DELTA TAU DELTA INTERNATIONAL FRATERNITY

Brian Doyle Brings Inspiration to Campus

If each Delt alumnus sent this:

...the Delt Foundation would receive $2,921,500 and could:

1. Award 2,000 more scholarships per year
2. Provide financial assistance to every Delt attending a Division Conference or Karnea
3. Endow two sessions of the Presidents and Advisors Retreat
4. Fund the educational portions of volunteer training for the next 10 years
5. Cover the expenses for The Road for the next five years
6. Fund the leadership portions of Ignite and The Charge, Delta Tau Delta's newest leadership experiences.

...and that is just year one!

This little check could do a lot.
(Now imagine what a $1,000 check could do.)

We all have promises to keep!

The Delta Tau Delta Educational Foundation supports programs of Delta Tau Delta that promote a commitment to strong moral and ethical values that have in the past, and still today, shape the lives of current and future leaders of this nation. Gifts made to the Delt Foundation are tax-deductible and can be made by credit card through www.deltfoundation.org, or by check mailed to 10000 Allisonville Road, Fishers, IN 46038. For additional information contact Mark Helmus, Executive Vice President, or Steve Vedra, Director of Development, 888-383-1858 or email dmh@delts.org.

LETTER

FROM THE EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

By Jim Russell
(Purdue University, 1975)
Executive Vice President

Spring is the season of renewal and promise. As spring 2013 blooms across Delta Tau Delta we have much to recognize and anticipate in the coming weeks.

Our seniors are graduating and taking their place in the current alumni ranks which number some 120,000 men – approximately 70 percent of all Delts ever initiated. Ahead of you is the opportunity to maintain a fraternal association for years and decades ahead. The Fraternity congratulates and welcomes its newest alumni brothers. Please send us your updated contact information so we will stay connected.

Juniors, sophomores and freshmen are moving up to assume larger positions of responsibility within their chapters. The Fraternity has opportunities for you to further develop your skills via its new leadership academy opportunities, Ignite and The Charge.

We anticipate welcoming four new chapters this spring. Iota Tau at Sacred Heart University chartered on March 23 and Grand Valley State on April 13. Ahead is a re-chartering of the Omicron Chapter at the University of Iowa, followed by the founding of Iota Phi at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire. These followed re-charterings at Clemson and Northwestern last fall, plus colonizations at Boston University, Vanderbilt and Northeastern. Next fall, we are committed to expansion projects at West Virginia, James Madison and the University of Texas-Dallas. Delta Tau Delta is a growing Fraternity.

This school year draws to a close with more than 2,200 new Delts. For the second consecutive year, we will eclipse 8,000 student members. We have an active presence on 132 campuses and have never been larger. The Greek movement has experienced a tremendous surge during the past decade and your Fraternity is at the lead: Delt student membership is 45 percent larger than it was 10 years ago.

Why the upswing? In addition to the benefits of Greek life which have appealed to students for generations -- friendship, community, leadership opportunities -- Delt growth is being driven by innovative programming. The Road appeals to today's students who compete on the campus today and will soon compete for jobs and post-graduate positions. Our promise to these newest Delts must continue to be in providing opportunities for their development as students and beyond.

A significant part of our personal development also means an ongoing commitment to serve others. A partnership between Delta Tau Delta and JDRF (Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation) was launched last summer and is already seeing significant interest from chapters and alumni. Type 1 diabetes impacts thousands of Americans, including a number of Delts and their immediate families. The response of our undergraduates to this initiative has been heart-warming and holds long-term promise in connecting Delts to service of the larger community.

As we celebrate nature's beauty of spring, we should take time to note human beauty and achievement as well. As Delts, we have much to look forward to and recognize.

It's a good and beautiful day to be a Delt.

Order of the C-- gives back

The Order of the C— is the exclusive annual donor recognition club of the Delta Tau Delta Educational Foundation.

These loyal donors support the ongoing work of the Foundation to promote, encourage and foster the education of our 8,200+ undergraduate Delts. Gifts of $1,000 during the fiscal year (August 1-July 31) qualify for this recognition, and can be made monthly through EFT or credit card. Our heartfelt thanks to these generous donors for the impact they are making on the lives of thousands of young Delts! If you would like to learn more about the OOC—, please contact the Foundation at 317-284-0210 or dmh@delts.org. Listed below are the Order of the C— members for fiscal year 2012 (8/1/2011 – 7/31/2012).

Foundation Hosts Florida Rallies

The 30th annual Naples Delt Rally was held on Tuesday, March 5. This is the longest continuous event sponsored by the Delt Foundation, having been loyally hosted since inception by Mark English (DePauw University, 1964). Alumni and undergraduates from 18 different chapters, representing initiates from the past eight decades, were in attendance. Additional rallies were held in Boca Raton, hosted by Richard (Iowa State University, 1971) and Joan Stark, and Vero Beach, hosted by Norval (DePauw University, 1951) and Diane Stephens. Look for photos and information on the March 2014 Rallies in the Summer Rainbow!

Beta Tau Shelter Helps Chapter Stay Competitive on Nebraska Campus

Last fall, the Beta Tau Chapter at the University of Nebraska celebrated the completion of its $1.3 million shelter renovation with a Shelter Rededication and Alumni Reunion Banquet.

A university mandate requiring a fire sprinkler system among all Greek housing units by 2014 sparked the idea to begin preparation for a renovation. The Beta Tau House Corporation enlisted the help of Pennington & Co. to spearhead the fundraising plan.

Originally built in 1949, the Beta Tau Shelter has seen significant changes in the past, with the last renovation in 1994. The current construction project incorporates the installation of a fire sprinkler system, heating and air conditioner system and security system. The renovation also included the revamping of several living quarters into the popular suite-style rooms with shared restroom facilities and providing new study areas throughout the Shelter in addition to general cosmetic enhancements.

The suites feature a common living area with bathroom facilities connecting two sleep/study rooms, which will house two members and allow four members to share the entire suite. With a capacity to hold 70 members, the living area is large enough for several couches, desks, coffee tables and a large flat screen television. The chapter's four retired Hugh Shields flags are displayed in the dining room, and the chapter room, formal living room, pit and new common/study areas provide extensive room for brotherhood bonding experiences.

The renovation allows Beta Tau to remain competitive, not just with other Greek organizations, but with the university's continued growth in suite-style dormitories. Beta Tau Chapter is leading the way for fraternities on campus by offering members the suite accommodations similar to what can be found in campus dormitories and apartments.

Special recognition is given to former House Corporation President Alex Wolf (University of Nebraska, 2003), architect and house corporation member Bob Soukup (University of Nebraska, 2003) and Paul Engler (University of Nebraska, 1950), who served as the honorary chairman of the capital campaign.

The newly renovated shelter at Beta Tau Chapter features many new amenities, including a study area, below.

Reconnect and Re-engage

- ▲ Is there a long-lost brother you'd like to contact?
- ▲ Would you like more frequent updates on the goings-on of Delta Tau Delta?
- ▲ Do you ever wish you could reconnect with the Fraternity you love?

Your journey with Delta Tau Delta doesn't have to end when you receive your diploma; it is a lifelong opportunity to engage in brotherhood and friendship. Delta Tau Delta has a vast network consisting of more than 130 active chapters and colonies, more than 8,000 undergraduates, and more than 117,000 alumni. They are merely a phone call or mouse click away.

Check out the website at delts.org to find out what's happening with the Fraternity and your local chapter and find contact information to help you reconnect. While you're there, don't forget to think of the next generation of Delts by recommending new undergraduates for membership in Delta Tau Delta.

Delt Inspiration Transforms Campus

On a wall painted black on the campus of the George Washington University, students are proclaiming their own existential bucket lists.

The Before I Die Wall serves as a giant public exhibit for the common inspiration of young participants.

Imitative of similar walls in New Orleans, Brazil, Taiwan and Australia, the GW version is the creation of Delt sophomore Brian Doyle (George Washington University, 2015).

"I can think of five things I want to do before I die," said Doyle. Why not ask students to share their own ideas, he thought.

The wall itself is a giant chalkboard painted on a temporary construction barrier shielding the Gelman Library renovation, just a five-minute walk from the Gamma Eta Shelter. Students and fellow Deltas come to Kogan Plaza, grab a piece of chalk and share with the world what they want to do before they die. Doyle learned of the idea from artist Candy Chang at a conference in Scotland last summer.

Chang, a street artist, transformed an abandoned New Orleans house into a giant chalkboard after Hurricane Katrina ravaged her hometown in 2005. Chang asked visitors to complete a fill-in-the-blank form, "Before I die I want to...." Soon there were imitators on a beach in Australia, a staircase in Hong Kong and a brick wall in Trujillo, Peru.

"I was immediately hooked to bring it to GW," said Doyle.

Last September, Doyle floated the idea on his Facebook page to see how much interest could be garnered.

"I wanted to see if there was any support for the idea even, and maybe just pick up a few friends to encourage me to continue forward," said Doyle. "I woke up the next morning and there were more than 300 people interested."

In true Delt form and as a testament to the four fundamental principles of the Fraternity, Doyle brought his idea to life. It took courage, faith, power and truth to turn this unconventional dream into an inspiring reality.

Doyle worked countless hours throughout the fall with Associate Dean of Students Tim Miller to bring the idea to life by the beginning of the spring semester. When Doyle returned from winter break, he only had a few weeks to prepare the wall for its big debut.

Hundreds of students and supporters, including Candy Chang, joined Doyle at the official opening in late January.

"By using a few simple tools like chalk board paint and spray paint, it also shows you don't need to have a big budget to make a big impact," said Chang.

"The second I saw the Facebook group a few months ago, I knew I wanted to get involved because I thought it was a fantastic idea and it's just so inspiring," said one student attending the event.

Doyle believes anything you write up there is the perfect thing, "When I walk past the wall, just a huge smile spreads across my face just because I get to see all these different ambitions and dreams I've never even thought of."

The wall has already become a huge part of the GW community with hundreds of students chalking their messages of hopes and dreams on it.

"And I think it's even more exciting because nobody's name is on it," said Doyle. "It's not about that. It's about learning anonymously."

Doyle enjoys walking past the wall daily and seeing the new ideas added.

"One day I saw an older woman observing the wall for about 20 minutes, then she came back, picked up a piece of chalk and wrote 'experience grace' and walked away."

Doyle ranks that as one of his most favorite experiences at the wall since its creation.

"You're more than welcome to write anything up there. The main point of the wall is not only to see the different perspectives but to show you have the power and ability to do those things now."

Just as he has committed himself to a life of excellence, Doyle wants people to commit to what they've put on the wall.

"You never know what could happen tomorrow or the next day."

Before I die...I want to have a flash mob on an airplane.

Before I die...I want to dance with Ellen.

Before I die...I want to live for my dad, I miss you.

2013 Division Conferences Celebrate the Fraternity's Success

More than 740 Delt undergraduates and 120 Delt alumni gathered for the 2013 Division Conferences to celebrate another year of award-winning chapter programming, participate in exciting new development tracks, and conduct division elections.

All New Chapter Development Programming

With this year's division conferences came all new and exciting programming for undergraduates and alumni. Whereas last year's conferences provided five officer-specific tracks and one leadership session, this year's programming was geared toward specific outlets of chapter operations. The 2013 programs ranged from FAAR reporting and grading to a more in depth look at the role of the IFC, from treasurer training and risk management to creating successful philanthropies and Road programs. Programs also covered maximizing DeltsConnect as a valuable resource and assessing a chapter's online reputation.

Division conference facilitator from Cal Poly, Diego Silva, found the new programming most impressive and said, "I used some of the workshop activities that I learned with Delta Tau Delta for our new member seminar. Kudos to the entire Delta Tau Delta staff."

Undergraduates participated in personal development sessions to gain a better understanding of individual leadership styles and take a more in depth look at leading with the values of the Fraternity.

Right: One highlight of the conferences was the addition of a pull-up bar to get attendees excited about the new leadership experiences, Ignite and The Charge.

Alumni also participated in volunteer development sessions where advisors and volunteers could swap advice, share best practices, and analyze key themes of successful alumni involvement. According to International President Travis Rockey (Delta Zeta, 1973) from his keynote speech regarding the importance of alumni volunteers, "We would not be the great Fraternity we are without your guidance and assistance."

Dr. Jeremi Suri Inspires Leaders

Three of the conferences featured a leadership presentation by Dr. Jeremi Suri of the University of Texas. Suri holds the Mack Brown Distinguished Chair for Leadership in Global Affairs at the University of Texas at Austin. He is a professor in the University's Department of History and the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs. His leadership presentation focused on the challenges today's young leaders face and how to overcome those obstacles.

The Charge and Ignite

Along with the new development programs came the unveiling of two new leadership academies taking place this summer, The Charge and Ignite. The Charge will be offered in downtown Chicago and is geared toward the experienced upperclassman looking to apply his leadership knowledge and experience to real-world situations. Ignite will be offered near both the Indianapolis and Atlanta areas, aimed at newly initiated members who are eager to make their mark and learn the ropes as leaders in the Fraternity.

Once the undergraduate conference attendees were introduced to the new leadership opportunities, they were given a chance to test their upper body strong and put their social media skills to good use. Through a Twitter challenge and a pull-up contest, chapters earned points with the highest earner winning the scholarship.

Throughout the conference season, chapters tweeted and retweeted #IgniteTheCharge to earn a scholarship, and many arms were sore after conference season from trying to earn points on the pull-up bar stationed outside each conference. Several alumni in attendance at the conferences stepped forward with scholarships to the leadership events.

All Five Division Presidents Re-Elected

The 2013 Division Conferences saw the re-election of the five seated division presidents, which include Anthony Albanese (Theta Epsilon, 1996) of the Eastern Division, Tom Calhoon (Beta Phi, 1970) of the Northern Division, Lee Grace (Epsilon Xi, 1984) of the Southern Division, Bill Richardson (Beta Zeta, 1979) of the Western Pacific Division and Josh Schneider (Zeta Delta, 1998) of the Western Plains Division. Each division president will serve a two-year term.

Eastern Division Adapts to Conference Cancellation

Seldom in the history of the Fraternity has a division conference been canceled, but when Mother Nature dealt the East Coast a heavy blow with Winter Storm Nemo and nearly 36 inches of snow, there was little choice but to cancel the Eastern Division Conference. It was scheduled to be in Meriden, Conn. However, the Eastern Division rallied together after the unexpected cancellation and within two weeks after the scheduled conference date organized a gathering via video conferencing to handle the essential affairs of the division and the re-election of Eastern Division President Anthony Albanese.

"Thanks to Division volunteers with far more technological savvy than I, we were able to schedule and organize a 'virtual conference' in just two weeks' time to conduct the essential work of the Eastern Division," said Division President Anthony Albanese. "It is my hope that the Fraternity will utilize technology in the future to engage and involve our undergraduate and alumni members in conferences and even Karnea."

Delts Share Conference Action with Twitter

During the 2013 Division Conference season, attendees were encouraged to share their experiences and events with members across the country via Twitter. By using the hashtag #Delts2013, members near and far were able to benefit from the experiences of attendees.

▲ @BrandonPilas - Learned so much on how to improve the philanthropy! #IgniteTheCharge #GammaKappa #Delts2013

▲ @SFA_Delts - We all had a great time at Division Conference! Couldn't have asked for a better experience. #ignitethecharge #ZetaPsi

Multiple chapters and individuals receive awards

The division conferences allowed members of the Fraternity to come together to celebrate those who help contribute to the Delt cause. Both chapters and individuals were honored for their dedication and service to the Fraternity.

The following awards were presented during the 2013 Division Conferences.

Highlights of the 2013 division conference season included awards presentations, with the top 10 chapters in the Fraternity receiving the Hugh Shields Award. Awards are based on chapter performance for the 2012 reporting year. The Hugh Shields Award is considered the Fraternity's highest chapter distinction. The second highest distinction is the Court of Honor Award.

Notable recipients include the Epsilon Phi Chapter at Southeastern Louisiana University for receiving its 15th Hugh Shields Award and the Iota Iota Chapter at John Carroll University for receiving its first Hugh Shields Award. Other noteworthy recipients include the Delta Iota Chapter at UCLA for its first Court of Honor Award and the Gamma Beta Chapter at Illinois Institute of Technology for its 26th Court of Honor Award.

Division Scholarship Award

The Southern Division was awarded the Division Scholarship Award for having the highest percentage of chapters above the All-Men's Average among the Fraternity's five divisions, with 20 of 28 chapters above the AMA.

Venable Award

The award, named in honor of former Director of Academic Affairs John Venable (Carnegie Mellon University, 1951), is given to the chapter with the biggest increase in its grade point average during the previous year.

Beta Theta at the University of the South received this year's Venable Award.
