as a government major.

His father was appointed burgo-master of Berg-Ambracht and Amnerstol by the crown before the war as a guarantee of his political loyalty. Naturally this led him into practices considered "illegal" by the occupying Germans. Karel upheld his father's views and served in the Underground for about five years, working his way from a messenger boy to a position comparable to a first lieutenant.

Karel says: "I studied English many years, but I realized how little I knew when I arrived here." His fluency now is remarkable—surpassing that of many native Americans. Karel is an expert at water polo, and is at present teaching swimming in the Middletown Y.M.C.A.

When finished at Wesleyan, Karel plans to do graduate work in America or abroad. He hopes some day to be in the diplomatic service of Holland and associate with people the world over. "I'm restless," he confided.

Spring Practice

Ainslie Bell, Bob Hall, Don Zappettini, Fred Parsons, and Ted Liljenwal all returned to Stanford and Beta Rho this quarter with spring football practice in mind. They were all members of last season's squad. Bell, out for half of last season with a bad knee, returns this quarter fresh from surgery and a three-month rest. He will pace the squad as quarterback.

George Grimes, who ran a 1:54 half last week, will be the featured middle distance man on the track team. Lloyd McGovern and Pete Bosche will vie in the field events.

Bill Arce, third sacker, Ward Walkup, catcher, and Clyde Dingfelder, second base, all return to the baseball team this quarter.

Milt Iverson and Gus Chavalas, forward and guard, respectively, have just received their letters for their grade A play on the basketball team this past season.

Student Body Officers

The annual student body elections on the Ohio Wesleyan campus witnessed great success for the Delta Taus, with both of their candidates being swept into office.

The elections have become a rich and colorful tradition at Wesleyan, and they are accompanied by two weeks of gala social events, torchlight parades, serenades, campaign speeches, and other vote-winning stunts.

Sherry Rowland, member of Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa and active in varsity athletics, was elected to the presidency of the senior class.

Bob Bruce, popular campus dance band leader, was elected to the position of campus song leader. Bob was assisted in his campaign by his 2½-year-old daughter, Bonnie, who helped him accumulate the largest plurality of any candidate this year.

All-Ohio Winners

Mu Chapter gathered new laurels for themselves and their Alma Mater, Ohio Wesleyan, by copping second place in an All Ohio Interfraternity Sing at Ohio State on February 21. The Ohio State representatives won first place in a very close contest. Other contestants were Ohio University, Marietta, Oberlin, and Wittenberg.

The song fest was a part of the celebration of Greek Week at Columbus. Another phase of the program was composed of discussions of fraternity life, with Brother Tom Herbert, Governor of Ohio, and Brother Carl V. Weygandt, Chief Justice, Supreme Court of Ohio, participating.

The men of Mu took top honors in a preliminary contest at Ohio Wesleyan to determine the school's representative to the All Ohio contest. Kelly Danford, who has become very well known on the campus for his many capabilities in the speech and music departments, directed the group in their three selections: "Surrey With the Fringe on Top," "If I Love You," and "Delta Shelter."

Bruce's Band

In November of 1940, eight Ohio Wesleyan students got together under the leadership of Lou Conrad and formed a band which for many years has progressed under the name of "Lou Conrad and his Ohio Wesleyan Campus Dance Band."

In February of this year, a change in leadership in the organization has resulted in one of our brother Delts taking over the famous aggregation, with Brother Bob Bruce being chosen by the men themselves to lead the group.

Bob is a junior and has been playing with the band since 1942. He served for three years in the Army Air Corps and since last spring has been back tooting his well known sax better than ever before. Bob, while in the army, married Eady Collins and they now have a two and one-half year old daughter, Bonnie Bruce.

The band has played at practically every college in the state and has gained for itself a great reputation. Appropriately enough, the orchestra played at Mu's spring formal in May.

Delt Hockey Star

"Little Dynamite" was what they called him during his pre-navy days at K. U. when Delt Cliff Wade was playing a whale of a lot of guard for the Kansas football team. Cliff is back in the Shelter now to continue his physical education major. Down around his home town, Wichita, he has a reputation as "Rock Fist" Wade with the Beech

Flyers hockey team. The Wichita Beacon of February 1 carried the story of Cliff's thrilling last minute score which won a game for the Flyers and set them out in front in the league. Cliff won second place in league scoring honor for this season, trailing one of his teammates by a single point.

FRED DANNER

Fred Danner—Undergraduate

Pictured above is Fred Danner, Delt of Beta Beta, who has returned to DePauw University, not as an alumnus but as a student.

Originally, Fred entered DePauw as a freshman in September of 1926. During that year he earned a Rector scholarship and at the same time managed to wait tables and go out for football and track. During his sophomore and the beginning of his junior year, Fred remained active in these sports. He was pledged and initiated into Delta Tau and was with the first group to occupy their present house.

In January of 1928, while in the middle of his junior year, Fred left DePauw to take a position with the Merchant's National Bank at Muncie, Indiana. Five years later he went to work for the Standard Oil Company. In the ten years that followed, Fred earned a lifetime position with the company.

Fred had always regretted the fact that he had never finished school. So last fall he decided that instead of staying with his job, he would return to DePauw and graduate. He plans to enter the ministry.

Fred has been married for the last fifteen years. His wife, Georgia, along with their two children, Lynnette and Judith, are at present living near the DePauw campus.

Perhaps that saying, "you're only as old as you feel," isn't so far from the truth, for Fred has renewed his old ties with Delta Tau Delta and is one of Beta Beta's most active participants. With true Delt spirit, Fred hopes to "go out for track this spring"—that is if he is eligible.

Queen Is Honored

One of the University of Florida's biggest social events in many months was the crowning of the Delta Queen at Delta Zeta's annual Rainbow Ball, held March 7 at the Club 400. Miss Jane Boring, of Gainesville, was crowned Queen by chapter President Dan Ruhl and received a leather dressing case and gold compact presented by the admiring actives and pledges. Four of the many alumni present, Dr. Elmer Hinckley, Dean of the Psychology Department, Dr. Glenn Mead, prominent local dentist, Col. William Fifield, head of the local O.R.C., and Capt. Jack Williams, were the judges who made their selection from more than seventy beautiful Delt dates. The crowning of the queen climaxed a gala evening begun early by 150 Delts and their guests with a formal banquet followed by the ball with dancing to specially arranged Delt songs. Favors in the form of silver swords bearing the Delt crest were presented with appropriate ceremony to all dates.

Keeping up the pace set at the first evening's festivities, Delta Zeta's enthusiastic men entertained their guests with a picnic the next afternoon at the Devil's Mill Hopper, one of nature's local beauty spots. The evening and the week end were officially closed with a pop dance that night at the Delta Shelter where tired but happy Delts danced to the rhythm of a foursome of Delta Zeta's own popular musicians.

Nine Out of Eleven

Delta Epsilon Chapter was adjudged the winner in the men's division of the annual All-Campus Sing held on the University of Kentucky campus in February. Delta Epsilon has won the Sing nine out of the last eleven years.

Joseph Young, newly elected president of the chapter, and Harold Bell Wright, corresponding secretary for the coming year, were leaders of the twenty-five men who composed the group.

Selections rendered by the group were: "Sal, the Doggoned," a jilted Negro's plaint, written by Harvey B. Gaul; "My Delta Shelta"; and "Invictus," written by Bruno Hahn.

A total of seven fraternities participated in the sing this year. Kentucky Delts have been accused by some "misguided creatures" on the campus of giving voice auditions before pledging a man.

Delta Epsilon looks forward to the next year's sing with as much interest as was shown this year for the majority of the men who participated this year will be back in school.

Sewanee Reports Activity

Beta Theta Chapter has been one of the most active fraternal organizations on the Mountain during the past few months. Recent initiations and pledgings have attracted the most interest, but social functions, athletic events, and the redecorating of the Shelter have not been far behind in popularity.

The redecoration program is under way at present, and the old Delta Shelter is taking on new aspects of glory. A co-operative spirit prevails, and judging from the progress already made, the house should be ready for our Spring Formal, now set for May 3.

Beta Theta Chapter is always well represented in varsity sports. Several Delts were on last year's football team, and President Harry Miller is regarded as one of the finest prospects for the 1947 eleven. A large percentage of the basketball team was comprised of Delts, two of them first stringers.

A new publication of the newspaper type is planned, with Ronnie Howell as editor. It is intended chiefly as a means of keeping alumni and friends in touch with the chapter.

Georgia Tech Leaders

Even though the Delts at Georgia Tech have rugged engineering courses to battle, they have always found time to foster leadership on the campus and to keep the name and spirit of Delta Tau Delta ever present there.

Noel Turner, senior electrical engineering student, has achieved the distinction of being recognized in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. His splendid record of leadership is his qualification. Noel, who was the chapter's vice-president in 1946, is now prexy of the Tech Student Council.

Erskine Love, past treasurer of Gamma Psi, was recently elected president of Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary journalistic society. He is news editor of the Technique and editor of the fraternity section of Tech's yearbook, the Blueprint. Last year he was president of Phi Eta Sigma, freshman scholastic honorary. He is a member of Pi Tau Sigma, International Relations Club, and the interfraternity council representative for the chapter.

Buddy Fiske, past vice-president of the chapter, is the president of the Society for Advancement of Management and is the assistant news editor of the Technique.

Darnell Rucker, who received his

B.S. in electrical engineering in March, was an outstanding scholar. He was a member of Phi Eta Sigma, Eta Kappa Nu, and Tau Beta Pi.

Chapter Rated Superior

Beta Phi Chapter was one of three fraternity chapters on the Ohio State campus to be given superior rating by the Dean of Men's office. This rating is based on scholarship, finances, co-operation, housing, etc. Beta Phi is the only chapter on campus that has been given this distinction for the last three times.

Campus Leaders

Beta Phi's men are prominent in all campus activities. Of the three top student activities on Ohio State's campus, two are headed by Delts. Bruce Paschal, chapter president, is Director of Student Activities, and Dave King is secretary-treasurer of Fraternity Affairs, a highly cherished position among the Greek organizations.

Spooks at Minnesota

On the night of February 28, Beta Eta Chapter tossed its annual winter quarter house party. While an eerie wind howled dismally about the eaves and the shutters banged convincingly, some seventy of the local stalwarts and their dates gathered at the Ol' Haunted House, at 1717 University Avenue. a hands-and-knees entrance through the coal chute, guests were given a somewhat clammy greeting by their host for the evening, Dead Earnest, and then issued into the smoke-laden atmosphere of the Morgue Room.

In the two weeks preceding the party, the house had been tastefully decorated with broken windows (simulated, natch), cracked walls, spooks, goblins, several open graves, a few casual pools of blood here and there, and several choice assorted bodies. Pledge Johnny Madsen, a jivester of local repute, and his band were knocking themselves out in grand manner, and the joint resounded to the shuffle of dancing feet. Warnecke, Master of Mystery, interrupted proceedings long enough to put on a show of Black Magic which enhanced the atmosphere of skulduggery no end.

The party wound up in a blaze of glory and furnished topic for conversation along sorority row for weeks. The affair is a credit to the spirit of co-operation of the entire chapter and to the ingenuity of the able social chairman, Bud Sharp, and his equally able assistant, Don Woodhouse.

Notes From Delta

Delta Chapter at Michigan added fifteen new actives to its membership list March 15. Several alumni attended the initiation, banquet, stag party, and dance, which made up the activities of the day at the Shelter.

At the close of the first semester the chapter was in fifth place on the campus scholastically with a 2.5 average, including both actives and pledges.

Flying Delegate

Among delegates hustling to the Western Division Conference at Austin, Texas, was Ross Babcock, Delta Gamma, flying Delt, who winged his way from Vermillion to Austin in seven hours aboard his snappy Stinson Reliant. Ross is an old hand at the flying game as he now has 500 hours to his credit and is working on his commercial license. Almost any sunny day one can observe a group of students with heads uplifted and amazed looks upon their faces, and it is a certain bet that they are watching Ross pull some sharp maneuvers over the Delt Shelter or over the campus. Ross is the only student at the university to have the distinction of owning his own plane, so Delta Gamma is proud to salute its "Flying Delt." In addition to being a law major and doing a great deal of flying, Ross is treasurer of Delta Gamma, so one can easily see that he is truly a busy fellow.

A Pair of the Boys

Two more of Delta Beta's illustrious undergraduate members are now bringing fame to the chapter. They are Dick Eschenbach and Bob Charpie, both Physics, '48, and both Westinghouse Scholarship holders. The immediate cause of their rise to fame is their winning of the campus bridge championship, no mean feat on the Carnegie Tech campus which seems to be populated entirely by fanatic devotees of that peculiar pastime.

Their eminence would not be so striking were it not for the fact that they both are doing rather well in other fields of endeavor. Bob manages to keep pretty busy with his studies, since he is aiming at getting his Master's Degree in eight semesters.

Dick must be lazy or something, for he's going to take nine semesters to get his Master's Degree; however, since he's active in Tau Beta Pi and is at present the editor of the school paper, the Tartan, he may be forgiven this time. These two have no corner on the brains in the house, as there are five other Westinghouse scholars in the house, an extraordinarily large percentage of the total on campus.

Beta Tau Initiation

Fourteen "squabs" were initiated by Beta Tau Chapter March 26 at the Fontenelle Hotel in Omaha at a function sponsored by the Omaha alumni. More than seventy-five alumni, actives, and actives-to-be attended the preinitiation banquet.

Epsilon Activities

With a flying start in the intramural basketball tournament, the Epsilon quintet got a substantial grasp on first place. The first string composed of Bob Mohr and Bill Kasler at guard, Pledge Chuck Gross and Earl Bower at forward, and Ham Scharff at center proved a hard combination to beat. Fine substitute work by Bob Nixon, Bill Shafer, and Butch Valato kept the scores high. Although the boys met some tough luck toward the end of the season, with the good start under their belts they managed to end up tied for the top berth. Four of the five positions on the campus all-star team were snatched by Delts.

Turning from the basketball court to the swimming pool, the Delts walked off with the honors in the interfraternity meet. By grabbing six firsts out of the eleven events, the team easily churned its way to victory. Pledge Paul Friese took the 50-yard free style, while Pledge Bill Newcomer scored in the 25 and 75-yard backstroke. The 50-yard backstroke and the individual medley were captured by Bob Richards, and the medley team eked out a first in the relay.

On the social calendar Epsilon's annual "Black and White" stands out. This year marked the fifteenth of these big week-end parties which come between semesters in February. Beginning with an informal party at the Shelter on Friday, the week end reaches a grand climax with an out-of-town dinner-dance on Saturday night and an informal gathering Sunday. The Friday night party this year saw the Shelter transformed into a barn with hay, harnesses, and the whole works as atmosphere for a hard-times affair. The decorations caused considerable talk for some time afterward. Then the formal dance at Battle Creek broke all records for attendance and entertainment. To make a long story short, the "Black and White" is readily accepted as the number one social event on Albion's campus.

News of Beta Beta

The mid-day chapel periods at DePauw may not always be well attended, but a standing room only crowd is assured when the announcements of Phi Beta Kappa awards are made. Of the twenty-seven who copped their keys this year, fifteen were men; of these fifteen, three were Beta Beta Deltas—Don Torchiana with a whopping 2.8 average, Billy Dailey with 2.6, and John Hardebeck with 2.5.

Gamma Nu Captures Winter Carnival High Light Prize

Gamma Nu Chapter of Delta Tau Delta at the University of Maine won first prize in the Snow Sculpture Contest during the gala three-day Winter Carnival held in February.

Bob Bouchard, a sophomore, was chairman of the chapter snow sculpture committee, and there is no need of telling about the excellent job that he and his committee did, to bring Gamma Nu to the forefront over 20 other entries.

Herbert "Bud" Davis, Jr., another committeeman and sophomore, was the originator of the Sculpture which played up the annual Winter Carnival basketball game between Rhode Island State Rams and the Maine Black Bears. His ideas, that culminated in first place, was a broken-down tree trunk on top of a huge block of ice with a ram balancing himself tenaciously on top of the trunk with the black bear (representing the University of Maine) climbing up after him.

The artistic work was mainly done by Jim Demetriou, who carried over some of his ancestor's Grecian artistic skill that really made the bear and ram seem alive to all spectators.

Others who did admirable work in winning a beautiful cup for the chapter were Phil Coffin, Bill Stickel, Conky Beaulieu, and Bob Merchant.

Intramural Champs

Gamma Iota Deltas came through in March to take the fraternity intramural basketball championship at the University of Texas—an especially noteworthy feat because this was the third consecutive year that Deltas have reigned as champions in basketball.

After victories over the Phi Gam's, K. A.'s, Chi Phi's, and Kappa Sig's in league play, the Deltas took a one-sided semifinals victory over the Sammies and won the finals in a thrilling game with the S. A. E.'s that went into overtime play before ending in a 20-19 score.

Unique Party

The Deltas of Gamma Iota Chapter continually gain special attention and commendation around the Texas campus for unique parties, unusual decoration ideas, and in general a novel way of doing things. The current school year has proved an especially successful one for Gamma Iota's "idea men," whose efforts have reaped several trophies and further prestige for the chapter.

Catchy campaign slogans and songs helped three Delt candidates to win in their races for student government positions last fall, as more Deltas went into office than did members of any other campus organization.

Along other lines, the Delt Varsity Carnival show gained wide comment for its unique adaptation of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" into pantomime; and in decorating contests Delta Tau took the trophy for its Thanksgiving Texas Aggie baiting signs and a first place in the city-wide Christmas decoration contest.

Top social functions during the year have been the Delt Winter

Formal, Western Division Conference Formal, Christmas party, and numerous costume parties at the Shelter, and in every case success was largely attributable to the execution of unique decorative schemes and extraordinary party ideas.

As this was written, an all-night work session was in progress to construct Delta Tau's float for the annual Roundup parade, a competition that was won by Gamma Iota in the last prewar presentation before it was temporarily discontinued.

(P. S. Gamma Iota's entry placed second in the Roundup float competition.)

Three Brothers Score

Gamma is proud of three of its members who are regulars on the W. & J. basketball squad. They are the Knoche brothers: Hank, Chuck, and Dave. Chuck and Dave, both freshmen, played outstanding ball throughout Jay's successful season.

Hank, a senior, paced the Prexies this year in point-getting, being always near the twenty mark. Operating from a forward post, he stood out as a hawk on rebounds and as a consistent scorer. His graduation will be a great loss to the team and to Gamma Chapter.

Scholastic Champs

The scholastic champs on Hillsdale's campus are the members of Kappa Chapter. With a rousing average of 1.906(B-), Kappa topped all the national fraternities and sororities on campus on the scholastic honor list issued March 11, 1947, by the registrar's office.

Individually, Kappa's big guns were Charles Bretschneider, Charles Kline, David DeCamp, William Friedrichs, and Jack Berger, with all A's. These five Deltas constituted 50 per cent of the all-A students on campus. Twelve members, with B or better averages, were mentioned on the scholastic honor list.

In addition, Charles Bretschneider, Charles Kline, and William Friedrichs were tapped for membership in Epsilon Delta Alpha, the scholastic honor fraternity at Hillsdale. David DeCamp is already a member of this organization. At this "tapping," three of the seven male members honored were Deltas.

Helter-Shelter Ramblings

We notice that:

Gamma Tau's intramural basketball team came out with the co-championship of their league. . . . Prexy John Gunther came back from the Western Division Conference of March 13 in Austin, Texas, with a million wonderful ideas and another million wonderful things to say about Gamma Iota's Southern hospitality. . . . Thirty K. U. Deltas attended the Founders Day Banquet in Kansas City, March 21. . . . Alumni response to rushing is superb at Kansas U. . . . Spring has returned to the campus, and the social calendar is full: steak fry, spring picnic, spring formal, etc. . . . Gamma Tau initiated 13 new brothers in February with two Delt fathers, "Fuzzy" Wilson and John L. Hawley, present to see their sons initiated.

Tennessee Celebrates

Delta Delta Chapter observed Founders Day with one of the most inspiring and impressive banquets in the history of the Fraternity. High light of the evening was the presence of Charles Pearson, President of the Southern Division, who came in from Nashville to be feature speaker of the evening. Present also were Delt alumni Sam Carson and Henry C. Foutch, state controller and assistant attorney general, respectively.

Mr. Pearson gave a most informative and interesting talk on the true picture of Delta Tau Delta. Other speakers of the evening were Felix Nance and Greg Benson. The fraternity choir rendered several of the favorite Delt songs, including "My Delta Queen." The chorus chose for its last number "Integer Vitae," with the final verse being hummed as Dr. Clifford Barbour gave the closing prayer. The entire group then sang "Delta Shelter."

Athletes at Idaho

Lettermen Paul Thome and Charles Urban, of Delta Mu Chapter, hold spots on the tennis team. Frosh who earned junior varsity sweaters are Tommy Moore and Glen Cushman. Dead-shot Dick Boyle secured a rifle "I" for his contribution to Idaho's Hearst Trophy championship team. Shaping up fast as a mound artist is Pitcher Bob Metzger. Under Art Aman, Delta Mu wound up a so-so intramural year by winning the fraternity softball league championship.

Delt Actor at UCLA

Delt Bob Bainbridge, of Delta Iota Chapter at UCLA, has been chosen for the male lead in the State Department movie of life on a typical American university campus. The film, now shooting on the UCLA campus, will be produced in many different languages and shown in more than fifty foreign countries.

Entertain Housemothers

March brought the revival of one more distinctive Beta Pi event at Northwestern, the Housemothers Dinner. Like everything else, the custom had been shelved during the war years, but on March 12, it was hauled out and dusted off.

BOB BAINBRIDGE

Seventeen sorority housemothers and one fraternity house matron comprised the guest list. A rose at the dinner place and soft music during the meal by Dick Roe and the good Delt piano created a genteel, candlelight atmosphere.

Following the dinner, the ladies had a chance to gossip about the terrible cost of food and the difficulty of getting help to wash windows. When they had exhausted adjectives and adverbs, the entertainment was brought on.

Vice-President Jack Fox was emcee for the evening, mixing his smooth magic routine with some slightly less than subtle hints to the mothers on how to treat the Good Delt when he crosses the sorority house doorstep.

Ralph Pearson and "Hap" Halliday added their laugh-loaded skits to the entertainment. The evening closed with an impromptu serenade to the ladies and they squealed with the proper tones of delight.

The affair may sound slightly like a political move, which it is, but it's a sure recipe for a swell evening and a lot of fun.

First at Wabash

Beta Psi Chapter won the intramural basketball championship, placing its members first in intramural standings by twenty-three points, with only four sports left to go. The chapter has placed second in both football and volleyball.

Beta Psi also placed first in the stunts contest at the Indiana Founders Day celebration in Indianapolis, March 1. The stunt was the singing of a solid, eight-dialect arrangement of "Schnitzelbank."

Delta Alpha Entertains

The Deltas at Oklahoma have held guest dinners once during every week and every Sunday. They have had a formal dinner for the sorority presidents, a dinner for the military staff on the campus, and a Delt Diveparty for the campus coeds. The alumni also came through with an all-state party in Oklahoma City; it was great to see the Deltas of '22 show the Deltas of '47 how to stage a successful party.

Winter Carnival

Dartmouth's first postwar Winter Carnival, returning to the campus after a six year's absence, was a magnificent spectacle. Delt talent played a large part in making this week end of winter sports such a great success and aiding it to live up to the fine reputation of prewar week ends. Brother Bob McLeod composed the musical score for Outdoor Evening, that impressive pageant of the great out-of-doors which is one of the major features of Winter Carnival.

Brother Doug Leigh's novel portrayal of a skier hurtling downslope was chosen as the design for the official Carnival poster. Doug also designed and superintended construction of the huge snow statue of the Dartmouth Indian which was our entry in the campus snow sculpture contest. Standing higher than the second story of the Delt House, Doug's masterpiece was the most striking snow figure on campus, one which will be long remembered by all those who attended our house parties.

Georgia Advances

The advancement of Beta Delta has been swift and firm, since it was reactivated last July. Beta Delta started with only seven active members but plans are now being acted on for an enrollment of fifty by the end of the spring quarter. Every member is looking forward to a greater enrollment that will enable the chapter to possess a more solid structure.

If enrollment plans are carried out, the chapter is planning to start shopping for a larger and better house. Considering the advancement that has been made so far, there is little doubt in the minds of the members of Beta Delta that they can achieve their goal.

Founders Day Banquet

Delts from Gamma Tau met brothers from four other chapters at the University Club in Kansas City, March 21, at the annual Founders Day Banquet which is sponsored by the Kansas City Alumni Chapter.

More than 200 men were present to hear Dr. William W. Sweet, of Chicago, Mu Chapter, deliver an address concerning "Delta Tau Delta, Its Past and Its Future." Kansas Delts were very much impressed by Dr. Sweet's address, and they thoroughly enjoyed the program and banquet dinner.

Tying for Trophy

During the past year Gamma Sigma has continued to be in the fore of activities at Pitt. Delt Bob Reighert is president of the YMCA group at the University. At present the chapter is in a three-way tie for the annual Interfraternity Trophy. The continued good showing of the chapter in athletics is due in great part to the work of Bob Hughes and Bill Hawkins. Brother Hughes has been selected on the all-fraternity football and basketball squads. Winning of the I-F Trophy will climax a most active and successful year for Gamma Sigma.

Boston

Plans are progressing for our postwar reorganization meeting in the near future at the Beta Mu (Tufts) Shelter to christen Beta Mu's new war memorial dining room. New officers will be elected and plans made to get into postwar gear with resumption of our evening meetings beginning next fall.

Our Thursday luncheons are well attended at Patten's on Court Street, and we hope to see all visiting Deltas with us if they are in Boston on Thursdays.

We look forward to a full program this fall which will include our regular Thursday luncheons plus an evening meeting per month.

Stark County

The Stark County Alumni Association is breezing along under the leadership of its new president, H. W. (Bud) Burris, the Pretzel King. Brother Wilt has just returned from California and Brother Tod Cobbey is sunning himself in Florida. Brother James Young has just received a

It does seem perplexing that a group of Deltas in one locality can be so active while those in another so dormant and inactive. After all, their interests in the Fraternity should be quite identical. . . .

They do not attempt to systematize their efforts around some worthy cause or purpose. It always seems a good idea to have an objective—an ultimate aim or goal—and to hurl some ideal or ambition ahead and then fight toward it. Merely a luncheon club will not suffice, as these in many instances degenerate into harmless feasts of discussion, yielding no particular nourishment and sometimes dangerous indigestion. From the standpoint of usefulness and symbol of purpose, except as affairs of fellowship, these are relics of a long departed era.—Comment by A. B. Walling, Secretary of Alumni, in answer to a recent graduate's protestation of inactivity in an alumni chapter.

Chicago

If the prediction of Dr. Cyril O. Houle, Delta Zeta, '34, eminent adult education leader, is correct that "within the next twenty-five years, almost everybody will be enrolled in some form of organized learning," then there may be a future sphere of influence among adults for Delta Tau Delta as a "constructive adjunct to the system of higher education."

"We have forgotten the old truth that education is a thing for all life, and that the great teachers taught not youth, but adults," the dean of University College, University of Chicago, told one hundred Deltas of the Chicago area who attended the Founders Day luncheon March 1 at the Union League Club.

"But now the old idea of education is being reintroduced. It will have an enormous impact on the lives of all of us," Dr. Houle prophesied.

At 34, Dr. Houle has already made an outstanding record in the development and administration of such educational innovations as the University's Executive Program, the Union Leaders' Program, and the Great Books Course.

That the educational development Dr.

Houle predicts is already under way is evidenced by increasing enrollments in adult courses of every description. The Great Books Courses developed by the University of Chicago, for example, now have an enrollment of 6,500.

"Lives, regardless of vocation, will be far more interesting if we keep on learning," Dr. Houle declared. "The process keeps man alive. Although average figures show that the ability to learn new things rises through youth to the age of 20, then levels off to about 45, and then starts downward until at 55 a man learns about as well as a boy of 14, it is significant that among those who have kept on learning during the 20-45 period, the ability to learn does not decline after middle-life, but remains the same. The factor of use largely determines what happens to a man's mind."

Dr. Houle cited as advantages of adult classes not only enriched personal lives, but an improved society. Economic and social ills tend to disappear as the level of education and culture rises. The improvement of the individual enables him to reach goals of happiness—in his vocation, his family, his health, and his social effectiveness.

The vast superstructure to our present educational system, which Dr. Houle visualizes, suggests an end to "the middle-aged rut" and promises whole lifetimes filled with the stimulation and enthusiasm of college youth. Delt alumni chapters of the future may perhaps discover the natural fraternalism which thrives wherever men are learning together, and which characterizes our most vigorous undergraduate chapters today.

Officers newly elected on Founders Day are Jack L. West, DePauw, '38, president, and James B. Matson, DePauw, '40, and Cincinnati, '42, treasurer. Brother West is Regional Freight Traffic Manager of Transcontinental and Western Air and served as treasurer of the chapter last year. Brother Matson is Controller of the Fisher Process Manufacturing Company. Robert H. Gardner, Amherst, '36, public relations counsel, was elected secretary to serve another term.

At the speakers' table, A. B. Walling, just returned from Florida, easily boasted the best coat of tan. Orville C. Dewey, George Washington, '28, retiring president, received congratulations on a year of successful chapter activity, culminating in plans for an alumni directory, now in production.

We were glad to have undergraduates back with us in force. Jim Vynalek, president of Beta Pi, and Frank Bagamery, president of Gamma Beta, were honored guests and brought with them substantial delegations from Northwestern and Illinois Tech.

ROBERT H. GARDNER

Cleveland

The Cleveland Alumni Chapter held its Founders Day celebration and annual meeting at the University Club on February 20. It was the finest Delt affair that we have had in many years, with most of the credit going to President Ed Henckel for the way he put the whole show together and for doing a smooth job of presiding.

On the program for the evening Henry Eccles, as toastmaster, and Garth Slater, Ray Hyre, and Clem Frank as speakers deserve an armload of orchids for their share in making the party such an outstanding success.

As a toastmaster, Eccles really turned on the sparkle. He kept the meeting at top tempo with a superb professional job. The speech-making team of Slater, Hyre, and Frank crashed through with all that could have been ordered—no long-winded orations but just a whale of a lot of interesting Delt news, reports, and forecasts.

The above paragraph tells only part of the story of the combined annual meeting of the Cleveland Alumni Chapter and Zeta Chapter initiation banquet. Jack Baskin gave a mighty good account of Zeta Chapter and presented Pat Clark and his great group of actives. Art Francis, the treasurer, very reluctantly admitted that there were a few bucks in the cash box, and amid hoots, howls, groans, and cat calls, the writer was permitted to emerge briefly from behind the eight-ball to give his annual report as secretary.

The main item of business for the evening was the election of officers. Gordon Nichols, chairman of the nominating committee, had spent the previous couple of weeks in oiling up the steam roller, and in the expected and traditional manner, the following were elected as officers of the Cleveland Alumni Chapter: president, Frank "Pat" Moran; vice-president, Art Francis; treasurer, Bob Hartford; and secretary, Randall "Mike" Ruhlman.

In accepting the gavel of authority, President-elect Moran promised a year of constructive action for the Cleveland Alumni Chapter. On a motion by Senator John Morrison, it was unanimously decided to send greetings from the meeting to Brother Sid Wilson in California to tell him that he is very much in our thoughts whenever a Delt gathering is held in Cleveland.

We had hoped to have both Hugh Shields and Garth Slater present, but a "three alarm" emergency took Hugh on a trip in another direction. Garth's shoulders are plenty broad, however, and he did "right noble" in carrying the ball for the Central Office.

Two committee chairmen deserve special mention for making the party such a success. Bill Hecker arranged the program and "Pat" Moran built up the attendance.

We could write a volume about the crowd of 140 which came from far and near to attend the affair, the social hour before dinner, the very excellent food, songfest later in the evening, etc., etc. Due to space limitations, however, guess we'll just say, "It was a swell party, you shudda ben there."

That's our main story for this issue, but we believe you may be interested in a few "quickies":

With 1947, we start the thirteenth year of continuous publication of our monthly news bulletin.

Carr Liggett, president of Carr Liggett Advertising, Inc., recently won another prize by indulging in his favorite hobby, musical composition. His entry, "Paolo Singing," was awarded second prize in the Ohio Composers Contest sponsored by Radio Station WTAM.

Donald Pattison was named a director and elected vice-president of the Warner & Swasey Company.

Dr. K. G. Kohlstadt, of Indianapolis, visits Cleveland to attend organization meetings of the American Foundation for High Blood Pressure.

Karl Ertle's Cleveland-Canada Steamship Company is to start operations in May.

Wallace Moorehouse is now a laboratory technician in the Cleveland Health Department.

Harold Hopkins is enjoying a Mississippi River cruise to New Orleans.

Space limitations prevent our giving you many more of these brief items about the doings of Cleveland Deltas. For further details, however, we suggest that if you are in Cleveland on a Thursday, drop in at the Mid-Day Club and join us at luncheon. May we also add that all Deltas in the Cleveland area are cordially invited to become members of our alumni chapter. We will be glad to place your name on our mailing list if you will notify the secretary.

RANDALL M. RUHLMAN

Columbus

One of the largest Northern Division Conferences in history was held in Columbus, Ohio, March 6, 7, and 8. Over 250 registered. The Conference opened on Thursday night with a smoker, where much entertainment was provided by Chief Charlie Flick of the Choctaw Tribe, Allegheny, '15.

The business session opened at 9:00 o'clock on Friday and concluded at noon on Saturday. Ed West, Ohio Wesleyan, '23, one of our own alumni chapter, was elected as one of the vice-presidents of the Northern Division.

A dance was held in the Ball Room of the Deshler on Friday evening. Bruce Paschal, president of Beta Phi Chapter, had his Date Bureau in full operation so that none of the delegates was stranded without a girl.

The Conference concluded on Saturday with the Founders Day Banquet. The Honorable Thomas J. Herbert, Western Reserve, '15, was one of the speakers. Others included Herbert McCracken, national President, Pittsburgh, '21; Bishop Lester Smith, Allegheny, '05; Hugh Shields, Indiana, '26; A. B. Walling, Ohio State, '11, Secretary of Alumni; Clemens R. Frank, Western Reserve, '12, Supervisor of Scholarship; W. H. Martindill, Ohio University, '32, President, Northern Division; and Dr. Howard Fischbach, Kenyon, '07.

Dr. Fischbach presented the Fraternity with a $15,000.00 endowment fund for the aid of graduate medical students of Delta Tau Delta who desire to pursue further studies in the field of surgery.

A brilliant address was given by Francis Hughes, Ohio Wesleyan, '31.

A new Delt song, entitled "Delt Serenade," was introduced. The words were composed by three Beta Phi boys, Danny Herbert, Dick Johnson, and Don Oehmler. The tune is the same as Yale's "Whiffenpoof Song."

Much credit must be given to Charlie Flick, president of Columbus Alumni Club; Walter Heer, Jr., Dartmouth, '37, vice-president and general chairman of the Conference; Bill Heer, Carnegie Tech, '43, treasurer; and Bruce Paschal, president of Beta Phi, and the entire Beta Phi Chapter for their work in organizing this most successful Conference and Founders Day.

R. E. GIBBS

Kansas City

The Kansas City Alumni Chapter held a dinner, Thursday evening, February 13, at which fifty-two members were in attendance and the officers for the preceding year were re-elected.

On Friday, March 21, the Kansas City Alumni Chapter held its Founders Day banquet at the University Club at which the attendance was 125 members, thirty actives from Baker University and thirty or more from Kansas University, also others from Missouri University, Kansas State, and Westminster College. The toastmaster was president, Frank Siegrist. The principal address was given by Dr. W. W. Sweet, a Delt and former Dean at DePauw University, also well known author and educator. Speeches were made, also, by the presidents of the above active chapters.

We are holding our luncheons now at the University Club on Thursday at 12:15.
FRANK H. SCOTT

Knoxville

The Knoxville Alumni Chapter was organized during the past six months with a success which has been rather surprising to all of us.

The meetings have been in the form of

Speakers' table at Delta Delta's annual Founders Day Banquet. Left to right: Mr. and Mrs. GREG BENSON; DR. CLIFFORD BARBOUR; Mr. and Mrs. CHARLES PEARSON; DOUG SMITH; housemother Mrs. D. L. a luncheon the first Monday of each month at 12:15 at the Farragut Hotel. Although there are only some fifty or sixty alumni in the area, a sizable number of these work in downtown Knoxville and can be depended upon to come to the meetings. A turnout of twenty alumni is an average attendance at the luncheons. This includes five or six who come in from Oak Ridge and one from Maryville.

The officers of the chapter are: president, Horace Harper; vice-president, John Dempster; secretary-treasurer, Charles D. Moak.

The attendance at the Founders Day Banquet was one of the largest in our history. Because of a difficulty in campus scheduling, the annual Delta Delta Formal Dance could not be held on Founders Day; so the Founders Day Banquet was opened to the Delts' wives, mothers, and dates. The banquet was sponsored by Delta Delta Chapter with the co-operation of the alumni chapter and the Knoxville Delt Wives and Mothers Club.

The alumni chapter has already laid plans for a social function to be held during the spring.

The members of the Knoxville Alumni Chapter would like to extend a cordial invitation to all Delts who happen to be in the Knoxville area to attend our luncheon meetings.

CHARLES D. MOAK

Lexington

The man currently at the controls for the Lexington Alumni Club is William D. Leet, '38, an ex-flyboy, elected as the new president upon the expiration of Bill Greathouse's term in the office.

The new chief, who received a law degree from the University of Virginia, last fall gave up the work he had been doing in Frankfort since his return from service and he is now a practicing attorney in Lexington, residing at 214 Lackawanna Road. He had filled in for several months as the club's secretary, and since he even went so far as to keep minutes, that was sufficient evidence that he would do a good job as president.

Leet entered the Army Air Forces early in 1941 as a flying cadet, earned a commission, and spent three years as a pilot instructor before moving to a base at Foggia, Italy, for eight months of combat service. Flying a B-17, he completed 35 missions over Germany, winning a Distinguished Flying Cross and an Air Medal.

The secretary's chores this year are being handled by Carter Brumfield, '43, who located in Lexington after his return from service and is one of the club's most active members. He resides at 226 East High Street.

Leet appointed Ned Turnbull and J. D. Davis as members of the club's steering committee for this year, and named Brumfield and J. B. Faulconer as an alumni committee to assist in arrangements for Delta Epsilon's Founders Day observance.

Lexington alumni expect to continue regular gatherings through the summer this year. The last five monthly dinner-meetings have been held at the Delta Epsilon Shelter, with the hearty approval of all who attend regularly—and even the actives seem to think it's not a bad idea.

The club some time ago acquired two pairs of hard-to-get tickets to the Kentucky-Notre Dame basketball game and disposed of them in a drawing, the two ducats in the division open only to Delts going to John Crosby and the other pair being won by Dan Fowler's secretary. The device netted a handy sum for the club treasury, and the group, which has never charged any dues, needs a little money occasionally for stamps, postcards, flowers, etc.

Two tickets to another basketball game, contributed by Coleman Smith, were won by Bill Ogden in another drawing among alumni members who had been present at the last previous meeting.

The alumni newsheet which the club has been distributing seems to be coming out with more regularity lately, is meeting with a hearty welcome on all fronts, and is even stirring into life and response a number of Delts who have been on the "lost" list for some time.

LAURENCE SHROPSHIRE

Long Beach

The Long Beach Chapter of Delta Tau Delta has been dormant (to be charitable) since 1941. War, and patriotic assignments incident thereto, made it too difficult to get a sufficient number of our small membership to attend to make our monthly dinners feasible. Those of us who could, however, attended meetings of the Los Angeles Alumni Chapter whenever possible.

A group of five Long Beach Delts had luncheon together a week ago and arranged to notify all Delts in the vicinity of Long Beach whose addresses were known that the monthly dinners will be resumed on Tuesday, April 8, and monthly thereafter, on the second Tuesday of each month. The April dinner will be at the Lafayette Hotel and an effort will be made, there, to select a permanent meeting place.

Five members from Long Beach attended the Founders dinner at the University Club in Los Angeles on March 7 and joined more than two hundred brothers in paying honor to the founders of the Fraternity.

We hope to maintain an active Long Beach Chapter from now on and to increase our membership as more brothers take up residence in this and surrounding communities.

ROBERT B. KAPLAN

Los Angeles

Of course this first quarter of 1947 was highlighted by our 88th annual Founders Day banquet held at the University Club on the evening of March 7 where 247 members of our Fraternity had a very enjoyable evening. Under the able guidance of our President, Ben McNeill, the evening's festivities started on schedule and were carried out brilliantly and with considerable dispatch. Songs by our two active chapters at UCLA and USC opened the program, and the principal address of the evening was made by Colonel Thomas Cunningham, attorney and former legislator, who was ably introduced by Charley Carey, chairman for the evening. Brother Cunningham, UCLA, '26, took as his topic, "Universal Training," and gave a compelling discourse on this subject. To close the banquet, the entire gathering gave forth with several Delt songs led by Steve Stewart, Delta Pi, '47, and the ivory tickling of Blondie Paul, Beta Rho, '17, followed by the traditional walk-around. Sidelights—The oldest Delt present was Dr. Harry W. Boyd, Washington and Jefferson, '96. Dr. A. Burton Clark, Baker, '32, came all the way from Visalia to attend the dinner; a more loyal brother than Burt is hard to find. Omicron Chapter (Iowa) was represented by six exuberant members who sang often and loud (Ioway, Ioway, that's where the tall corn grows), led, of course, by Dr. Elmer Ball and Ralph Piergrue.

Our monthly dinners at Taix Restaurant, 321 East Commercial Street, held the first Thursday evening of each month, were exceptionally successful. January produced 40 brothers who listened to Dean Pierose, Beta Rho, '36, give an account of his experiences after being captured in the Battle of the Bulge. In February, our largest turnout to date (55 Delts representing 25 chapters), listened to Merrill Butler, Jr., Delta Pi, who also gave us an account of the Battle of the Bulge, and showed us that World War II was tough whether you were captured or not. Be sure to keep these monthly dinners in mind. Cocktails or wine at 6, and dinner promptly at 7. Bob Jones, Stanford, '32, is doing a terrific job as perennial chairman. Let's give him our continued support.

Our Tuesday luncheons held at the University Club were highlighted by talks on the legal profession by Earl Adams, Beta Rho, '16, by Howard Mills, Zeta, '18 (the investment banking business), and Bill Schwab, Kentucky, '24, on "Do You or Don't You Pay an Income Tax." Just last Tuesday, Joseph W. Steel, III, Penn State, '46, one of our field secretaries, gave us a very interesting picture of the national Fraternity as a whole, and we hope that he comes back to see us again soon.

Rod Hansen, president of the Delta Pi alumni, reports a minimum attendance of 15 alums at their monthly meetings and expects to have a good many more now that the active chapter has its own house on the campus. Charley Carey, prexy of the Delta Iota group, wants to remind every Delta Iota alum to drop around to the chapter house on the third Thursday of every month, and guarantees a good time will be had by all. He says 30 is the average attendance now, but why not make it 50.

It is with considerable pride that we note that the Western Division Conference paid signal honor to the Los Angeles Alumni Chapter by recently electing Dan Ferguson, Chicago, '09, to be Division President for the next two years. Dan is the fourth Delt from the Chicago chapter to hold this position.

We regret the irreplaceable loss of four outstanding brothers during this last quarter, and we extend deepest sympathies to the families of all: Barry N. Hillard, Gamma Epsilon, '17; Ernest W. Oliver, Beta Rho, '00; Ruben S. Schmidt, Delta, '03; and Roscoe Van Pelt, Beta Pi, '04.

Think that possibly some of you out-of-town brothers will be bowling in the ABC which is just starting in Los Angeles, and we cordially invite you to drop in and say hello.

Milwaukee

The Milwaukee Alumni Chapter is currently emerging from its winter election which was accompanied by a reorganization of its governing body, and it is about to embark on its 1947 program of events. Leading off the program will be a buffet supper served smorgasbord style on April 10. It is expected that the Delt songbook will get a healthy workout that evening.

Nine men were elected to the chapter's alumni board and selected as their chairman Lou French, M.I.T., '10, and George Washington, '14. Four Beta Gamma men and four Delta Nu men comprise the rest of the board. The former are Russ Bach, '42, Phil Dressler, '41, Jim Goetter, '41, and Bucky Richter, '42. Delta Nu men are Bob Heffren, '45, Frank Mulkey, '38, Ed Nye, '44, and Wally Patten, '43. There are now 146 Delts on our current mailing list, of whom 44 are dues-paying. A noticeable uptrend in Fraternity interest is in progress.

On February 22, 1947, the Fraternity lost one of its most highly regarded members when Michael J. Cleary, Wisconsin, '01, passed away. Brother Cleary was President of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company and a member of the Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin at the time of his death. We will miss him.

Omaha

On the evening of Wednesday, March 26, the Omaha alumni staged an initiation banquet at the Fontenelle Hotel in Omaha for the active chapter and fourteen pledges whose initiation was the high spot of the evening. The affair was the culmination of several lunches during the preceding weeks and a great deal of spadework. Head spaders were Bob Manley and Charlie Ortman in Omaha; John Wynkoop and "Rusty" Joynt in Lincoln.

Speaking was limited to the introduction of those present, and seventy-five introductions is enough speaking for any banquet. Omaha, Lincoln, Fremont, Hastings, and Bellevue, Nebraska, and Red Oak, Iowa, were represented. (Did I miss someone?) While the initiation props were being set up in another room, the hotel orchestra entertained and the pledges had their pictures taken. No casualties were reported.

WILLIAM SAWTELL

Portland

The campaign to raise sufficient funds to purchase completely a "Shelter" for Gamma Rho Chapter is drawing to a close, and although there is still about $3,000 to go, we feel that it will be forthcoming shortly. But we still need the financial help of any Gamma Rho alum who may read this and be able to help us complete the deal.

Gamma Rho Chapter is now housed (the first time since 1944) in a beautiful mansion on the "Hilltop" overlooking the University. It is a beautiful brick structure housing approximately fifty-five men. During the past two months, many of the alums have been able to make "business trips" to Eugene and visit the new quarters and to a man are rightfully proud of the part the Portland Alumni Chapter played in making a real home for the boys.

A great share of the credit goes to the active chapter leaders who were able to hold the men together with nothing but promises and plans for the future. In spite of almost insurmountable obstacles, Gamma Rho now has more than fifty actives and pledges, all a credit to the Fraternity. The remodeling is now in process but will be completed and the commissary in full operation with the opening of spring term. Plans are being formed for an open house for the alums and many will be on hand to see the new Shelter.

The Portland Alumni Chapter now has more than 200 men on its active rolls and growing every day. The monthly bridge parties were started in February with a dinner and bridge social at the University Club Friday, February 21. Weekly luncheons have been changed from Thursdays to Mondays and now convene at the Chamber of Commerce dining room at noon. Any Delt is welcome; so when in Portland on Monday, be with us for lunch. The annual honor initiations held prior to the war are on the agenda again, and we plan to start off with a bang this coming January with the most colossal, stupendous, magnificent initiation and banquet ever held.

An alumni initiating team will travel to Eugene the week end of April 12 to initiate the new men into Gamma Rho.

To Reed Swenson, our prexy, goes the "Oscar" of the year for his untiring work and enthusiasm in moulding the Portland Alumni Chapter into the active, live-wire group that it now is—at a time when the future was the darkest. They say that when you want to get something done, get a busy man to do it! At the same time he was working so hard for the alumni organization, he also did a bang-up job for his company and just recently was appointed Director of Personnel of Jantzen Knitting Mills. The groundwork he laid for the alumni chapter during his term of office will certainly be an inspiration for those who follow. Just watch our dust from now on!

WALTER R. VERNSTROM

San Francisco

We are happy to say that our article was one of the nineteen represented in the February issue of THE RAINBOW. Since that time many of our San Francisco alumni group have attended our lunches every Wednesday at St. Julian's restaurant. Among those usually present are Nat Cornell, Pod Booth, Emmons Coogan, Ken Sayre, Dick Vieille, Stanley Dimm, Jack Hoope, Bill Mitchell, Bob and Bill Dunn, John Twelvetees, Ed Clark, and Fran Mayer. Many of the above were present when Field Secretary Joseph Steel visited us March 19. Joe gave us many suggestions on how to improve and enlarge our gatherings.

Our group has tried to form closer relationship between the active chapters and the alumni by attending house functions. Those present at the Beta Omega (California) Mothers Club open house March 30 were: Ed Clark, George Parrish, W. S. Parrish, Martin Griffin, Lorimer Woolley, Adison Strong, Ward Madiera, Paul Schacht, and Warren Fisher. The function was a big success, and we hope the house gets many improvements through the club.

A few other gatherings will take place at the Beta Omega Shelter during April, which include an initiation on April 13 and the Beachcomber Dance Saturday, April 26. All members of the class of 1940 and 1941 are invited for refreshments at Emmons Coogan's house.

Jud Crary, former Beta Rho (Stanford) chapter adviser, has retired from business and is on an extended voyage around the world. Bob Kennedy, Stanford, '42, is in New York studying investment banking, while Ken Cuthbertson, former Stanford president, has returned for business school. Doug Hensley, '36, is located in Paterson with his wife and two children, Ann and Tom. Tom Booth, '36, contractor, and Matt Connelly, '36, appliance center, are located in Lafayette.

Bud Caughy, '36, is building thirty-nine homes in Vacaville and is being assisted by Dick Coffer, '36. And last but not least, John Twelvetrees has been re-elected president of the Stanford alumni in San Francisco.

We urge others in San Francisco to attend our weekly Wednesday luncheons at St. Julian's restaurant.

EMMONS W. COOGAN

Savannah

Under the leadership of our newly elected president, Deane Chivington, interest in our alumni chapter is increasing. At the last monthly luncheon meeting there were fourteen members present, and it is hoped that this number will greatly increase at our next meeting.

Clinton I. Helmly, who accepted the assignment to raise funds to assist the Beta Delta Chapter at the University of Georgia, has done a splendid job and through the generosity of the members of this alumni chapter a substantial check has been forwarded.

Plans are being formulated to contact all prospective pledges at the Savannah Extension of the University of Georgia, and it is planned to invite the most promising to a social in the near future.

The roster of the alumni in Savannah has been revised and brought up-to-date, and a list of active Deltas now in college has been developed.

A letter has been written by our president to all active chapter advisers in this section requesting information as to how this chapter can assist the active chapters in securing pledges.

Plans are being made to have a Founders Day celebration, and with the continued interest, it is hoped that Savannah will have one of the strongest alumni chapters in this section of the country.

W. BENT HOYNES

Toledo

The Toledo Alumni Chapter having been dormant for a number of years has once again come to life. We are having regular weekly luncheons every Tuesday noon at the Secor Hotel and have been averaging an attendance of fifteen to twenty of the brothers with the number steadily increasing. Two of the old timers who have been giving their loyal support are Frank Powell, the seed man, and Harry Vortriede, the printer. Other sparkplugs in our reactivation program are Wilfred Hibbert, Mu, '18, recently discharged from the army a full Colonel and now with the Public Relations Department of the Libbey-Owens-Ford; Don Brown and Harry Hansen, both Beta Phi, '15, who not only run The Toledo Plaster & Supply Company but also the Republican Party in these parts; Clarence Ball, Beta Beta, '15, Superintendent of Music in Toledo Schools; Lyman Close, Gamma Beta, '15, with The Toledo Pressed Steel; Herb and Hugh Sharpe, father and son; Bud Mulholland, another of our legal talent; Hubert Paul, Gamma Tau, '17, with Owens Illinois Glass Company; Bill Diemer and Charles Oberlin, two of the younger members recently discharged from the army; Paul Corbin, Gamma Mu, '20, whose son, Joe, recently pledged Delt at Gamma Nu and who was a guest at our luncheon last week. Paul is with the Textileather Corporation. Walt Albrecht, Gamma Upsilon, '38, Personnel Director for Willys-Overland; Bob Lowrie, Chi, '19, with Belknap & Thompson; Vince Bailey, Eta, '31, General Agent for Paul Revere Life; Bill Watson, Gamma Gamma, Vice-President of Commerce Guardian Bank; Wes Brackney, Mu, who has just opened his own law office; Maltbie and Eugene (Pike) Brown, brothers from Beta Phi; La Dow (Doc) Johnston, Gamma Tau, another lawyer; Ivan Smith, Delta, YMCA big shot in Toledo; Bob Evans, Beta, Program Director of Radio Station WSPD; Locke Douglas, Gamma Alpha, '23, who recently joined us from Chicago having been sent to Toledo as Manager for Pitney-Bowes, Inc. His son, Jack, has also been our guest at a luncheon and has pledged Delt at Beta Phi. Harvey Hoover, Epsilon, was responsible for a party of ten of the brothers going to Michigan State recently for the reactivation ceremonies of the Iota Chapter.

We are still in the preliminary stages of our reorganization and are planning an evening dinner in the near future at which meeting permanent plans will be made.

R. W. DIEMER

Toronto

We are happy to see a wonderful revival of activity, on a scale impossible during the war years among the Toronto chapter alumni. This has by no means reached its peak, and the plans of the executive indicate a further increase of interest during the coming year. Through the untiring efforts of a group of Toronto men, backed by the support of many of the alumni, gratifying progress has already been made on alterations and improvements to the Delta Theta Chapter Shelter. This has been accompanied by a refinancing program which will bring the chapter into a better financial position than it has ever enjoyed.

Numerous social functions have enabled the alumni to renew the old comradeship which had of necessity slipped into the background during the past seven or eight years. The next one of note is a reunion at the Royal York Hotel on May 3, 1947, the theme of the banquet being a tribute to the men of Psi Delta Psi Fraternity, who in 1926 were initiated into Delta Tau Delta and founded Delta Theta Chapter, the first Canadian Delt Chapter, and up to the present time the only Canadian one. There are many of us who hold the sincere hope that we will not retain the latter distinction too much longer.

We note with pride the recent dedication of a stained glass window, erected as a memorial to Hugh Gall, Delta Theta, '26, in the church of which he was a member. Hugh, who was one of the "originals" from Psi Delta Psi, was probably Canada's greatest football player, comparable in Canadian football to men such as Red Grange, or Tom Harmon in the American game. A veteran of the first great war, he died in Toronto in 1938.

Another prewar activity we hope to revive is the weekly luncheon. One or possibly more restaurants in the city will be named as meeting places, so that all Deltas in the vicinity can meet. Exact details are furnished in a forthcoming newsletter. Since groups are concentrating in other Canadian cities, we hope to spread interest in the idea to them, one worth-while feature of which will be the possibility of gathering news items from the meetings for publication in the newsletter.

DELTS IN THE SERVICE

March 26 was the date of Beta Nu's alumni dinner and testimonial for Colonel GEORGE F. HOBSON, U.S.A., Ret., M. I. T., '06. About sixty Delts were present to join their brothers for the first time in years. A delicious buffet dinner, prepared by the superb cook, Julie, topped off by a huge layer cake with a replica of the Delt Badge iced on the top, was heartily enjoyed by everyone present.

After dinner had settled, Bruce Gist, chapter vice-president, paid tribute to the efforts of Colonel Hobson, who last spring gave Beta Nu the encouragement it needed for overcoming wartime apathy toward the physical condition of the house, and who rallied the alumni to support improvements in the Shelter. A large plaque was presented by the chapter as a token of its esteem for Colonel Hobson. The plaque, named "The G. F. Hobson Award," will be engraved with the name of the outstanding freshman from each pledge class.

Following a tour of inspection of the Shelter, an open meeting of the house corporation was called by Bert E. Adams, '15, president. The meeting was begun with a short history of the chapter and the house corporation, given by A. L. Shaw, '09, H. S. Cleverdon, '10, and W. L. Klehm, '35. Having familiarized the undergraduates with its background, the house corporation got down to business and elected E. M. Woodward, '17, to succeed Brother

Adams, who has served the corporation long and faithfully.

The evening ended on a high note of enthusiasm as the alumni departed with renewed faith in the chapter, and the actives retained a reassurance of support and guidance from their older brothers.

A salute is due two Delts who have recently completed long and faithful tours as chapter advisers. They are STUART K. FOX, Wisconsin, '20, and GERALD G. STEWART, Stanford, '27, who were advisers at Wisconsin and Southern California, respectively. Stu Fox resigned from one job, only to fall into another—that of vice-president of the Northern Division.

ANTHONY F. McCUE, West Virginia, '07, who has served his chapter and the Fraternity in many ways, too numerous to mention here, was paid a high tribute during the past year in a letter addressed to him and signed by every member of the undergraduate chapter. It reads as follows:

"At this time we wish to extend our most sincere thanks for the many things that you have done in these past years for the Fraternity that we so deeply love.

"In extending our thanks it is hard to find a place to start. We owe so much to you for the large part you played in paying off so much of the house debt in 1938, then again last spring when we were so in need of a strong, helping hand you were behind us and helped in so many different ways. . . .

"In knowing you, we feel that we have found the true meaning of brotherhood and realize that our loyalty to the Fraternity is not an undergraduate undertaking, but a lifetime pleasure."

Mr. McCue replied: "This is to acknowledge receipt of your much appreciated letter. . . . I shall file it among my other Fraternity treasures.

"In the very last sentence of your letter, referring to the loyalty to the Fraternity being a life-long pleasure, you spoke more wisely than you could possibly know at this time. When I was in the house, more than forty years ago, I played left end on the football team, I was captain of the first track team the University had, and held, for a year or two, an intercollegiate track record, on account of all of which I had considerable youthful pride. But these things have long ago ceased to be more than an insignificant memory.

"However, the friendships I formed with twenty boys who lived in the old Fraternity house, located on the same spot where yours now stands, continue to be the greatest treasure I have outside of my own family. It has never missed a daily dividend in all those years. It is beyond the reach of worries of politics or the practice of law, and is not influenced by the fluctuations of the stock market or the graduated brackets of the income tax law.

"It is my sincere hope that the experience of all of you may be the same as mine has been."

WALTER B. NISSLEY, Penn State, '10, chapter adviser of Tau Chapter and extension specialist for Penn State, retired from the college faculty in February after thirty-one years of service.

Mr. Nissley has been chapter adviser at Tau for many of the past twenty years. He was a member of the local fraternity, Alpha Kappa Delta, which later became a unit of Delta Tau Delta when the chapter was re-established at Penn State in 1912. Since that time he has been actively associated with Tau Chapter, not only as adviser, but as treasurer of Tau Company since its incorporation in 1912. In that capacity he supervised the construction of the Shelter in 1928.

A member of the Distinguished Service Chapter, he has always been intensely loyal to the Fraternity. He is greatly pleased, since his retirement, that he can take a more active part in the activities at Tau.

Mr. Nissley is the author of numerous circulars on home and commercial gardening. He is a member of both Gamma Sigma Delta, honorary agricultural society, and Epsilon Sigma Phi, honorary extension fraternity.

LOYALTY FUND LIFE MEMBERS

Since the establishment January 1, 1926, of Delta Tau Delta's Loyalty Fund, its endowment fund, 6,961 men have become Loyalty Fund Life Members. Three hundred twelve have been added to this group from December 24, 1946, to March 31, 1947.

Following are the names of men initiated prior to January 1, 1926, who have become Loyalty Fund Life Members upon contribution of $50.00:

Charles Willis Flick, Allegheny, '15
 Arnold Eugene Tilton, Ohio, '28
 Frederick James Wurster, Michigan, '17

BALFOUR BLUE BOOK

Mailed in U. S. A. only★

★ *Our catalog is on display at
BIRKS stores in CANADA*

"I HAD NO IDEA that there was so much hand work entering into the making of our insignia!" are the first words from fraternity officials and other visitors after a tour of the BALFOUR plant.

This skill, borne out of long experience in fine craftsmanship here in the heart of the jewelry industry, together with the large BALFOUR production facilities, MEANS that you may take additional pride in the wearing of your BALFOUR made insignia.

While insignia is our primary concern, your needs in kindred lines are also provided for in our other factories.

Extensive additions have been made in our AWARDS facilities, PAPER PRODUCTS and LEATHER factories.

A force of over 1000 employees is engaged in the manufacture of these things for your greater enjoyment. Some of this merchandise is listed at the right.

It is our sincere desire to serve you to your complete satisfaction.
